Justice won't order halt to U.S. bombing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall refused today to order an immediate halt to U.S. bombing in Cambodia, although he hinted he might do so if the decision were his alone.

With the court in summer recess, Marshall said he felt he had to take a broader view to reflect the overall position of the entire court which in the past has sidestepped a direct ruling on the legality of the Indochina war.

The Watergate investigators who requested the suit said that it would not be "proper" to discuss the reasons for any of the research the committee lawyers are doing.

Marshall acted on an appeal by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and four Air Force officers who won an order in a federal district court in New York last week for an immediate bombing halt, but then saw an appeals court suspend the order.

The Holtzman group still did not give up after Marshall's ruling, saying they would take their case to another justice, William O. Douglas, who they presumably felt would look more favorably on their effort. Douglas is on vacation in Goose Prairie, Wash.

They were asking Marshall to set aside the appeals court stay of the district court judge's order for an immediate bombing halt —rather than on Aug. 15 as scheduled.

Meanwhile, they persuaded the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to advance to Aug. 8 its scheduled hearing of the case.

Marshall said that if the decision were his alone, he might well conclude that U.S. military operations in Indochina were unconstitutional, as the Holtzman group contends.

But the justice made clear that was the extent of what he was ruling on —whether the appeals court decision would be vacated. He concluded, "I would exceed my legal authority were I, acting alone, to grant this application."

He added that such a ruling should be made only "with the greatest caution" and only in exceptional circumstances.

Marshall said that the government's contention that vital security interests of the nation rest on continued bombing until Aug. 15 and that irreparable injury will occur if it is halted was subject to "considerable skepticism" by some people.

"But it cannot be denied that the assessment of such injury poses the most sensitive problems about which justices of this Court have little or no information or expertise," he added.

Brown suit is linked to probe on Watergate

WASHINGTON — Senate Watergate investigators Tuesday requested a copy of Rep. George Brown's suit against the Administration over fund impoundment, but would not explain why to reporters.

Brown's suit, filed earlier this year against William Ruckelshaus, then head of the Environmental Protection Agency, concerned impoundment of funds designated to combat water pollution. Brown, D-38th Dist., represents south Pomona, Chino, Montclair and Ontario.

The court originally decided Brown was not sufficiently affected by the issue to instigate the suit.

The city of Los Angeles, however, agreed to be a col-plaintiff, and the case was re-filed and is now pending.

A staff aide to Brown said that the Senate Watergate Committee is interested in any kind of legal action against the President or the administration instigated by a member of Congress.

He speculated that the investigators are looking for ideas for their own possible law suit over President Nixon's refusal to turn over certain tapes and documents.

Raindrops fall on W.E.; muggy days to continue

There is a chance of thundershowers today over nearby mountain and foothill areas but most Pomona Valley communities will have another hot and smoggy day without sprinkles to cool temperatures.

Ontario, Rialto and San Bernardino reported traces of sprinkles Tuesday from a weather system which centered in northern Mexico. Mountain areas near Big Bear reported .12 of an inch of rain from brief storms Tuesday. Yucaipa reported loud thunder but no rainfall during the afternoon.

Wilbur Shigihara of the National Weather Service office in Riverside said thundershowers over foothills and mountain areas is normal for this time of year and at times the moisture reaches into communities near the foothills.

He said the clouds that are bringing threat of moisture should dissipate by Thursday. Temperatures reached 92 degrees in Pomona Monday and highs of 92 degrees are forecast for today and Thursday. This morning's low was 62 degrees.

Both the San Bernardino and Los Angeles air pollution control districts forecast moderate smog for both county areas today. A community alert was called in Upland at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday when the oxidant reading reached .43 particles per million. The alert lasted for one hour and 45 minutes.

The peak reading in Los Angeles County was .34 in Azusa. Pomona reported a smoggy .33 ppm Tuesday afternoon.

Lightning struck and destroyed a tree in the San Gorgonio Wilderness of the San Bernardino National Forest Tuesday. Three men were flown into the inaccessible area and brought the fire under control with hand tools. Lightning also was the cause of a fire in the same area near Falls Creek Monday which burned about an acre. Some 45 men were flown in by helicopter to fight the blaze.

IBM fined in antitrust case

NEW YORK (UPI) — International Business Machines Corp., today was fined $150,000 a day for contempt of court until it turns over to the Federal Court documents demanded by the Justice Department in order to press its antitrust action against IBM.

Chief Judge David N. Edlestein found IBM guilty of contempt and ordered the fine in a pretrial proceeding. Justice Department lawyers had asked for a fine of 5 per cent of IBM's daily earnings, an estimated $177,000 a day. The company's lawyers had suggested a token fine of $100 a day.

Edelstein's order stated flatly that the court would not issue any stay of the order and attorneys in the case said a civil contempt order against a corporation in a pre-trial action cannot be appealed.

Demonstrations welcomed, says Watergate memo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — H. R. Haldeman wrote "good" and "great" next to notations on a memo saying violent and profane demonstrations could be expected when President Nixon and the Rev. Billy Graham appeared at a rally in Charlotte, N.C., last October.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., produced the memo at today's Senate Watergate committee hearing and said it showed that the Nixon White House welcomed demonstrations against the President because of the political backlash such events could inspire.

Haldeman, returning for a third day of testimony, said that was not the case, and insisted Weicker misinterpreted the memo. He acknowledged writing the word "good" alongside a sentence which said demonstrators at the Oct. 5 rally "will be violent" and "will have obscene signs."

Weicker said Haldeman wrote "great" next to a notation saying the demonstrations would be directed against Graham —the President's close personal friend —as well as Nixon.

The atmosphere at the hearing tensed while the memo was discussed. John J. Wilson, Haldeman's lawyer, insisted that Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., use his gavel when laughter erupted as Weicker read the memo.

"Mr. Chairman, I thought silence was to be enforced here!" Wilson called out.

"I wish you could tell me how to keep people from laughing," Ervin replied.

Haldeman said the reason he wrote "great" and "good" next to the anticipation of violence and obscenity was because the American people would thus come to understand that such demonstrations were organized, planned and evil —and not the casual, minor "off-the-cuff" events which he said reporters portrayed them as.

The memo also said that Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary; Gerald L. Warren, his assistant; and Patrick Buchanan, a presidential speechwriter, had expressed concern that "liberals" in the press were becoming aware that the White House had manipulated demonstrations to rebound to its own political advantage.

Weicker said Ronald H. Walker was the memo's author. He did not identify him.

His voice rising, the Republican senator said he wanted to know "exactly what mentality" in the White House would use the words "good" and "great" in anticipation of violence directed against the President.

"Senator, I think I can explain that, I think, very easily," Haldeman responded. He then gave his explanation — that he hoped the demonstration would highlight the White House's "very great" troubles with demonstrators in the 1972 campaign.

Ervin, a North Carolinian, said he attended the rally and it was "one of the most orderly meetings" he had ever attended. He said a federal judge had recently ruled that its organizers had used improper means to bar demonstrators from the arena where the rally was held.

Beef shortage closing in; Canadian beef sales climb

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Supermarket operators complained today that the beef shortage is closing in, and the meat industry said sales of Canadian-slaughtered beef —exempt from the price controls— are increasing.

The County Board of Supervisors, in a related move, voted to support a boycott movement which is asking all Americans not to buy anything at all next Tuesday.

The Western Meat Packers Association, representing packers in 11 states, said it was bringing action in federal court against the Cost of Living Council, charging that maintaining the price freeze on beef, while relaxing it for other meats, is unfair and discriminatory.

Richard Koster, president of the Market Basket food store chain, said a beef shortage "is real and it is critical. The cattle simply are not being brought to market."

Ralph Liebman, of the Ralphs supermarket chain, said beef supplies are getting "very tight" and that previously placed orders are not being filled in full." The store has enough inventory to keep selling beef "this week and probably next, but our ability to purchase meat for the week after next is the real question now."

Norm Mafit, of the Western Meat Packers Association, said that one of the nation's biggest supermarket chains "has only about 50 per cent of their normal requirements this week."

Mafit said that beef sold by American ranchers in Canadian slaughterhouses is selling in the Los Angeles area for about 92 cents a pound, 18 to 20 cents a pound over the ceiling on U.S. packers.

Imported meat is exempt from the price controls, he said, so the sale of Canadian slaughtered beef at higher prices is legal so long as the meat is identified as imported.

The Board of Supervisors voted to support the efforts of Fight Inflation Together, the housewives group that started what grew into the national meat boycott in April, to make next Tuesday "don't buy anything day."

Prescription-only basis called for in federal order

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) ordered today that high doses of vitamins A and D be placed on a prescription-only basis. It also laid down plans for other general restrictions on sale of vitamins.

The order on vitamins A and D takes effect in 60 days. The FDA issued a final order on the matter, the most controversial of its proposal. The other restrictions will take effect at the end of 1974.

The FDA said there was evidence that Vitamin A in heavy doses can cause pressure inside the skull that may mimic the symptoms of a brain tumor, and may also cause retarded growth in children. Vitamin D in high doses has also been known to retard mental and physical growth in children, the agency added.

The other major rule says that any vitamin, food supplement or food containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of any vitamin shall be classified as a drug.

Once classified as drugs such products may continue to be sold over the counter the way cough medicines and aspirins are now. But they will be subject to review by the FDA as drugs and some may later be put on a prescription basis or banned entirely.

The health food industry contends that some of the proposals would cause many vitamin products now on the market to disappear and would restrict a person's freedom to choose what medicine he wants to take.

FDA commissioner Alexander Schmidt rejected objections to the rules.

Schmidt said in a statement: "Much of the opposition is based on honest fears of concerned citizens," he said. "Some fear that the FDA is going to make certain vitamin pills unavailable or if available then only with a prescription and at a higher cost. Others fear that the FDA may infringe on their right to decide what they will eat."

"None of this is true. The single, most important purpose and effect of the regulation is to require full and honest labeling.

Effective 60 days from today, Vitamin A in doses above 10,000 international units and Vitamin D in doses above 400 international units will be subject to prescription sales only.

The effective date of the proposal on classifying some products with high vitamin content as drugs is Dec. 31, 1974, although any labels on vitamin products covered by the rule printed after this year must comply with the new rule.

Ban ordered

Another regulation states that vitamins in combination with substances which have no scientifically recognized nutritional value will be banned as of the end of next year.

The health food industry estimates that perhaps 90 per cent of such combination products will have to be reformulated and that an unknown number of them will disappear from the market because no proof can be offered of nutritional value.

Liz and Richard call it quits

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

A couple of good-looking, highly eligible millionaires came on the marriage market today.

As soon as certain formalities are completed, Elizabeth Taylor can seek a sixth husband and Richard Burton a third wife.

For the famous lovers who announced their intention of seeking a divorce Tuesday have often said they could never be content living alone again, since they have known the happiness of a devoted family life.

If anything ever happened, they used to say, they would want the surviving partner to get married again. And unless the unpredictable pair make up or divorce then remarry each other, they will certainly take other partners.

Burton and Miss Taylor are in Rome, where their romance began nearly a decade ago during the filming of "Cleopatra," but announcement of their divorce plans was made in New York by their attorney.

The announcement did not give a reason for the split—and did not mention Burton's drinking, which a spokesman said contributed to a brief separation earlier this month.

The bustup apparently occurred Monday night when Miss Taylor left the Roman villa owned by actress Sophia Loren and her producer husband, Carlo Ponti, and checked into the Grand Hotel there. Burton, a spokesman said, remained at the villa.

"They are very amiable toward each other and...no third party exists in either case," said Aaron Frosch, their attorney.

Another spokesman, press agent John Springer, said Frosch was expected to file divorce papers in Switzerland in the next couple of weeks.

The Burtons had been together in Rome for the last 11 days following a 17-day separation that Miss Taylor said was necessary because "maybe we loved each other too much."

Miss Taylor started work Monday on a film "The Driver's Seat" while Burton is scheduled to start work shortly on a film with Miss Loren.

Some lucky man will get in Elizabeth one of the world's most beautiful woman of her age, which is 41, and the mistress of considerable wealth.

The Burtons have commanded as much as $1 million each for their films. Since they work as often as possible, they surely have amassed one of the great show business fortunes.

Only Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, the shrewd and thrifty Cary Grant and one or two other actors have ever gathered more assets—even taking into account the huge sums the Burtons have given to charity.

But the qualifications are severe. Miss Taylor's first husband, heir to the Hilton Hotel fortunes, was too immature in her judgment. By the same token she rated his successor, Michael Wilding, as too mature. Husband No. 3, flamboyant producer Mike Todd, was her ideal—tough, masculine, an achiever as much as a talker. His death in a plane crash shattered her. Husband

Introduces bill to outlaw spying on civilians

Too much snooping by 'Big Brother'—Ervin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two separate moves are being proposed here to protect Americans against invasions of their privacy by "Big Brother" surveillance on the part of the government or others.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, introduced legislation Tuesday to outlaw spying on civilians by the military.

And a government advisory panel urged restraints on use of Social Security numbers and collection of information on individuals in computer data banks operated by government or private organizations.

Ervin's bill grew out of a three-year study by a Senate constitutional rights subcommittee which he heads. The Pentagon adopted regulations against military surveillance of ordinary civilians in 1971. But Ervin said disclosure of a White House domestic intelligence program during the Watergate investigation tells him that the potential for a return of the practice is there.

"The good faith of officials of the executive branch is not enough," Ervin said.

His subcommittee's report said: "At the height of the monitoring, the Army engaged over 1,500 plainclothes agents to collect information which was placed in scores of data centers around the country.... It was not unusual to find in the Army files details of one's membership, associations, remarks, published statements, attendance at meetings, personal finances, sexual activities, arrests, and personality quirks preserved in everlasting perpetuity."

The Army snooped on civilians with the stated aim of keeping track of those who might cause riots or demonstrations which it might be called upon to control. Ervin's bill would limit such surveillance to cases of criminal conduct on military installations and civilians seeking employment with the armed forces.

Meanwhile, an advisory committee of lawyers, educators, computer industry executives and others, reported Tuesday to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) that the "Big Brother" in George Orwell's book, "1984," may not remain entirely fiction.

It warned that increasing use of Social Security numbers and collection of credit information in data banks threatens an "information tyranny that could lock every citizen into his past."

It recommended legislation granting an individual the right to refuse to give his Social Security number to someone not entitled to it by federal law. It urged creation of a Federal Code of Fair Information Practice to outlaw any secret personal data-keeping systems.

"The public fear of a 'Big Brother' system," it said, "in effect a pervasive network of intelligence dossiers, focuses on the computer. But it includes other marvels of Twentieth Century engineering, such as the telephone tap, the wireless microphone, the automatic surveillance camera, and the rest of the modern investigator's technical equipage."

A 24-page appendix to the report accused former Attorney General John N. Mitchell of fostering invasions of privacy by increasing the government's use of wiretapping and by pressing for practices such as preventive detention and "noknock" police entries.

It said Mitchell greatly expanded federal surveillance of citizens thought to be threats to internal security, justifying his action on the theory that the executive has inherent and discretionary power to protect itself."

Panel chairman Willis H. Ware said the appendix, written by the Nongovernmental Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, did not necessarily reflect the opinion of the panel but was included as "a paper that deserves to be read."

Inmate stabbed to death in new prison violence

McALESTER, Okla. (UP) — Convicts at the Oklahoma State Prison stabbed to death a fellow inmate and severely beat another during the night in the prison yard, officials reported today.

The new violence occurred within sight of highway patrol officers and National Guardsmen who were unable to reach the disturbance in time, prison officials said.

But they said guards were able to capture the prisoner suspected of the knifing murder. The guards also aided other prisoners who were being attacked.

The death was the fourth reported by prison officials since the beginning of violence last Friday. The rubble of that riot was still being cleared and officials said they plan to remove all 1,700 convicts from the prison so it can be repaired.

Almost 700 convicts have remained in the muddy prison yard since the violence began. They said they did not participate in the rioting and claimed they would be killed by more militant inmates if they returned to their cells.

Ed Hardy, an aide to Gov. David Hall, said the incident during the night occurred in a group of 750 disgruntled prisoners who were kept separate from the other 670 in the prison yard.

"They did observe and isolate the man who committed the killing. It is expected he will be charged," Hardy said. "Another prisoner was beaten way back in the pack and Oklahoma highway patrolmen and National Guardsmen were unable to get to him in time to rescue him. They did remove him from the crowd of inmates."

WALTER ULBRICHT

Ulbricht, man who built East Germany, dies at 80

BERLIN (UPI) — Walter Ulbricht, East German chief of state and founding father of Communist East Germany, died today of heart failure, the East German government announced. He was 80.

Ulbricht suffered a stroke July 19 and earlier official East German reports said he had been confined to his bed in a luxurious stone villa inside a guarded compound for party and government elite near the town of Liepnith.

Although critically ill he continued to receive a number of important Communist visitors at his bedside.

Although Ulbricht was forced out of power as East Germany's Communist Party first secretary in 1971, his nation's leaders treated him in death as they had in his waning years as an honored Old Bolshevik and national hero. The death announcement involved the entire Communist leadership and said:

"The Central Committee of the Socialist Unity (Communist Party of Germany, the Council of State of the German Democratic Republic, the Council of Ministers, the Presidium of Parliament and the Presidium of the National Council of the Peoples' Front announce with deep sorrow that Politburo member and Chief of State of East Germany—our Comrade Walter Ulbricht—died today at 12:55 p.m. EDT."

A follow-up medical bulletin said "death was caused by heart failure." He suffered a previous heart attack in November 1970.

Ulbricht, whose goateed and bespectacled face became the very symbol of hardline East German communism during his quarter-century of power, is survived by his widow Lotte — herself a Communist with old Bolshevik credentials — and an adopted daughter, Beate.

Death found him at a moment when East Berlin was a scene of international Communist gayety, its streets festooned with flags and jammed with thousands of young persons attending the 10th international Youth Festival.

Ulbricht was a nimble, wily politician who survived every switch in Soviet policy and outlasted every other Soviet bloc leader.

He will go down in history as the man who built the Berlin Wall, but he also will be remembered as the father of the German Democratic Republic (GDR) and the man who kept Germany divided after World War II.

He took a land ravaged by war and Russian reparations — in which entire factories were moved to the Soviet Union — and built East Germany into the ninth greatest industrial power in the world.

Then he lived to see fulfillment of his goal of recognition by the West when, on Dec. 21, 1972, a treaty was signed between the two Germanys recognizing the permanent division of the country.

Ulbricht arrived in Berlin from Russia on April 30, 1945, in the closing days of World War II, following the collapse of Adolf Hitler's Third Reich. Premier Josef Stalin had ordered him to make Berlin Communist and he almost did.

He survived purge after purge with the support of the Kremlin and did not lay down his job as first secretary of the Communist party until age and ill health forced him to.

Even then, he nominated his successor, his longtime protege Erich Honecker, and retained his post as chief of state. He also was given the new, honorary title, that of party chairman.

Economic advisers rule out controls in price stability

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation faces a period in which there will be a strong tendency toward higher prices but, in time, stability can be achieved without controls, President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said today.

In a joint statement, Chairman Herbert Stein and members Marina Whitman and Gary Seevers conceded they did not know how long prices would keep rising.

Testifying before the Congress' Joint Economic Committee, the three said, "We believe that if we follow prudent fiscal and monetary policies we will reach a situation of reasonable price stability without wage and price controls.

"Moreover, we believe that long-continued controls will do great harm to the economy, a fact of which there is increasing awareness."

The council members acknowledged there is "a gap between where we are now and this condition of reasonable stability which we seek and expect to reach."

They said the administration had "tried to make it clear to the American people that it would be neither possible nor desirable to repress all of these prospective price increases."

The statement added: "Nevertheless, we think it is feasible and desirable to slow them down and reduce somewhat their ultimate dimension."

State economy regarded healthy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Despite rising living costs, California's economy has expanded at a healthy pace in recent months, according to a Security Pacific National Bank report released this week.

The report attributed the growth to continued gains in employment, reduced joblessness and further increases in consumer income and spending.

Security Pacific's seasonally adjusted business index for California averaged 158.1 during the first six months of the year, a 10 per cent increase over the figure for the first half of 1972. (The index is based on the year 1967 equalling 100).

number four, singer Eddie Fisher, she married on the rebound from despair.

Burton she regards in the Mike Todd mold. Every inch a man, a good intellect, a fine actor, fond of children. A combination of Todd and Burton would make an ideal sixth husband from Miss Taylor's point of view—for Mike drank very little, a quality she has come to appreciate even more with the passing of time.

Some lucky girl will get in Burton a handsome 47-year-old who is undoubtedly one of the best actors of the day, though he has tended lately to spread his talents too thin in too many films.

The girl will have great beauty, for Burton is used to beautiful people. A good drinker is required, a stay-up-late type realistic enough to accept that he is attractive to women and vigilant enough to see that his relations with, say, his leading ladies, do not escalate beyond the artistic.

In return she will have a luxurious, interesting life lived in the many cities where Burton's film making takes him, with holidays aboard a yacht and home, when they are home, in a luxurious pad in Switzerland.

It isn't often two such extraordinary people become eligible at the same time. But only paragons need apply.

School president admits he ordered bugging on campus

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A trade school president told a state assembly hearing Tuesday that he authorized bugging his own office and student meetings because he feared for his life.

Dr. Fred J. Brinkman, president of Los Angeles Trade Technical College, testified before a subcommittee investigating electronic surveillance and invasion of privacy on campuses of the Community College District.

Brinkman testified there was "great turmoil" on campus in 1971 and he authorized the eavesdropping by campus police because "there was concern for my life."

He said he received a letter signed "progressive students" that called him an "academic fascist," accused him of racial discrimination and gave him less than a week to quit.

The school's student body is 75 per cent black and Chicano. Failure to comply "might cause the loss of your fool head," the letter said, according to Brinkman.

Other witnesses have testified Brinkman was threatened with bombings and told that ground glass might be placed in his food.

Ernest Monteverde, chief of campus police, testified that on two occasions he bugged meetings of the Black Students Union on orders from Brinkman. When Brinkman met with black student leaders, Monteverde said, the meeting was taped by two recording machines, one in sight but the other hidden. When the BSU met in a student council conference room, the meeting was recorded by means of a microphone hidden in a wall clock, Monteverde said.

Brinkman and Monteverde were granted immunity from prosecution for their testimony to the hearing, but several civil suits based on the bugging incidents are pending against the college.

Monteverde, under questioning, said he authorized the bugging of his office because he suspected that officers of his own force might be stealing documents from his files.

Monteverde said one of his officers, Sigsbee James Skipper, had recorded student conversations without Monteverde's permission.

Skipper, who served 22 years on the Los Angeles Police Department before becoming a campus officer, said he had no experience with electronic surveillance. He said he was involved in five incidents of such surveillance.

The hearing ended on a mysterious note with the testimony of Capt. Daniel Lavery of the Pierce College campus police. He said that a member of his force had admitted to him that he had stolen documents from the office of a Pierce College professor.

Warren adminished Lavery not to speak about the incident except to law enforcement officials.

Nun to become officer in Navy

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Sister Elizabeth M. Edmunds of Shamokin, Pa., will become the first nun to be commissioned as an officer in the U.S. Navy.

A member of the Sisters of Mercy, Sister Elizabeth, 32, now attends the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

A navy spokeman said Tuesday the navy will pay the nun's way through medical school and she will then come into the service as a doctor with the rank of lieutenant.

The spokeman said Sister Elizabeth, who has been a nun since 1959, is in her second year of medical school. She will do her residency in the navy in the field of family practice.

Ray to stay in cell while suit argued

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — James Earl Ray, convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., will remain in his prison cell while attorneys argue motions in connection with a $300,000 libel suit filed by Ray.

U.S. District Judge Harry Wellford Tuesday ruled that Ray would not have to appear personally for an Aug. 17 hearing in the suit, because it would cause "further notoriety and expense."

Ray filed suit against author Gerald Franks, the Doubleday Publishing Co., state Court of Criminal Appeals Judge Robert Dwyer and Dist. Atty. Gen. Phil Canale Jr. of Memphis in connection with Franks' book "An American Death."

Ray contends the book contains libelous statements based on information obtained by Franks from Dwyer and Canale, including allegations that he was involved with prostitutes and hated blacks.

Beauties preview USO tour show

NEW YORK (UPI) — Miss America, Terry Ann Meeuwsen, and six state beauty finalists gave a preview to newsmen Tuesday of the show they will put on for U.S. servicemen during a USO tour of overseas military bases.

The girls performed an alluring song and dance number called "Come Rain or Come Shine." They leave soon for a three-week tour of bases in Korea and Okinawa.

The group includes Dianne Wagner, Miss California; Cathy Lawton, Miss Delaware; Becky Graham, Miss Indiana; Cindy Sikes, Miss Kansas; Kathy Neff, Miss Maryland; and Sandra Herring, Miss Oregon.

Protest skipper released by French

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — Skipper David Moodie was released from custody Tuesday by French Naval officials who had seized his yacht two weeks ago as it sailed into waters marked for France's South Pacific nuclear tests.

Moodie, of Alstead Center, N.H., accompanied by a couple from New Zealand, entered the area as a protest against the nuclear test series that began July 21. When they refused to leave, French officials took them custody aboard a warship and towed the yacht, Fri, out of the danger zone.

American teacher expelled by Greeks

ATHENS (UPI) — Greek officials expelled Timothy Bilodeau, a schoolteacher from Massachusetts, from the country Tuesday after arresting him for carrying a sign urging people to vote against President George Papadopoulos in the government's constitutional referendum.

Bilodeau, a 23-year-old Harvard graduate from Milton, Mass., was taken into custody Sunday as Greeks voted in favor of a government proposal which confirmed Papadopoulos as president, abolished the monarchy, and made Greece a republic.

For Claremont police department

Pope gives low bid

CLAREMONT — A base bid of $475,500 has made P. H. Pope Contractors, Cucamonga, the apparent low bidder for construction of the city's 10,000-square-foot police department on Bonita Avenue between Berkeley and Cornell avenues.

City officials opened eight bids ranging up to $515,900 Tuesday afternoon in the City Council chambers.

Architect Ted Criley of Criley-McDowell said the bids all were "within the ballpark."

The Cucamonga firm's base bid was just $1,500 lower than the second bidder, Emery C. Jackson Co., Ontario which bid $477,000.

Other base bids are as follows: Earle T. Casler, Upland, $486,281; Martin J. Jaska, Pomona, $488,900; Steed Bros. Builders, Alhambra $495,790; K R W Corp., La Habra, $503,800; Noyse Roach, Los Angeles $507,700; and Casner Construction Co., Temple City, $515,900.

Three alternate bids also were included by the bidders. Pope bid $1,340 for bulletproof glass windows added to the base bid, $4,166 deducted from the base bid for deletion of an east-west pergola at the front of the building and the planter walls north of the pergola; and $7,338 deducted from the base bid for deletion of a storage building holding evidence.

Criley said the city engineer's estimate for the facility was $448,500.

Deputy City Manager Norman King said that awarding of the contract by the City Council depends on the city's receiving the Office of Emergency Services' approval of a matching grant of federal funds of $50,000 to $70,000 for an emergency operation center in the new police station.

Claremont voters on Oct. 19, 1971 supported a $700,000 bond election to construct the new station.

At the time, it was noted that the rpesent 1,200-square foot police station has no protected communication center, and that the present saion was designed in 1948 to serve a ciy of 4,000 persons.

Criley said the new station will cost $100,000 more than an ordinary building because of requirements of the U. S. Department of Defense to make the new building "radiation proof." One requirement is a 19-inch-thick concrete roof.

Ontario takes suspects in L. V. robbery

LA VERNE — Two young Palm Springs men arrested in connection with a drive-in dairy holdup here Monday are being turned over to Ontario police after the robbery vicitms here were unable to identify them.

The men are John Scott, 20, and his brother, Willie Scott, 19.

The men were arrested by Pomona police several hours after the Inland Dairy here at 2055 White Ave. was held up. Pomona police said the pair was driving a car similar to one seen near the robbery and that the suspects appeared similar to the men who robbed dairy owners Arthur and Mary Mastro. A loaded pistol was in the car, police said.

Pomona police today said they planned to release the Scotts to Ontario police who want to question them about several robbries in Ontario. Pomona officers said they do not plan to press a charge of possessing a loaded pistol in the car against the Scotts at this time.

Officer claims he saw two inmates stabbing victim

ONTARIO — Two defendants in an inmate murder trial were seen stabbing another inmate Dec. 17 at the California Institution for Men by an on-duty correctional officer who testified Tuesday in West Valley Sueprior Court.

Correctional officer Ronald Gorski, the second prosecution witness to take the stand in the murder trial for CIM inmates Frank Phillip Mendoza, 28, Raymond L. Contreras, 35, and Juan Figueroa Colon 29, said he saw two of the defendants "trading off a shiny object" while attacking inmate Rudolph Cadena on the second tier of Palm Hall in the Southern Reception-Guidance Center.

The three defendants are accused of murdering Cadna and seriously wounding inmate Gilbert R. Sandoval during an altercation on the tier. Cadena was stabbed more than 50 times by his assailants and then with Sandoval, who was also stabbed trying to help him, fell or were thrown over the tier.

Monday, correctional officer Kenneth Maxwell testified he saw Mendoza throw Sandoval over the tier.

Gorski said that he was on the second tier when he heard inmates fighting. He said he sounded his alarm whistle and saw Mendoza and Colon fighting with Cadena on the tier. He said that he first saw Mendoza stabbing Cadena with a shiny object while Colon was holding him.

He testified that Mendoza than traded positions with Colon, and Colon began stabbing Cadena. He said a crowd began to gather around the inmates and he left to let the other officers inside.

During the trial Tuesday, a special hearing on motions was held outside the presence of the jury by Superior Court Judge James E. Cunningham. Motions for a mistrial, severance of trial, and suppression of evidence made by Contreras defense attorney Frank Batchelor were denied.

Batchelor asked for the hearing after explaining to the court he had received a 17-page document containing statements from CIM inmate Richard Smith implicating his client in the murder from the District Attorney's office only that morning. He said the document was a transcript taken from a recorded interview conducted by the Chino police with Smith during the murder investigation. He said Smith claimed that he had heard Contreras admit taking part in the stabbings of Cadena and Sandoval in Palm Hall.

Batchelor accused Deputy Dist. Atty. Kenneth Kloepfer of withholding the document from the defense until trial despite a number of letters for discovery of evidence sent earlier by the defense.

Batchelor said that if the document were introduced by the prosecution, he might have to change his defense strategy.

Batchelor asked for a mistrial so he could prepare a new defense, or a severence of trials so his client could have an individual trial at a later date. Batchelor also asked that the document be supressed as evidence if the motions for mistrial or severance were denied. Attorney Joseph Johnston, defending Mendoza, joined batchelor in the motion for mistrial.

Kloepfer said he did not know of the document until Monday night when it was brought to his attention by a Chino police officer. He said if he had known the document to be as important as it was, he would certainly have asked for it sooner.

Manager of Broncos addresses Rotary Club

POMONA — The Denver Broncos is a team on the upgrade in the American Football League with prospects of winning twice as many games this year as last season, the assistant general manager, Fred Gehrke, told members of the Rotary Club on Tuesday.

The reason for the improved outlook this season is that the Broncos have greater depth in most positions than ever before, Gehrke said.

According to Gehrke, coach John Ralston is telling his players that they can win 10 games this fall, twice as many as last season's record, and "they are beginning to believe it."

Gehrke said that the only way to build a football team is through the college draft. The Broncos have 10 scouts who work year around.

Gehrke said that pro football has come a long way since his time as a player for the Los Angeles Rams. In those days, he said, a player brought part of his uniform with him.

Today it costs about $250 to outfit a player, players travel by plane rather than by train, and they no longer have to carry their own equipment around. Trainers are now provided to pick up all the players' gear, Gehrke said.

He said that pro players are bigger and better than ever and that the process of contract signing is so sophisticated that players have agents to represent them in salary negotiations.

Congressman on 'enemy' list seeks impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Massachusetts congressman on the White House "enemies list" has introduced a resolution calling for the impeachment of President Nixon.

Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., a Jesuit priest, said in introducing the resolution Tuesday that "I have come to the point where I must follow my convictions and my conscience and recommend that the House of Representatives pursue its duty under Article 2 Section 4 of the Constitution which provides for the impeachment of the President."

House Democratic leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, also from Massachusetts, described Drinan as "an outspoken liberal and well-known anti-Nixonite" and said he was "the worst person in the House to take such an action."

Drinan said four recent disclosures alone justify impeachment, but the one that pushed him over the brink to introduction of his resolution was the revelation that Nixon "conducted a totally secret air war in Cambodia for 14 months prior to April 30, 1970."

On that date, Drinan said, Nixon told the American people that for the previous five years the United States had "scrupulously" observed Cambodia's neutrality "with the full knowledge that he personally ordered thousands of B52 air raids over Cambodia" during that time.

Other Nixon matters which justify impeacehment apart from the Watergate break-in, Drinan said, "include taping White House conversations without the knowledge of participants, impounding money appropriated by Congress for various programs, and establishing "a national police force accountable only to himself."

Drinan quickly picked up praise for his resolution although he admitted in an interview with UPI that his colleagues were reluctant to endorse it. He said they favored waiting for a conclusion of the Senate Watergate hearings .

"But only the House has jurisdiction" in an impeachment proceeding, he said and pointed out "the Watergate committee can't get into the question of impeachment."

Most of the House members who shared his viewpoint settled for measures calling for a committee of inquiry to look into the possibility of impeachment. "I'm inclined to think a number of them agree with it (his resolution) somehow," Drinan said.

One of those was Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey, R-Calif., who said he hoped the resolution "will result in a commencement of investigation by the House Judiciary committee leading to referral to the House."

Drinan's resolution appeared, however, to have little favor in the Judiciary Committee, to which it was referred, or with the House Democratic leadership.

O'Neill, who described Drinan to UPI as the "worst person" to introduce the measure, said he tried to talk Drinan out of it, or at least into waiting until the Senate hearings were concluded and a determination made by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Rep. Peter Rodino ,D-N.J., Judiciary Committee chairman, indicated he was in no hurry to begin an investigation or hearing into the impeachment resolution.

"At this present time, we are just looking at it," he said of the entire matter of Nixon's conduct in office. "This is so grave I want to act responsibly so I am just going to assemble the information available and I have been doing this."

Drinan could have taken a faster route and avoided the Judiciary Committee by standing on the House floor and demanding an immediate vote on impeachment. But he said he had no doubt but that he would have lost with that procedure. ..

Europe to tie in with U.S. space program

BRUSSELS (UPI) — After 10 years of trying to run its own independent space program, Europe decided today to link up with the U.S. post-Apollo program.

Ministers of 11 European nations agreed after 13 hours bargaining to put up enough money to build the $370 million Sortie Lab, a key component in the $5.5 billion U.S. Spacelab project. Contracts between the American government and the European Space Research Organization (ERSC) are to be signed Aug. 15.

Only 79 per cent of the money is guaranteed, ministers said, because Italy, Norway and Sweden were unable to give ironclad promises they could contribute their combined share of 21 per cent.

Because of this, the contract will contain a nullifying clause if the three nations fail to guarantee the funds by Sept. 18. But the ministers said they doubted this would happen.

Michael D. Heseltine of Britain said there was "too much momentum" for Italy, Sweden and Norway to back out now.

The European work will be carried out over the next eight years on Spacelab, which succeeds Skylab.

The ministers also agreed to set up a new European Space agency (ESA) by next April 1. They gave the go-ahead for a maritime satellite to which Britain will contribute 56 per cent of the funds and a rocket to which France will supply 62 per cent of the funds.

Over the past decade, Europeans have spent more than $1 billion on cooperative space projects. They have nothing to show for it but six unsuccessful rocket launchings and a series of satellites put into orbit by U.S. rockets. German and British refusal to spend more on the rockets forced the rethinking that ended in today's agreement.

France insisted on building a rocket to keep European independence, in case the United States should someday deny Europe the use of its launchers. Britain said this was "unnecessary" but agreed, as part of the package, to contribute money to it if France contributed to the British satellite. France agreed.

Apodaca has served time before for sex offenses. A computer analysis of his past crimes helped lead police to him in connection with the recent offenses.

Maryland gives million dollar lottery prize

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Maryland awarded its first million dollar lottery prize late Tuesday to the night manager of a donut shop who said he would use the money to take a trip to the West Coast "by way of London, Paris and maybe Cairo."

When 30-year old Paul McNabb of Owings Mills heard his name called out, he leaped off his feet, hugged a nearby lottery hostess, and fainted. Gov. Marvin Mandel wore a broad grin when he handed McNabb a $50,000 check. McNabb will receive a similar amount every year for the next 20 years.

Senate okays farm, food stamp measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed the huge, four-year farm and food stamp bill, responding to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz's statement he was dropping his plans to recommend a veto.

The measure, passed Tuesday night by the Senate, was shipped to the House, where it was expected to receive final consideration before the congressional recess begins at the end of the week. Republican leaders reported they now had an "understanding" that President Nixon would sign the compromise.

House backers of the ban could try to restore it when the measure returns to the House, despite a warning by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

FTC puts new wrinkle into wrinkle remover

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) said today a facial wrinkle remover treatment for sale in various parts of the country may be dangerous, offers only a temporary cure and may be more expensive than similar treatment by a plastic surgeon.

It also announced that it had won a temporary court order to stop the company involved— Forever Young Inc., Denver, Colo.—from engaging in what it said was false advertising.

The agency issued a proposed complaint which said the treatment involves the use of carbolic acid to peel off the outer layer of skin, and that such a process may be poisonous. It said one patient allegedly died after the treatment.

But the company's advertising, the complaint said, does not mention that pain, discomfort or danger may be involved in the treatment.

"In reality," the FTC said, "The pain can be so severe that patients are always sedated or anesthesized before the application of acid and may require medication for days, weeks or months afterward to reduce pain and other discomforts."

The complaint also alleges that the treatment carries the risk of infection and may scar the skin: that it lasts only from 16 to 18 months before the natural aging process show up again; and that plastic surgeons throughout the nation use the same process under stricter medical control for a fraction of the $2,500 that Forever Young charges for it.

Haldeman ruled supreme at W.H.

By United Press International

When you talk about loyalty to a president, you talk about Harry Robbins Haldeman.

"Every President needs his s.o.b., and I'm Nixon's," Bob Haldeman was fond of saying.

His detractors, and they seemed legion, complained that he was too pluperfect an s.o.b.

His supporters and they often seemed few, said that if Haldeman didn't exist Nixon would have had to invent him.

But Haldeman cared not for his detractors nor his supporters. He saw as his job to protect the President, to shield him from the favor-seekers and the power-brokers —the pests.

Detractors and supporters alike said he did that job well.

Those who liked him said his was a necessary function if the President was not to get bogged down in minutia.

Those who disliked him said he was too successful, that Haldeman caused Nixon to operate out of an ivory tower and to run the country as a benevolent patriarch who didn't trust his children.

Haldeman, 46, once the strongest man in the White House next to the President, has fallen victim to the Watergate scandal. On April 30, with deepest regret and with public laudings for their loyalty and ability, Nixon accepted the resignations of Haldeman and his UCLA roommate, John D. Ehrlichman.

"Hans" and "Fritz," as Haldeman and Ehrlichman were called—but not to their faces—were Nixon's chief of staff and chief domestic adviser respectively. They tendered their resignations following a rash of published reports that they may have been involved in the planning and cover-up of the Watergate bugging.

There were few sorrowful expressions at the White House or on Capitol Hill when the news broke. Crewcut, formidable-looking Haldeman had won a reputation for the ruthless exercise of power and unquestioning loyalty to Nixon. His protective shield around the President became known as the "Berlin Wall."

He managed the President's time, personally cleared everyone who wanted to see the President—even Cabinet officials—and controlled all communications to the Oval Office.

With the President's acquiescence, he ruled supreme and delivered the bad news that Nixon did not want to personally handle—such as firing 2,000 top-level government officials the day after the landslide election.

Haldeman had served the President since they began an association in the 1956 campaign when Nixon sought reelection for vice president.

Four years later, Haldeman took time off as vice president of the J. Walter Thompson Co., to help direct Nixon's losing presidential race to John F. Kennedy. Since that first campaign, Haldeman had just two professional loves—the advertising business where he handled accounts for Seven-Up and Black Flag insecticide, and Richard Milhous Nixon. He joined Nixon again in the winning 1968 campaign.

He was considered the prototype of the "ad man" and brought with him other Californians from his firm, including Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, to fill top White House positions.

Haldeman believed so thoroughly in the doctrine of loyalty to his President that he bore with silence things that other men in his position might have resented.

He reportedly once told a close friend that he wasted hours dealing with "all the bitching and all the demands" of Mrs. Nixon and the President's two daughters. But he added quickly and cheerfully that if it made Nixon's life any easier, he was delighted to do it.

Former presidential confidant Robert Finch once said that Haldeman doesn't have a jolly, back-slapping relationship with Nixon, that it is "a very serious relationship."

Nobody claims to know Haldeman well, even his close friends. His mother, Mrs. Harry F. Haldeman; his sister, Mrs. Francis Raine; and his brother, Thomas Haldeman—all of Los Angeles—refuse to discuss him.

"I don't think I can think of anything I did or he did that is interesting at all," says his brother. "He's very human, though."

His sister Betsy says "I really don't know anything to tell you" about Haldeman.

Haldeman married Joanne Horton in 1949, whom he had known at UCLA. They both had been active politically on campus. The Haldemans have two daughters and two sons, ranging in age from 12 to 21.

Supplier rejects order

White House feeling filet mignon pinch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's kitchen has not yet felt the beef shortage, but one White House supplier said Tuesday he wants it to know of the pinch.

Bernard Goldstein, president of District Hotel Supply, Inc., one of the White House meat suppliers, turned down an order from the staff mess for 15 pounds of filet mignon and New York strip steak Monday.

Goldstein has been supplying the White House for 16 years. He said he informed Ron Jackson, chief steward of the Navy-run White House kitchen that he will no longer be able to sell him "the finest cuts of steaks" for the duration of the meat shortage.

"What they want is the finest," said Goldstein. His filet sells for $6 per pound and strip steaks for $5.00 per pound.

"I asked them not to order these," Goldstein said. "I asked them to order lamb, ground beef and pork. Anything not covered by the controls."

Later, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said "the gentlemen in charge of purchasing beef" for the White House "find themselves in the same position as everyone else."

Goldstein said he didn't think the beef he was getting was of the quality that should be sent to the White House. "Supplies are tight but it's a matter of principle," he said. "I asked them not to order items which they have caused to be critical."

Goldstein said that the White House is still a customer even though he told them that he was "planning to call the press in to complain."

Helen McClain Smith, the First Lady's press secretary, said as for the Nixon family's meat requirements, "we've had no problem whatsoever. Our kitchen has not been turned down."

For tonight's state dinner honoring Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, the Nixon's are serving duckling as the main course, Mrs. Smith said that menu was planned a week ago.

Fugitive nabbed by FBI agents

HONOLULU (UPI) — Scott R. Cade, 24, has been arrested by FBI agents and charged with unlawful flight to avoid confinement in Oklahoma.

Agents said Cade was arrested Monday on a Jan. 4 warrant issued in Oklahoma City.

He was accused of fleeing to avoid a five to seven year prison term after conviction on marijuana charges in Lawton, Okla.

Agents said he had been employed at the Aquarius Theater as an entertainer. The theater runs advertisements promoting sex shows.

Gals hose restaurant over some leggy tables

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) Are table legs controversial?

Yes, say some Bay Area feminists, if they look like Betty Grable's.

These women of the 70s oppose the new decor at a Union Square restaurant, "What This Country Needs," where shapely wooden gams uphold the tables.

Owner Tom McAteer says "those sort of legs were part of the good things of the 20s and the 30s, and that's the style of this restaurant.

"In those days women were preoccupied with leg care, legs were the thing," McAteer said. "Women felt they were a very important part of their image."

But some of today's women are offended by the former hosiery forms now used as furniture.

"Women are trying to get away from having their bodies viewed as sex objects," said Bonnie Baskin, public relations director of the University Art Museum at the University of California at Berkeley.

Another feminist reported seeing men feeling the table legs and she said she wouldn't think of eating there.

Others have made their feelings about the legs known in more obvious ways.

McAteer said that last week someone broke in and pasted hair on all the legs. Other people have drawn tattoos on them.

"I don't understand what all this trouble is about," McAteer lamented.

Firm sues magazine

'Godfather' caption suit

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Emprise Corp., a Buffalo based frim, Tuesday filed a $50 million suit in state Supreme Court here against the publisher of Sports Illustrated Magazine for a May, 1972 story linking the firm with underworld financial dealings.

The suit was brought against Time Inc., publisher of the sports weekly, for a May 29, 1972 issue which carried a cover photograph of the late Louis M. Jacobs, founder of the concession firm, under the caption "The Godfather of Sports."

The action, brought by Jacobs' sons Jeremy and Max, charges the cover "implicitly asserted that the elder Mr. Jacobs had been head of a Mafia-type organization in the sports world."

The suit, filed with the Erie County Clerk, claims the article falsely stated that Jacobs and Emprise had "in return for extended concession rights, advanced large sums of money to numerous persons" identified as "Mafia figures, mobsters, Mafia dons and hoods."

The story, according to the suit, resulted in a "substantial loss" of revenues and business opportunities.

The suit seeks $5 million in compensatory damages and $15 million punitive damages for Emprise and $10 million in compensatory and punitive damages for both Jacobs' brothers.

Emprise maintains charges of underworld involvement were "wholly false, without foundation, scandalous, defamatory and libelous."

Emprise filed a $20 million suit last month against Rep. Sam Steiger of Arizona and two competing concession firms, alleging that they conspired to destory Emprise.

Eight killed as car goes off bridge

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Eight Pine Bluff, Ark., residents were killed Friday when their car plunged off an interstate bridge in what police described as the worst single car accident in Nashville history.

"It was a horrible scene," said Metro Police Sgt. Lwrry Loftis. "Bodies were scattered everywhere."

Investigators said the 1971 sedan was traveling north on Interstate 65 when it plowed up more than 50 feet of guardrail and plunged off the Silliman Evans Bridge on the banks of the Cumberland River.

The automobile smashed to the ground 90 feet below, hurling some of the passengers out and trapping others in the wreckage.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Pernetta Brown, 56, driver of the car; Mrs. Erma Rayford, 36; Mrs. Georgia Glover, 28; Pernetta Tate, 9; Johnetta Glover, 7; Linda Rayford, 7; and Paula and Paul Rayford, 3, twins.

A five-year-old boy in the car, Gregory Rayford, was admitted to general hospital in serious condition with a broken arm and smashed pelvis.

Move governor from state capitol, suggests solon

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Sen. Peter H. Behr says the legislature's building space problem might be solved if the governor moves out of the golden-domed state Capitol instead of the lawmakers.

"The governor's moving out of the Capitol is one alternative to finding more space for the legislature—and an option I don't think has been seriously considered," Behr said Tuesday in a telephone interview.

"I don't want to get in a feud," the Tiburon lawmaker said. "But it would seem that his (the governor's) need to be in the Capitol is less than ours."

California legislative leaders currently are considering a plan to construct a new twintower Capitol to house the legislature.

But Behr said he was "not convinced we need an entirely new, larger building." He said if the governor and perhaps other nonlegislative officers were moved out of the Capitol, the legislature then would have "more than ample room."

He also said additional floors could be added to the west wing of the Capitol when it is rebuilt to make it safe in an earthquake. The century-old domed section of the Capitol currently has extremely high ceilings.

"I feel it's not a bad time to tighten our belts and live within our space and money," Behr said. "I personally don't think we are all that crowded in the Capitol. You can always use more space. The room we need often expands by the availability of more space."

Dick Gregory quits clubs for his public

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dick Gregory announced Tuesday he will leave the nightclub circuit after 15 years of standup comedy appearances but will continue doing college concerts and lectures.

Gregory, 40, said in a statement his final nightclub show will be Saturday night at Pall's Mall in Boston. The show will be filmed for television release and recorded for an album.

"I'm retiring for two reasons," Gregory said. "I find that in speaking to young people about the dangers of drugs and alcohol that there is a conflict with my nightclub work where I'm saying, in effect, 'Come on in and have a drink.'

-And second, it keeps me up too late depriving me of the time to give service to my fellow human beings."

Gregory said he has not "eaten a bite of solid food" since beginning a fast more than two years ago in protest against American involvement in Indochina. He said he will consider breaking the fast after the Aug. 15 cutoff date for bombing in Cambodia.

Gregory said he plans to travel to West Africa later in the year where the lives of 10 million persons are threatened by famine.

He said that "we as Americans, as well as the people around the world, must devote personal time and service to stop this. Americans throw away enough food every day to feed those people so that there would be no famine."

Illinois GOP visitor lauds welfare rules

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Republican chairman of an Illinois legislative committee Tuesday praised California's "reformed" welfare system as leading the nation and said he was impressed that it "helped the needy, not the greedy."

Sen. Don Moore of Cook County, chairman of the legislative advisory committee on public assistance, was heading a delegation of 10 legislators for a five-day study of various aspects of California's welfare system.

He said the visit, which will be followed by a study of welfare in Washington State, was in preparation of implementing "flat grant" welfare regulations in Illinois and possbly consideration of other changes.

Legislation was recently enacted which allows Illinois to develop a flat grant system instead of calculating numerous and costly variables for each recipient, Moore said.

At a small news briefing, Moore said there was "no question" that California had truly reformed its system.

He was joined by U.S. Welfare Commissioner Robert C. Carleson, a former California welfare official and one of the engineers of Gov. Ronald Reagan's 1971 reforms.

Carleson described Illinois as a "problem" state regarding welfare. "If we're going to solve the national problem, we're going to have to solve the problem in Illinois," he said.

In addition to flat grants, Moore said he was interested in California's system of insuring that fathers support their children, its computer system of double checking eligibility and programs requiring welfare recipients to participate in training or work.

Promotion fills empty job at top of water agency

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — John R. Teerink, deputy director of the Department of Water Resources the past six years, Tuesday was appointed to succeed director William R. Gianelli, who resigned.

Teerink, who was in charge of aqueduct design for the $3 billion California Water Project, will take over the directorship Sept. 1, subject to state Senate confirmation.

"John Teerink, as deputy director for the past six years, has been closely associated with the plans, policies and operations that have been established by Bill Gianelli," said Gov. Ronald Reagan in announcing the appointment.

"He is the logical choice to succeed Bill," the governor added.

Teerink joined the department in 1946 and as a water resources engineer he participated in all phases of planning for the California Water Project.

Prior to his appointment as deputy director, he served as district engineer for the water resources southern California district in Los Angeles for two years.

The 52-year-old Republican has been responsible for the department's programs for new water sources from desalting, waste water reclamation and geothermal energy.

Gianelli, 54, a Democrat, announced his resignation Monday. He was an outspoken critic of certain conservationist activities and at one time called his environmental critics "Chicken Little emotionalists."

Gianelli said he felt his job was completed since surplus northern California water had been successfully transported to southern California through the massive water project.

The project, dedicated May 18, involves 21 dams, 519 miles of aqueduct and 21 miles of tunnel.

Gianelli was one of the first architects of the project.

Teerink will receive an annual salary of $31,500 as director.

Top spending by tax lid backers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An apparent record $436,452 was spent by backers of Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax limitation initiative to qualify the controversial measure for the Nov. 6 ballot.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Tuesday said the spending total was reported in a campaign statement filed with his office by Californians for Lower Taxes, a group formed by Reagan to place the measure on the ballot.

The statement showed the largest contributors were geles, Challenge - Cook Bros., Inc., of Los Angeles, and P.F. Jung of Standard Oil of California, each of whom gave $10,000. The Beverly Hills Lincoln Mercury gave $5,000.

The largest individual contributor was David Packard, former deputy of defense during President Nixon's first term who resides in Los Altos Hills. He contributed $5,000.

"Records in my office indicate that the Reagan tax limitation drive was one of the most costly initiative qualification campaigns ever conducted," Brown said.

He said the most money spent to qualify a measure in 1972 was the $394,985 spent by the California State Employes Association for Prop. 15, which failed.

Brown also said the tax initiative report disclosed that backers obtained a loan of $110,000 from the Community Bank of Los Angeles. Californians for Lower Taxes issued a news release which stated it borrowed $135,000 for the qualifying drive.

The loan from the Community Bank, Brown said, was guaranteed by a "group of wealthy Reagan supporters."

They were Republican State Chairman Gordon Luce of San Diego, J.R. Fluor of Los Angeles, William H. Doheny of Los Angeles Charles E. Documman of Los Angeles, Margaret Brock of Los Angeles, Robert Tuttle of Los Angeles, Putnam Livermore of San Francico, Joseph Hall of the City of Industry, Roy Crocker of Los Angeles, Jacqueline Hume of San Francisco, Earle M. Jorgensen of Los Angeles, R.F. Bauer of Los Angeles, and Thomas Pike of San Marino. Many are longtime GOP contributors.

Brown said that so far $50,000 had been paid back on the loan.

Californians for Lower Taxes collected more than half million signatures to qualify the initiative for the special November ballot. The effort included the use of professional signature gatherers.

Brown said the campaign statement showed initiative supporters raised a total of $425,050, including $31,660 in non-monetary contributions.

The non-monetary services, Brown said, consisted of services provided by the California Real Estate Association, the Republican State Central Comimttee and other organizations.

He said the group reported spending slightly more than it received.

Californians for Lower Taxes said in its news release that of the $436,452, $297,390 came from 16,750 individual donors. The group said the average contribution was $15.37.

Mother, New England TV viewers see birth of child

BOSTON (UPI) — For 31 minutes Monday, Sally Dineen sat in front of the television set in a hospital room watching the birth of her second child. Across New England, thousands of other persons also watched the recorded birth of Alyssa Dineen.

Public reaction to the show came immediately, and was overwhelmingly favorable to the film, shown on "The Sonya Hamlin Show" on WBZ-TV.

"We got many, many calls from men; some of them expectant fathers, all of them asking that we show the film again in the evening," said a spokesman.

The station logged more than 150 calls immediately after the broadcast "all but eight of them positive, and many of them demanding a rebroadcast of the film."

Station executives said they planned to repeat the film in evening prime time, but did not specify a date.

Dr. Donald Walton, the attending physician at the birth last Saturday at Lawrence General Hospital, said he was "delighted with the birth" and "glad to see the film. We were busy, and not in any position to see everything the firsttime."

"I'm really glad I did it," said the 23-year-old housewife from North Andover. "the whole experience was so fantastic."

Haldemans appearance the peak of watergate probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time in 10 weeks of Watergate hearings, the hundreds of people crammed into the marble hall fell silent all at once as the senator and the witness regarded one another in something less than mutual admiration.

Across that breath-nclding hush, the glare exchanged Tuesday by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. and H.R. Haldeman bespoke what more than 5,000 pages of transcribed testimony has not quite captured — the deep divisions carved by the scandal and the clash of philosophies it has come to represent.

"Who set the example for what happened?" Weicker had demanded a few moments earlier.

"I don't believe that anyone has to set an example..." replied Haldeman, who until last spring was regarded as the most powerful man in Washington next to Richard M. Nixon himself.

"Because I still stand foursquare behind the statement that this was the most outstanding, most dedicated and most able group of people with whom I have ever been associated and with whom I ever hope to be associated."

"But Mr. Haldeman," Weicker protested. "I think that in light of the facts that are coming out that both you and I would agree that this went far beyond just a few men breaking into the Watergate. But rather it's revealed...a situation both in the Committee to Re-Elect the President and within the White House whereupon everything that was touched was corroded."

Haldeman regarded Weicker, a Connecticut Republican who months ago called for his resignation, icily.

"No, sir, I will not in any way, shape or form accept that allegation or contention," he said. "There is no way that any man in this country can establish and make the case that everything in the White House, or everything that the White House touched, was corroded. And I think that does a great disservice to this country to even state it..."

"I would only say this," Weicker shot back. "That the real problem is that your definition as to who does a disservice to the country has always been far too broad a definition."

The audience gasped and fell silent. Rage rose and then fell in Haldeman's pale blue eyes as he regarded Weicker across the massive committee table. He gritted his teeth, looked away and did not reply.

The committee soon adjourned, to question Haldeman more again today.

His first full day before the Senate Watergate Committee and had not been an easy one. Low-key at the outset, Haldeman matched the mood— flashing a frequent grin, speaking softly and politely and not seeming to match his own billing as "Nixon's S.O.B."

But as the questioning got tougher—probing to find out if Haldeman, as alleged, was deeply involved in at least the Watergate cover-up if not the planning for the actual bugging itself—so did the crew-cut Californian.

His voice took on a hard edge and his answers got shorter and firmer. He volunteered little.

Conceding that Watergate has become "an enormous embarrasscent" to the administration, the former White House chief of staff nonetheless insisted that both he and the President had been kept in the dark for some nine months after the June 17, 1972, arrests at the Democratic National Committee about who was behind the espionage raid and who was covering up the truth.

And from listening to tape recordings of two crucial conversations between Nixon and John W. Dean III, the only witness thus far to allege the President's own involvement in the scandal, Haldeman said "any reasonable person" would similarly conclude as he did Nixon was innocent.

Would he be willing to play those tapes before the committee—if the committee can obtain them?

"I would welcome that opportunity, because they would confirm what I have told you," Haldeman said.

His testimony Monday that he had listened to the tapes—which Nixon has refused to provide to the committee or to Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox—still had the committee reeling. He stunned them further by saying he had had one of the crucial tapes out of the White House for 48 hours or more early this month, along with an unspecified number of others he had not elected to listen to.

"Now, this is the question that people are asking: Is it possible that this tape, during those 48 hours, could have been doctored?" asked Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii.

"I don't consider it to be possible," Haldeman replied, explaining they had been shut up in the closet of his study at home and had seen "no evidence" it had been broken into or the tapes tampered with.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., complaining that the White House was "leaking" the secret tapes through Haldeman to its own advantage, contended that there had been collusion.

"There was an effort on the part of White House lawyers to join Mr. Haldeman in making the interpretation of these tapes public," Ervin said angrily. He described it as "counterfeit testimony" and again demanded that the tapes be made public.

Though Haldeman said it was "absolutely" untrue that he had collaborated with the White House to put Nixon's version of the critical conversations into the committee record, almost every committee member demanded a chance to hear the recordings to find out what they really say.

The committee is expected to file suit later this week seeking to force Nixon to provide the tapes. Cox has already done so.

The White House, meanwhile, said Haldeman had been provided the tapes on the basis of "the President's judgment of who could best assist him in determining the facts of the Watergate matter" without violating their confidentiality. Haldeman said the President himself had asked that he review the two tapes—of meeting Sept. 15 and March 21 —and said he understood no one else would be permitted to do so.

Author of impeachment action

Priestly solon a man of firsts

By United Press International

The Rev. Robert Frederick Drinan, the first Roman Catholic priest elected as a voting members of Congress, is the first member of the House to introduce a resolution of impeachment against Prsident Nixon.

Drinan, a firm liberal, was elected in 1970 from his native Boston as a strident anti-war activist. In the primary he defeated Rep. Philip J. Philbin, D-Mass., a 14-term congressman and hawk on the Vietnam war who was slated to become chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

"I'm not so pretentious I'm going to save the nation,' Drinan said in a interview shortly after he took his House seat, and he soon found himself cast among his ideological adversaries.

The man who had bitterly denounced the old House Committee on Un-American Activities and was an official of the "Committee to Abolish HUAC" readily accepted appointment to the committee after a few days in office. Drinan still serves on its successor, the House Internal Security Committee, as a self-styled "token liberal."

ANTI-WAR, ANTI-NIXON JESUIT, REP. ROBERT DRINAN

Drinan, 52, is balding, lean and hawk-nosed. He seems to run rather than walk. A former law school dean, he spends a lot of time on the House floor rummaging through a battered brief case and dog-earned congressional folder that bulge with reports, constituents' letters and notes to himself.

He rarely participates in debate, but when he does he speaks in a nervous, rasping voice and frequently leaves fellow members with the impression that he is ill-prepared.

In private conversation he spits out facts in machine gun bursts, but his printed statements, like the legal-size, 13-page explanation of his impeachment resolution, reflect a scholarly background.

Ordained a Jesuit priest in 1953, he studied in Florence, Italy, for a year before he was named dean of the Boston College Law School, where he also taught constitutional law. Among the books he has written is one titled "Religion, the Courts and Public Policy."

Drinan has served as chairman of the Massachusetts Bar Association committee on the administration of justice, chairman of the family law section of the American Bar Association, and chairman of the Massachusetts Advisory committee for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

Drinan was the first member of the New England delegation in the House to endorse Sen. George McGovern for the Democratic presidential nomination last year.

While in Washington, Drinan resides with the Jesuit community on the Georgetown University campus. He pays living expenses to the Jesuit order but the rest of his $42,500 annual salary goes toward expenses for special services in his Boston congressional district.

'Treason, bribery . . .'

Impeachment references are few

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only brief references to impeachment are made in the Constitution. The actual procedure for impeaching a President is left to congressional rules and the lone precedent of Andrew Johnson.

The sole power of impeachment—in effect, the investigating and returning of an indictment—is placed by the Constitution in the House.

The Senate is given the sole power to try all impeachments. It sits as a court under oath and with the Supreme Court chief justice presiding.

Conviction requires a two-thirds majority vote by the Senate.

The Constitution specifices that the President, vice president and all civil officers of the government shall be removed from office on impeachment for and conviction of "treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

It also says punishment on conviction cannot extend beyond removal from office and a ban against holding further office. However, the person still is subject to prosecution in the courts.

Still another section says the President may grant reprieves and pardons for federal offenses "except in cases of impeachment." This means that if a President is removed from office and succeeded by the vice president, the vice president can not grant him a pardon.

The final portion of this section of the Constitution provides that all crimes "except in cases of impeachment" shall be tried by jury.

Andrew Johnson, the 17th President and successor to Abraham Lincoln, was impeached by the House in 1868. However, the Senate failed to muster the necessary two-thirds vote for conviction. Over the years, 12 government officials and judges have been impeached by the House and four have been convicted by the Senate.

House procedure allows a member to rise at any time and demand a vote on impeachment of the President. If the motion is seconded, the House must suspend all other business until a vote is taken.

This was last tried in 1930 against President Herbert Hoover, but only 11 members voted for impeachment.

A more common route is through a probe by a standing or special committee of the House. The committee collects evidence in much the same manner as a grand jury, and any articles returned would be similar to a grand jury indictment.

Service charge for repair visit not out of line

My husband called a local firm to repair our refrigerator. The personable repairman gave us an estimate of $135 which involved replacing the automatic defrost timer and auxiliary heater and replacing a hose which he said was probably causing water to leak on the floor.

He advised us to think of buying a new refrigerator. We told him we would give him a call.

A few days later he phoned and asked what our decision was. He told us there was a service charge of $12.50 but if we bought a refrigerator from him there would be no service charge.

Since we thought we didn't have anything to lose, we asked my father if he would try to fix the refrigerator as he had recently taken refrigeration courses in college. My father checked the refrigerator for leaks and then filled it with freon for a total cost of $3, not including labor. The refrigerator has been working perfectly now for three months.

In view of the circumstances, do you feel the repair firm is entitled to the $12.50 service charge? —Mrs. J. P., Pomona.

The repair firm representative sent us a detailed account of his encounter with your "frost-free" refrigerator.

He said he found the defrost timer was not turning the defrost heater on automatically. He turned the timer on manually, the heater came on, and in a short time, water started running down on the floor on the side of the refrigerator he reported.

Talking later to the factory service man for this area, he stated, he was told there wasn't any way that the refrigerator would ever give good service.

If you are using the refrigerator, the repair firm representative claims, you have a musty odor down in the fresh food compartment, you have to defrost every three or four days and when you do, you have water running down on the floor.

Action Line considers the real issue to be whether you should pay a service charge when you summon a repairman to your house.

We selected at random three firms offering appliance repair service. One charges $8.35 without specifying any time involved, another charges $13.50 for the first 15 minutes and the third charges $12.50 for the first 15 minutes.

If your refrigerator is still working satisfactorily, we advise you to pay the $12.50 and be thankful for a knowledgeable father.

I am a Cal Poly student and currently receive an educational allowance under the GI Bill.

Five months ago I received a letter from the Veterans Administration stating that my allowance had been increased and I would be receiving $261.

To date, my monthly check is still only $205. I have waited, called and written to no avail. Can you help me get my retroactive money and the increase on my monthly check? R.M., Pomona.

We got in touch with the VA office in Los Angeles. A week later we were informed that your educational allowances had been adjusted to reflect your dependents.

Hearing set on $23 million school budget with 94-cent cut in taxes

POMONA — Pomona school board will hold a public hearing tonight at 7:30 on a $23 million 1973-74 budget which would allow a 94-cent tax cut, a 10.75 per cent salary increase for teachers and busing funds for Diamond Bar students.

Following the hearing, the board will take action on the administration's recommendation that it be adopted.

The meeting, which the public is invited to attend, will be held in the first-floor board room of the District Education Center at 800 S. Garey Ave.

Funds derived through Senate Bill 90 and its trailer bill, Assembly Bill 1267, along with an increase in district assessed evaluation, permit the 94-cent tax cut.

This would drop the 1973-74 tax rate per $100 of assessed valuation to $5.2259, compared to $6.1635 last year.

The budget which is proposed for adoption shows income for 1973-74 of $23,064,385 with expenditures totaling $22,595,370 and the remainder shown in reserves.

It is some $4 million greater than the $19,680,297 budget adopted for 1972-73.

It includes $13 million for certificated salaries, compared to $11.4 million last year, and $3.5 million for classified salaries, up from $2.6 million last year.

Administrators, at the last board meeting, were instructed by the board to include funds in the final budget to provide the busing service to Diamond Bar students.

The resolution, changing policy to make the transportation possible, will be given a first reading Aug. 14, and a second reading Aug. 28, after which the board will vote on the matter. If it is not approved, the money will revert to the general fund.

The budget also includes in its proposed tax rate a 10-cent community service tax—eliminated by Senate Bill 90 and reinstated by Assembly Bill 1267. These funds are to be used to provide noon supervisors on school grounds, support community use of school facilities during after-school hours, and for community recreation.

About 100 students in grades 9 and 10 are expected to attend the school during the first year. The school will add grades 11 and 12 in successive years.

At present, said Mr. Hampton, there are still about 15 student openings.

The school is sponsored by 15 Lutheran congregations in the Pomona and San Gabriel Valleys.

Claremont lawyer's suit against GM alive again

CLAREMONT — The state Court of Appeals has reversed the recent dismissal in Los Angeles Superior Court of a Claremont attorney's class action law suit against General Motors.

The suit, filed in 1969 by Stephen I. Zetterberg and Lawrence George (the latter now teaching Florida), involved alleged defects in three-piece disc wheels sold as optional equipment on 1960-65 Chevrolet and GMC three-quarter ton trucks. Zetterberg and George sued in behalf of persons owning trucks equipped with those wheels manufactured for GM by Kelsey-Hayes Corporation Inc.

The complaint requested that GM recall and pay for replacement of the wheels. GM later agreed to replace the wheels on trucks equipped with campers or other special bodies.

Meanwhile, the federal highway administrator notified GM that there was a defect on the wheels and GM filed suit in an attempt to invalidate the highway administrator's finding. The U.S. government countered by suing to assess a $400,000 fine against GM. That legal battle is continuing in federal court.

Locally, after other legal moves, GM requested the Los Angeles court to refuse to maintain the Zetterberg-George suit as a class action and Judge John L. Cole dismissed the case when the plaintiffs refused to change the complaint by listing individual charges against GM instead of the broader class action.

Zetterberg appealed Cole's dismissal and the case was heard in the Second Appellate District Court. The three-judge panel, in a unanimous decision, ruled that the Los Angeles court erred in finding the case could not be maintained as a class action and returned it to court for further proceedings.

Defense motions will be heard in murder case

POMONA — Donald Lee Phillips, 23-year-old Pomona man charged with murder in a shooting here June 2, is scheduled for appearance Oct. 5 in Pomona Superior Rourt for a ruling on various pretrial defense motions.

Phillips was arrested on a murder charge in the death of Elmo Hartwell Newton Jr., also 23, who was shot in the head outside an apartment building at 311 Abbott St. Pomona Superior Court Judge Glenn M. Pfau ordered that Phillips remain in jail in lieu of bail.

Police reported that Newton forced his way into the apartment of his ex-wife, Mrs. Barbara Newton, 22, carrying a gun. They said he fought with Phillips, whom he found there, and that Phillips got the gun, a .38-caliber revolver, away from him. They said Phillips chased Newton from the apartment and that after the two men ran down the stairs from Mrs. Newton's second-floor apartment, Newton was shot in the head.

The defendant pleaded innocent to the murder charge when he was arraigned in Superior Court July 1.

Assemblyman Montoya and council to meet

POMONA — The City Council will meet Friday with Assemblyman Joseph Montoya, D-50th Dist., to discuss matters of mutual concern.

The special meeting, at the Castaway restaurant, will start at noon.

To be discussed is pending state legislation giving public employes the right to strike, the practice of the state mandating certain city programs without providing the funds to pay for them, and a Rapid Transit District master plan on corridors.

Company honors 25-year employe

POMONA — On the recent anniversary of his 25 years with the Wayne sweeper plant here, Kermit Warn, service representative, was awarded a diamond pin, diamond tie clasp and a gold watch.

The presentations were made by J. E. Grauman, vice president.

The local plant, formerly Wayne Manufacturing Co., is now a division of FMC Corp.

Warn began his career as a heavy equipment mechanic when the company was located in Los Angeles. Involved in the development of the first model street sweeper, Warn moved to Pomona when the Pomona plant was purchased.

Warn has worked as a field service representative out of the company's Pomona and Newark offices and has conducted dealer training schools coast to coast.

Public is confused

Who is the head man at Pomona City Hall?

POMONA — Citizens unfamiliar with the inner workings of city government would have a hard time figuring out who's really running things at City Hall.

The picture will get more confusing next week when the City Council's appointment of Patrick Sampson as interim acting city administrator goes into effect.

Sampson is actually Pomona's full-time city attorney.

He will assume the title as City Hall's major domo while the temporary acting city administrator, Larry Thomas, is on vacation.

Thomas is really Pomona's city clerk and has been since 1955.

Sampson, quipped Councilman Charles W. Bader, will sort of become an acting, acting city administrator for awhile.

Thomas became acting city administrator July 1 following the resignation from the post of Ora E. Lampman. He will serve until a replacement is selected by the council.

But while Thomas has had the final word on administrative matters, the bulk of the paperwork normally handled by the city administrator has been the responsibliity of Asst. City Administrator Joseph Korpsak.

The council did lessen the confusion somewhat by changing the title of City Manager Fred Sharp, who actually was head of the city's redevelopment program, to executive director of redevelopment.

Camera club session slated

POMONA — Mrs. Elbert Mead, a member of the Pomona Valley Camera Club, will present the program at a club meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at 300 Pomona Mall West.

"Photography: Picture Windows on the World" will be the title of her presentation. She will illustrate with black and white prints.

Mrs. Mead is a member of the Wind and Sun Council of Camera Clubs, the Photographic Society of America and is a professional member of the National Writers Club.

She and her husband have traveled widely throughout the United States and Canada photographing nature.

The meeting is open to the public. Admission is free.

Precedents jolt Nixon 'privilege'

If the concept of separation of powers is to be a workable one, it has to be on the basis of equality among the three branches of the federal government.

If Congress may not interfere with the legitimate functioning of the executive, neither can a president interfere with that of the legislative branch. Nor can either one tread upon the constitutional prerogatives of the judiciary, and vice-versa.

On this basis, there may be at least two recent precedents that cast serious doubt on the legality of President Nixon's refusal to turn over to the Watergate committee tapes of presidential conversations that the committee believes could assist its investigation.

On the same day in June, 1972, the Supreme Court ruled in two cases AGAINST congressional separation-of-powers claims that are strikingly similar to the argument now being put forward on behalf of the presidency by Mr. Nixon, says Nathan Lewin, a Washington attorney and former deputy assistant attorney general.

The first, he recounts in the New Republic, concerned Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska. In this case, the Justice Department was investigating the circumstances of Gravel's midnight reading of the Pentagon Papers and their subsequent publication by the Beacon Press, a Massachusetts publisher.

The question put to the court was whether the senator's assistant could be subpoened by a federal grand jury and compelled to testify about publication of the papers. Justice Byron White, speaking for himself and the four Nixon court appointees, went beyond the issue presented by the government and ruled that even the senator himself could be called by a grand jury and asked about his sources of information if they were "irrelevant to investigating possible third-party crime" and where the questions "do not require testimony about or impunge a legislative act."

The other ruling concerned former Senator Daniel Brewster of Maryland and was written by Chief Justice Warren Berger. It involved the criminal prosecution of Brewster for having received a bribe to influence his action on postal rate legislation.

"Taking a bribe," said Justice Berger, "is, obviously, no part of the legislative process or function." The Constitution, he ruled, "does not prohibit inquity into activities which are casually or incidentally related to legislative affairs but not a part of the legislative process itself."

This is precisely what the entire Watergate affair involves, claimed Lewin. By shielding his records and tapes, the president is not securing against a prying Congress the internal workings of legitimate executive functions; he is cloaking "third-party crimes" and conduct that are "executive functions" only in the sense that they were performed in the White House.

"The robbery on the White House lawn does not become an executive function merely because it occurs at 600 Pennsylvania Avenue," says Lewin, "nor do unconstitutional invasion of privacy, obstructions of justice, perjury and other forms of misfeasance come within even the broadest definitions of legitimate executive powers."

Hearsay holiday

A great many people have expressed concern over the Watergate investigation's widespread display of hearsay evidence; evidence that is intended to bring infamy to other persons without benefit of formal legal processes.

One concerned is syndicated liberal columnist John Roche. Because his attitude toward "the holiday of hearsay evidence sponsored by the Ervin Committee" seems to coincide with that of conservative critics, he has, he writes wryly, been accused of selling out his liberalism. Not so.

Roche says he has always "opposed congressional investigations without a legislative purpose, that is, fishing expeditions." He is on record as having strongly objected to such probes as "the road shows run by the House Committee on Un-American Activites," the McCarthy hearings, the Kefauver crime investigation "and other similar safaris intended to hold people in infamy, not put them in jail."

A House or Senate investigating Committee, he points out, "is no substitute for a grand jury." And for the uninitiated he applies the argument the Watergate case. "The difference between the Ervin Committee and the federal grand jury is not that Mr. John Dean III could not have presented his six-hour statement to the jury. Grand juries listen to all sorts of hear-say, but they do so in secret, not before an audience estimated at over 50 million."

Whereever one's sympathies or convictions may lie, that is what makes many uneasy over the Watergate probe now going on.

Making it clear

There's no getting away from Watergate, even in the most unrelated matters.

In a recent issue of a magazine of book reviews, for instance, the reviewer of a book on biblican history felt compelled to put the phrase "at this point in time" in quotation marks.

And a Pontiac, Mich., company has informed its customers that "effective with his release date, the above listed telephone number will be 'inoperative'."

A new bombshell: the Calley tapes

WASHINGTON — While the nation awaits the Supreme Court showdown over the White House tapes, we have listened to some secret tapes which may present President Nixon with another excruciating dilemma.

These tapes contain Lt. William Calley's lengthy, agonizing psychiatric interviews after he was accused of mass murder at My Lai.

Some psychiatrists have concluded from the interviews that he probably was "legally insane" when he led his company on the shooting spree. Other psychiatrists, while agreeing he had personality problems, found "no evidence of mental disease, defect or derangement."

President Nixon has promised personally to review the Calley case. His final decision will have tremendous emotional impact. People around the world believe Calley was a monster who should be severely punished. But others feel he was a madman whose irrational behavior should not forever stain America's fighting men.

Calley looked upon himself as quite normal, except for the "irrational behavior happening." As he recounted the incident to psychiatrists, "I had all the troops in a truck ,and there was no warm feeling for the Vietnamese people among the troops and me. I had nothing but disgust. I had just, I won't say highly hostile feelings, to the point where I wanted to wantonly shoot anybody or beat anybody up or anything like that. But I had no respect for them. . .

"The truck came up to the village, at which time I went into the store to get some candles. And there was a bottle of Seagram's Seven there, of which I picked up and walked out—just wanton theft. Of which Mama San ran out—well not the Mama San, she was a young girl—ran out. . . I told the guard, the truck driver to go on. . .

"I just thought that was an extremely irrational behavior. It seems to me I did pay for the candles . . . I came back and I gave the booze to my troops. And I said, 'Joe, check it out for glass.' I don't think I'd personally drink it. I had no desire in drinking the booze because I was afraid of it because it was on the market.

"They didn't drink it (either) . . . The Mps and I gave it back to the girl. It was a matter of why I actually did that, for which I had no excuse."

Anger at the war

Calley went on to describe his frustration over the difficulty of identifying the enemy in Vietnam. He confessed grief over the loss of men, anger at the war and constant fear.

He tried to explain his feelings: "I think the moral issues of the war—the question of when is a war right, when is a war good, when is killing right, when is it wrong and actually when is, what are we fighting—we shouldn't be there.

"Are we fighting the Reds, or a tribe of people, or a bunch of human beings because they're in that situation? Or are we fighting an ideological philosophy that has been conjured in the minds of human beings?"

"What is your feeling about why we are fighting in Vietnam?" Calley was asked.

What is communism?

"Well," he replied, "everybody knows we're there to stop communism. What is communism? Today, actually communism is not an animate object. It's a philosophy in the minds of men. So how can you go into an armed conflict and say we're going to save these people from (communism). You've got armed combat troops in there to do a job, troops that were designed to fight a hostile enemy . . . We're not going to change your way of thinking. We're going to take your position and then endanger your way of life."

At My Lai, Calley felt he was merely carrying out orders to shoot everyone remaining in the area because they had been identified as the enemy. He was "hyper" or "psyched up," but he felt he was in full control of his faculties.

Afterward, he was stunned over the murder charges brought against him. "I was pulled into the Adjutant, no, I mean the Attorney General's office," said Calley. "And he said we've got a, we're conducting an investigation about the My Lai problem.

"And I said great. And I was happy. Not because it had entered my mind that I had done anything wrong. I thought somebody finally was going to come and ask me my advice on the war. And I had built up so much stuff inside me . . .

Murder charge

"But then in the next breath, he told me 'at which time you will probably be charged with murder. Do you want an attorney?' And I said, 'Gee, I thought you wanted to know something about a combat operation. What do you mean you're going to charge me with murder?' He said, 'Well, we're carrying on an investigation . . . There was something wrong there'."

"What is it," a psychiatrist asked Calley, "that you have actually been charged with as far as you know today?"

"One hundred and two cases of premeditated murder," he replied.

"And against whom?"

"Oriental people of mixed ages and races."

The accusation, he said, "suddenly presented me at this stage in my life with a cross few men have to bear in life. Now, people don't talk about the My Lai massacre, they call it the Calley massacre. All of a sudden, I have now become the personification of evil and horror, and everywhere I go, I must face these attitudes of people . . . It is difficult and hard to understand why it should have happened to me, and I singled out."

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Nixon poised for counterattack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sorely tired of being hammered daily on the Watergate affair, the Nixon White House is poised for a counterattack.

According to officials in a position to know, it will be launched in full a week or 10 days after the President's two former highlevel aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman, complete their testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee.

The President was said to be fearful that his prestige and credibility were being so eroded by the Watergate affair and all this has come to symbolize that his ability to govern is in jeopardy.

According to these sources, he is being urged to escalate the conflict from a legal to a political or ideological battle in which it will be charged that Nixon's enemies are seizing on the issue not to punish wrongdoers for past excesses and prevent future ones, but to destroy him and the policies he stands for, the policies which more than 60 per cent of the electorate voted for last November.

If Nixon follows the advice of some of his aides, the counteroffensive will attack the motives of the Senate Investigating Committee, the special Watergate prosecutor and the news media.

One of the chief targets will be the office of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, whose past associations with the Kennedys make him vulnerable to charges of political partisanship.

Some White House officials have made no secret that they would like to see Cox resign. There was the fond hope among some aides close to the President that Cox would step down in protest at Nixon's decision not to furnish him access to tapes of Presidential conversations.

Instead, Cox held a news conference at which he challenged the legal basis for Nixon's decision and announced he was filing legal proceedings to obtain them.

The President was infuriated by news stories saying Cox was investigating the financial transaction by which Nixon acquired his California estate. And he was little mollified by a statement from Cox's office denying that this was the case.

Cox has already built a sizable bureaucracy — some 33 lawyers and 29 support personnel at last count —and so far has failed to return any indictments in the area he was assigned to investigate.

Several of his lawyers worked in the Justice Department during the Kennedy Administration and already publications favorable to the President are accusing him of ranging far afield from his mandate, neglecting his legitimate function in order to dig up political dirt.

Another feature of the coming counteroffensive was said to be an attack on the news media for displaying a double standard in condemning the theft of documents from the Democratic National Committee but awarding journalistic prizes for publication of stolen Pentagon documents.

The idea the President would like to leave in everybody's mind is that while he is not without fault in the Watergate affair, the scandal cannot cause the abandoning of the New Revolution he has launched.

Herbert G. Klein, an old and valued Nixon associate who recently resigned as Director of Communications for the Nixon administration, is quietly calling on some of the contacts he made with editors and opinion-makers during his White House years to push this line.

You find them everywhere — the something for nothing guys who are firmly convinced that the world owes them a living. But by-and-large you'll find that most of them are operating in the world of politics. INSIDE REPORT

Percy running ahead of Kennedy

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—The recent Harris poll showing astonishing strength for Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois against Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, universally derided by politicians and fellow pollsters, is convincingly confirmed by our own interviewing in a Nixon New Majority blue-collar neighborhood.

Liberal Republican Percy not only beat Kennedy but ran better than both Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and former Gov. John Connally of Texas in presidential matchings we conducted during a Jersey City political tour last week.

Equally surprising was the awareness of Percy. A Midwesterner closely connected to big business and the liberal elite, Percy was as well known in Jersey City as Rockefeller, Connally and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. Only Agnew did better against Kennedy than Percy, but only marginally.

The results of our interviews (with national pollster Oliver Quayle) among 92 voters, mainly ethnic Democrats who voted Nixon last year:

Agnew 37 voters, Kennedy 34 voters, not sure 21. Percy 36, Kennedy 34, not sure 22. Kennedy 36, Connally 33, not sure 23. Kennedy 39, Rockefeller 29, not sure 24.

These findings back the widely doubted report of July 16 by pollster Louis Harris that Percy was running ahead of Kennedy nationally by 46 per cent to 44 per cent (the balance undecided).

The explanation for Percy's sudden presidential popularity is murky, but its existence should be a loud signal to his party: Chuck Percy must be taken very seriously as a 1976 presidential prospect.

Democratic gag

The Democratic National Committee on orders of Chairman Robert Strauss secretly imposed a gag rule forbidding its staffers from talking to any reporters—outdoing even the restrictive Haldeman-Ehrlichman White House in trying to close doors.

The gag was ordained last Tuesday by Mary Lou Burg, deputy national chairman, in a confidential memorandum to staffers. Paying lip service to an "entirely open" policy with the press, Miss Burg imposed unprecedented restrictions on reporters.

Miss Burg, noting the appointment of Vince Clephas as the National Committee's press secretary, ordered that "all press inquires should be directed to him and him alone." The memo continued:

"He (Clephas) in turn will confer with the chairman and his staff, the finance director and his staff, and will reply to these inquiries. There is absolutely no need for other staff individuals to respond directly to these press calls. If the press contacts you, courteously refer them to Vince. He will decide on the proper response. And if a more detailed reply is necessary he will assign the person to make the reply."

Miss Burg, while refusing to show us the memo, told us the gag rule is merely intended to keep Clephas informed of what other staffers tell the press.

In truth, Miss Burg's gag rule was directed by Chairman Strauss (who has always been entirely open with the press) in spontaneous reaction to a young employe in the committee's finance division discussing with us a $10,000 contribution by the milk lobby. Miss Burg, a Wisconsin Democratic leader, let it be known she wanted no more underlings talking to the press. Strauss, vacationing in California, did not see her memo.

Investigating the investigators

Sen. Sam Ervin, though first dismissing charges out of hand that his chief investigator conducted political dirty tricks, is not — contrary to rumors being spread by Republicans — blocking an investigation of the claims.

At issue are affidavits, obtained by private investigators hired by Republican National Chairman George Bush, alleging political espionage against the Republicans in the 1960 presidential campaign. They name as chief spy Carmine Bellino, chief investigator of Ervin's Watergate Committee.

Before he unveiled them last week, Bush privately showed the affidavits to Ervin and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, the committee's Republican vice chairman, a week earlier. Ervin was stunned. He had known Carmine Bellino for 20 years, he told Bush, and he could not even consider these ridiculous charges.

Bush left the meeting with the impression Ervin would do nothing, leading to GOP innuendos that the chairman had his own cover-up.

However, Ervin soon calmed down. As the Watergate hearings progressed on national television, a whispered conference between Ervin and Baker agreed the affidavits could not be ignored.

Consequently, Ervin and Baker showed Bellino copies of Bush's affidavits. Bellino vigorously denied the charges. Ervin then suggested Bellino obtain his own affidavits to rebut Bush's. What the committee does next depends on Bellino's rebuttal.

Community band project is launched in Ontario

ONTARIO — One way a community can keep "in tune" is by having its own band.

The first step toward forming a community symphonic or marching band will be taken here Monday. Musicians are invited to the Salvation Army building at 7 p.m.

Fred Chamberlain of Ontario and Bob Parton of Upland are the organizers. Chamberlain, associated with Salvation Army bands for several years, is presently director of the Ontario Salvation Army Band.

Parton was a musician in the Air Force band for several years and has been most recently associated with Salvation Army bands in Southern California.

"We are hoping to form a band for area parades and to give concerts in Ontario and surrounding areas," said Chamberlain.

The community band will not be restricted to religious music, he emphasized. "The Salvation Army here is providing us facilities for rehearsals."

The band idea stemmed from Chamberlain's son playing in the Ontario High School band. "I went to the school's year-end concert, then began thinking that many of these students would put down their musical instruments after graduation, never to play again."

The community band, he added, will have no maximum nor minimum age limits. Rather, it will seek to include all age groups.

"We want to get this off the ground Monday night and see how much interest we can draw," said Chamberlain. "If we can get 10 to 15 people for the first meeting, that will be good."

The program may start with only a symphonic band then develop into a symphonic orchestra, he added.

Such a musical group has the support of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

"Ontario has needed such a band for a long time," siad Berger Nielsen, executive vice president. "A lot of people have talked to one, but have never done anything to form one."

Nielsen said a band could be a "definite asset" to the city. It could be used at various civic functions.

He also envisioned the band taking part in both the annual California 500 parade plus pre-race festivities at the Ontario Motor Speedway.

The chamber, he noted, may assist the new group in raising funds for uniforms and musical instruments.

SOAP BOX DERBY RACER

Chuck Sterling, from left, Don Tooman and Larry Madison of Pomona show off the "Spirit of Poly" soap box racer they built and engineered. It is one of the first entrants in the first annual Soap Box Derby race sponsored by the Ontario "500" Festival Association for the week preceding the California 500 at Ontario Motor Speedway on Labor Day weekend. The car has won the Grand Prix at Cal Poly for the past three years for its sponsors, the Poly Staff Council. Preliminaries for the Festival Derby will be held at the Poly campus with finals on Euclid Avenue in Ontario Sept. 1.

Final budget review for O-M school district due

ONTARIO — Public hearing on the Ontario-Montclair School District's final budget for 1973-74 will be Thursday during the board of trustees' monthly meeting.

The session will begin at 4 p.m.

The final budget allows for a .996 cent reduction from the current tax total of $3.7933 per $100 assessed valuation. The figure may undergo a slight alteration once a utility tax rate is announced later this week.

Increases in total revenue and total expenditures will also be reflected in the budget. In the publication budget, which was approved by the board July 12, total income was estimated at $15.3 million. Due to various adjustments, this total has increased by $227,667.

However, the hike in expenditures is almost $350,000 setting costs for the district at $14.7 million. The rise in expenditures includes pay hikes adopted in July for top-level administrators, and the additional .43 per cent wage hike for certificated and classified employes resulting from passage of AB 1267.

S.B. mentally ill patients to be housed at Camarillo

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) — Approximately 280 mentally ill patients from this country will be transferred from Patton State Hospital to the Camarillo facility on an interim basis through action of the County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors accepted senior administrative analyst Robert E. Russell's suggestion that any lease agreement with the state on the Patton facilities be ignored, and that the county order the director of mental health to immediately initiate efforts to investigate and develop alternate local community resources for the care and treatment of "sub-acute" patients.

Transfer of the patients to Camarillo will begin today, with the Sheriff's department delegated to handle the moving. Transfer of the patients in marked and barred sheriff's vehicles came in for heated discussion, with mental health director David Whitbread insisting it would be degrading to most of the patients who were classified as "sub-acute" and due for short terms of treatment, from three to eight weeks. Long-term patients, of course, would be moved with proper precautions taken.

More than 200 of the patients are court wards under the jurisdiction of public guardian Bill Hill, who told the board that time was of the essence, inasmuch as the state had directed the transfer to take place no later than Aug. 31.

Supervisor Dennis Hansberger stated that the 50-bed leased facility at Patton as proposed by Whitbread was too much of a responsibility. "We should develop local hospital resources," he said.

Supervisor Daniel D. Mikesell, after listening to the three alternatives offered by Russell for consideration by the board, determined that the move to Camarillo was the best for the time being and that resources should be developed in the county for the care of the mentally ill.

A lease agreement was rejected and also the suggestion that the board take no action and allow the State to provide care and treatment of these patients at Camarillo for the foreseeable future, noted as infeasible because of the State's announced intention to get out the business.

Ag director's wife grumbles

SACRAMENTO (UPI — California's "first lady" of agriculture is among those who think food costs too much, according to her husband, state Food and Agriculture Director C.B. Christensen.

"She complains a little bit, once in a while, when she thinks prices are jumping too fast,' says Christensen, who recently predicted groceries could jump another 15 per cent in cost.

"But she is a good trooper. She understands food is still a pretty small part of all that people spend."

Adds Christensen: "One of the things we use a lot of is hamburger."

Firemen slate high-wire show

ONTARIO — The Citrus Belt Fireman's Association will sponsor a European high-wire show, Europorama, Aug. 21 at Chaffey College stadium, beginning at 8 p.m.

Proceeds fom the show will go to the Fireman's Youth Program and charitable organizations in the West End area.

Family tickets may be purchased for $6 by calling 987-7612. Tickets obtained at the gate will be $3 for adults and $1 for children.

Erma Bombeck

A 19-year-old authoress, Joyce Maynard (in her new book, "Looking Back") reflected that during her lifetime she had logged 5,000 hours in front of the television set.

This neither surprised nor impressed me. Sometimes I feel the action on that little tube is monitoring my heartbeat and that when Dick Van Dyke goes off for good, that will be the end of my life.

If there is anything that is shocking it is the way housewives have generally come to accept commercials that depict them in the home.

There was a time when we questioned large hairy arms coming out of our washers, men in white raincoats who descended from the air with leakproof sandwich bags, or Morey Amsterdam running around your stomach with a bucket of antacid and a mop.

Shock has turned to apathy and resignation. It is like the ol Thurber cartoon of the man and his wife in bed with a s balanced on the headboard and the man is saying, "Okay, there's a seal on the bed. So what!"

I've never pretended to be a stable person. That is why lean heavily on the strength of others. A group of us v watching the tube intermittently the other day between attempt at playing cards.

"Is that the silliest thing you've ever seen?" I giggle "Imagine, a man walking through your wall and offering clean them."

"It could happen," said Vera defensively.

"Whatya mean it could happen?"

"Well, maybe not through the wall, but I've seen some weirdos at my door before."

"Next thing you know you'll begin to believe that a little biscuit hops out of the tube and changes into a little three-inch person who gigles when you punch him in the stomach."

"Well, just because you've never seen one doesn't mean it couldn't happen."

"What's the matter with all of you?" I asked, throwing down my cards. "I suppose you're going to defend the commercial where the man is piloting a boat through your toilet tank and telling you about a new bowl cleaner!"

No one said anything for a full minute. Then Marilyn asked, "How big is the boat?"

Vera interrupted, "Just because we can't see a Marina in there ..."

If school doesn't start pretty soon, we'll all be in a home.

Presidential candidate?

Governor of Kansas to run for Senate

ROBERT B. DOCKING

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gov. Robert B. Docking of Kansas, already tabbed by Old Pro James A. Farley as a possible Democratic candidate for president in 1976, gives every indication he will run for the U.S. Senate next year.

The 47-year-old four-term Democratic governor of a traditionally Republican state indicated he was leaning strongly toward running against Sen. Robert J. Dole, the GOP incumbent who has an impressive political record in Kansas. Docking would like to have "some input" in the federal government.

His remarks came during an interview here with United Press International. He said that if he should defeat Dole, he would not consider himself a possible presidential candidate.

However, Farley, who masterminded Franklin D. Roosevelt's first two presidential victories, noted in an interview shortly after Docking won his fourth term in a Republican state last year that "he must be given consideration" as a possible presidential nominee.

Farley said there were likely candidates from a number of senators or governors. Docking's was the first and only name he mentioned.

Docking said he believed Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller would be a strong candidate for the Republican nomination in 1976, along with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. The leading Democratic possibilities in his view were Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Massachusetts, and Henry Jackson, Washington.

He ruled out as a candidate John B. Connally, former governor of Texas and former Secretary of the treasury under President Nixon.

"I know John very well personally, but I doubt very much that he could receive the Democrat nomination, and I don't think it's really expected that he would receive the Republican nomination," Docking said.

Docking said he had not made a firm decision whether to run for a fifth term, run for the Senate, or go back to small town banking.

Asked "What would you like to do?" he replied:

"Well, no firm decision has been made, but I feel very strongly that much of the problems we have in Kansas are problems that cannot be solved at the state level, that they have to do with inflation, and confidence in government at the national level.

Oil firm acts so leak won't happen again

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Atlantic Richfield Co. of Los Angeles says it is taking measures to "prevent reoccurence" of a leak of 115,000 gallons of highly radioactive material from one of its storage tanks in Washington.

The firm's response came after the Atomic Energy Commission said the two-month seepage of liquid radioactive waste "could have been limited" if Atlantic Richfield had detected the leak earlier.

The leak began April 20 at the AEC's giant Hanford Reservation facility in southeastern Washington. In a report issued Monday, the AEC said it was not notified of the leak until June 8. It was the largest in a series of seepages of radioactive material at the Hanford plant in the past 15 years.

The AEC report admitted to making "an inadequate review of the performance" of the contractor, Atlantic Richfield Hanford Co. a subsidiary of the Los Angeles parent firm.

The Atlantic Richfield spokesman said the company has taken "appropriate steps to prevent reoccurrence of such an incident." The firm also said "disciplinary action has been taken where warranted," but refused to elaborate on specific disciplinary measures.

The AEC report said the leak was probably caused by "corrosion of the 30-year-old carbon steel tank by waste solutions." The AEC said there is little danger of the material seeping into groundwater and migrating to the nearby Columbia River.

If the leak had been detected earlier, according to the report, the loss of material could have been limited "to between 26,700 and 37,600 gallons." It suggested improvements in leak detection devices and "a comprehensive review of the contractor organization" in the future.

Sluicing down the Watergate

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

The Greatest Show on Earth is not, of course, the circus, but the Watergate Hearings, subtitled "The Price is Right."

Watergate has its share of clowns, and some of the witnesses are expert tight-rope walkers, but the show will never replace Monday night football.

The examining and cross-examining (and some of it is VERY cross) has been going on longer than Skylab. If the testimony was piled in a stack, the astronauts could step off onto the top of it.

For all of its entertaining aspects, the Watergate interrogation can only properly be evaluated by a drama critic, since the cameras and klieg lights have brought this great political drama under national scrutiny. (Did I say that?)

Star of the Capitol Hill Opera Company is, of course, white-thatched, jowly Sen. Sam J. Ervin, the Scattergood Baines of the troupe. In a taut, luminous performance, Ervin projects a well-rounded characterization charged with humor and insight. His is a notable performance.

Appearing briefly but impressively in Act I, was the principal heavy, ex-Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, who offered a dynamic, Iago-like portrayal for the national audience. Suave and evasive, Mitchell at all times had complete control of his role and of the English language, most of which he used.

Sturdy support is offered to the two old pros by the young, romantic lead, Sen. Howard Baker, a sensitive and perceptive performer who illuminates his impersonation with a vital resonance. This is a man to watch.

H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman essay the minor villains with indifferent success. Ehrlichman tends to overact and to ham up an essentially intellectual role, while Haldeman's halting performance lends little credibility to his part. If the show is ever to make it on Broadway, Ervin is going to have to muster bit players of more conviction.

Overall, the production values of the long-running soaper are excellent. The hearing room is convincingly authentic, the staging not imaginative but adequate, the lighting and sound projection faultless. The show needs a little more concerned vivacity from the extras in the background — tie adjustments, nose pickings, furtive looks — to hold the interest of the viewers, but the supporting cast generally shows an admirable professionalism.

In sum, I think the Watergate hearings have the potential to make it on the Great White Way after a few of the more glaring problems are ironed out in out-of-town openings in Philadelphia and Boston. A musical score by Lerner and Loewe ("You Left Me Standing at the Watergate") would undoubtedly boost the box office, but as raw drama, the show holds its own with "I Spy" and "Let's Make a Deal."

Chronicler writes

Watergate would have cost votes, but not election

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Theodore H. White, chronicler of presidential campaigns since 1960, believes Watergate cost Richard Nixon three or four million votes and a possible alltime record landslide in 1972.

White, author of "The Making of the President —1972," says he does not believe that full disclosure of the scandal last summer would have given the election to George McGovern or any other Democrat, but probably would have reduced Nixon's plurality substantially.

The book, fourth in White's series that began with the Kennedy-Nixon campaign 13½ years ago, was not completed until late in the spring of 1973. It notes the indictments of former Nixon Cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans, but went to press before the Senate Watergate Committee began taking testimony from former Nixon White House and campaign aides.

The book is for release by retailers Aug. 6, but copies have begun appearing in Washington and New York.

White sharply disagrees with those who believe the arrest of Republican campaign aides during a break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate complex June 17, 1972, had no impact on the election results.

Noting that only 55.7 per cent of Americans eligible by age to vote actually cast ballots, White writes:

"In this writer's opinion, it is possible that at least three or four million Americans were so disillusioned by both candiates that they chose not to vote at all. Had it not been for Watergate, it is quite possible that Richard Nixon's margin would have been increased by another three or four million votes —that, indeed, his stunning 61-38 (per cent) victory might have gone as high as 65, for a record that might never again be approached in American two-party history. The Watergate affair blew that opportunity."

"Contrariwise —had the full story of the Watergate scandal and its companion fund-raising scandals been thoroughly exposed during the campaign, Nixon's margin would probably have been diminished to that of most ordinary candidates who run in the 55-45 area of choice. But it is doubtful that in 1972, given the moods, emotions and public issues of that year, George McGovern or any other Democrat could have been elected."

White's own judgment of the Watergate affair:

"At best, Richard Nixon, however magnificent his management of American power abroad, is guilty of gross negligence in management of the power of the White House at home."

At worst, White writes, is the "running question" of whether Nixon was guilty of "misprision of justice" —aiding, concealing or failing to recognize a felony.

"Such a mistake in the President of the United States is unforgivable —and he would have to leave. But to indict a President only on hearsay evidence would be equally unforgivable."

They make clocks work

Colonial clockmakers often had little training, but produced accurate timepieces. Talented amateurs continue the tradition. Discarded automobile parts have been fashioned into clockworks, and one man recently made a grandfather clock with all the mechanism carved from wood.

Seniors and calories

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Senior Citizens need fewer calories each day than the middle-aged, say Karen Kreipke, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension service.

"This is because of changes in body chemistry, as well as a decrease in activity," she said. "A woman over 55 years of age needs about the same number of calories as a child four to six years old — about 1,700 calories. A man over 55 needs about the same number of calories as a boy of 10 — approximately 2,400.

Assessors will not stop tax aid---solon

SACRAMENTO (UPI — The legislative architect of the state's new tax shift and school finance program today disputed assessor contentions that increased assessments will outstrip homeowner property tax relief.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, insisted that the "damper has definitely been closed on the property tax" and forecast that "major rate rollbacks will take place."

Local agencies have until Sept. 1 to set final tax rates.

Various county assessors surveyed by UPI voiced fear that steadily increasing assessments this year will gnaw away and finally consume the additional $1,750 property tax exemption granted homeowners by the eight-month-old law.

They disagreed, however, over how long it would take statewide for the exemption to disappear.

For some homeowners, and no one knows for certain how many, the exemption probably will be eaten up this year —especially for those whose homes hadn't been reassessed for four or five years.

Bagley, who helped negotiate the complex bill through the 1972 legislature, contended that those persons' homes were underassessed during those year and "nothing could nor should be done for them. They are simply going to be paying their fair share which apparently they were not last year."

The new tax shift and school finance program, partially financed by an additional penny - on - the-dollar sales tax hike which now virtually everybody agrees isn't necessary, froze county property tax rates and imposed expenditure restrictions on school districts.

Bagley , who characterized assesors as "crusty," said if assesed value increaed fater than inflation then school rates will be cut to conform revenue to the spending limit.

He predicted that school tax, rates in some high rate-low wealth districts will drop by more than $2 because about $229 million from the $1.1 billion program is earmarked for ta rate rollbacks.

"In the last 10 years tax rates have averaged an annual 12 per cent increase" he said.

Court OKs mansion site 'dig'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Superior Court judge has turned down a suit by Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. to block excavation of an ancient Indian village at the planned site of a new governor's mansion.

Judge Lloyd Phillips Tuesday denied the Brown request for a preliminary injunction halting the archeological dig until an environmental impact report was prepared on it.

Phillips said preparation of such a report would be "premature" because information gathered in the dig could be included in an environmental impact report for the entire mansion project, which is required by law.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's office, which has criticized Brown's suit as an "obvious political ploy to gain publicity," said it was "delighted" with the judge's ruling.

Brown, a contender for the 1974 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, filed the suit July 15 —the same day the excavation was to have started. The Department of Parks and Recreation voluntarily agreed not to dig until the judge gave his permission.

The dig, for which the legislature had appropriated $110,000, would be the first step toward actual construction of the $1.3 million mansion in suburban Carmichael. The site is believed to contain the remains of a 3,000-year-old Maidu Indian village and burial ground.

In his ruling, Phillips agreed with arguments of the Reagan administration, defendants in the suit, that although an impact statement on building the mansion will be filed prior to construction, the archeological dig is intended to provide information for that impact report, and thus the dig itself does not require an impact report.

"No environmental impact report shall be required for the collection of the archeological information, research and resource evaluation activities incidental to the preparation of an environmental impact report for the proposed governor's mansion at the Carmichael site," the judge said.

"The court deems a request for completion of such an environmental impact report ... prior to the archeological work directed by the legislature premature ... "

Phillips said any environmental impact statement on the mansion construction project that does not evaluate the historical significance of the mansion site would be "seriously deficient."

Brown's attorney, during a hearing on the suit July 20, told Phillips the evacation would have a "significant impact" on the environment and "disturbing the site through a dig would adversely affect the (Maidu Indian) heritage."

Although Reagan insists he will not seek a third term and therefore never live in the proposed new mansion, he has assigned it a high priority in the final years of his administration. Construction is expected to begin late this year and be completed early in 1975.

The 11-acre mansion site bordering on the scenic American River about 10 miles from the state Capitol was deeded to the state by a group of Reagan supporters who failed in 1967 to raise enough funds to build a new mansion.

Controversy erupts over mansion suit, funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., says Controller Houston I. Flournoy was trying to "curry Ronald Reagan's favor" and rescue his "floundering campaign for governor" by suggesting that Brown misused public funds.

Flournoy, keeper of the state's checkbook, charged Tuesday that Brown had no legal authority to spend taxpayer funds in pressing a court suit to block construction of a new governor's mansion on an ancient Indian burial ground.

Brown's suit was tossed out of court later Tuesday by Superior Judge Lloyd Phillips.

The Flournoy-Brown exchange marked the first major confrontation between the two in the 1974 gubernatorial campaign. Both are unannounced candidates for their party's nomination. Flournoy is a Republican and Brown is a Democrat.

One obvious political spinoff was that it gave the liberal-leaning Flournoy an opportunity to score points among more conservative Republicans by taking a verbal poke at the acknowledged front-runner for the Democratic nomination.

Brown said Flournoy was "motivated by his zeal for personal publicity in his floundering campaign for governor.

"Mr. Flournoy, like the other Republican candidates, is desperately trying to curry Ronald Reagan's favor by joining the governor's fight to build an extravagant new governor's mansion, complete with a sauna and wine cellar in a suburb far from the state capitol."

He added that Flournoy "is floundering in the polls."

Flournoy said he could find no legal justification for Brown —either as secretary of state or as secretary of the California Heritage Preservation Commission—to spend public funds on the suit.

Brown had asked that a $110,000 archaeological dig and further planning of the $1.3 million mansion be delayed until an environmental impact study of the dig was completed. Indians contend a Maidu village and cemetery once existed on the 11-acre site which sits atop an isolated American River bluff.

Flournoy said two civil service employes of Brown were attorneys in the case and unless the secretary of state could prove the expenditures were justified he would refuse to pay the workers' salaries.

Brown answered that only one attorney had worked on the case and this was during a weekend on his own time.

"The only expenses incurred in bringing the law suit were for some xeroxing and minimal amount of secretarial time," Brown said.

Asked if he would be as interested in the case if Brown were not a Democratic gubernatorial contender, Flournoy smiled and answered: "I would always be interested in any unauthorized expenditure of public money because that's the controller's responsibility."

The controller noted he previously objected to spending $30,000 in state funds for Reagan's tax initiative task force and the governor's office withdrew its request for the money.

"It's time we stopped fooling around with the mansion and get on with it because it's been a political football ever since I came to Sacramento 12 years ago," Flournoy said.

Dynamite discovered at Industry plant

INDUSTRY — Nine sticks of dynamite were found lying atop a timing device at Inter-American Art Products here Monday afternoon.

The dynamite and timer were found by an employe, Margaret La Benskae, while she was gathering supplies in the basement of the firm at 165 Bielek Lane. The items were in a large cardboard box among the other supplies, Mrs. La Benskae told sheriff's deputies.

A spokesman for Inter-American Art Products said tha the box has been among other cardboard cartons for months and no one knows its origin. The dynamite and timer were in a small cardboard box inside a larger one.

Inter-American Art Products manufactures velvet-backed wall plaques.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Handle with kid gloves today the one with whom you're most closely associated. It is important to keep this relationship in balance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful today that you don't overdo physically. Pace your work. Take proper rest periods.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will expect too much from one you favor today. This will make it hard for her to meet your expectations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Domestic frustrations will beset you early in the day. Later you'll get a handle on things and bring them under control.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone will offend your good taste today. It will be difficult for you to forgive them as promptly as you should.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Matters relating to personal finances will take some adept juggling in order to meet your material responsibilities today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you will have to be on guard where your reputation is concerned. Adhere strictly to your highest ideals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You tend to be pessimistic and withrawn today. Come out of your shell or you won't have much to look forward to.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone whom you're willing to stand up for despite the opinions of others may not be all that great.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will try overly hard today to satisfy your self-interests. It's a shame because it will bug your friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's a time to be persistent and there's a time to let go of something that won't work. It's time to let go.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful you don't let another lead you into a situation that you'll have a problem getting out of later.

Here's mirror distribution

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When declarer and dummy have the same number of cards in each suit it is called a mirror distribution.

Declarers who continually find themselves looking at one of those mirror distributions are apt to call it by some far less mild name because in general, mi rror distributions don't produce as many tricks as the declarer wants them to.

Opening lead—♥8

North tried to get to seven after South doubled the three-heart opening bid and then showed a spade suit. He located all the aces but when South failed to show a king, North settled for six.

A first glance at the North-South hands makes the contract look hopeless. On account of the mirror distribution it appears that South must lose one trick each in hearts and diamonds.

A little extra thought should show South a way to overcome this. He wins the heart lead and plays out two rounds of trumps. East follows to both. Then he runs off all three clubs. East follows to two of them.

It is reasonable to mark East with seven hearts for his preempt, which only leaves him with two diamonds. Therefore South cashes the ace and king of diamonds and proceeds to throw East in with a heart.

East has to lead a heart. South ruffs in one hand; discards a losing diamond from the other and, as a magician might say, "It was all done with mirrors."

Pups determine early which one dominates

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Ho and Hum are gradually becoming more active and, in fact, lately are fighting quite a bit with each other. This, I suppose, has something to do with their determining which one is going to be boss. We can't tell yet though Hum is quite a bit chubbier than Ho. Does that constitute as big an advantage in pups as it would in kids?—J.C.

Dear J.C.: Undoubtedly these two are sorting out their dominant—submissive roles now to determine if one will be dominant or if they will continue as a combative pair or if they will simply become equals. Generally speaking, it is true that dominancy is usually achieved by the animal with the weight advantage.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Please follow this. Parsley, my Persian's, grandmother, Ginger was chased by a dog when she was carring Paprika, Parsley's mother. Ginger was terribly shaken up by the episode even though she didn't lose her kittens. It took her weeks to get over it. Paprika was quite a nervous cat and now Parsley is somewhat nervous herself. We wondered if Parsley's bad nerves could have anything to do with the fact her mother was nervous because her mother was nervous because of the dog? Do you follow me?—S.C.

Dear S.C.: I'm trying. What you are asking, I think, is if it is possible to have long-term effects over successive generations from an environmental episode, right? It is possible. Environmental influences may be "transmitted" over several successive generations. While many other factors, hereditary and environmental, play a part, it is perfectly possible Parsley is perturbed more often than she would be if her grandmother hadn't encountered that dog.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Hoping against hope that my goldfish would spawn in my outdoor pool, we started looking for eggs. We checked the roots of the water hyacinth and, sure enough, there the eggs were. There were several snails on the eggs, too. We know they weren't snail eggs, we have seen those before. Now what we are wondering is, are the snails cleaning these eggs, or eating them?—P.O.

Dear P.O.: Eating. You should either transfer the egg-carrying plants to a substitute pool until they hatch or, preferably, leave the eggs (and plants) where they are and search out and remove all of the snails. Unfortunately, the eggs could all have been consumed long before your snail snatching process is completed.

The doctor comments

Overworking heart any way is not good

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — How come overworking the heart by tension or chronic high blood pressure is bad, yet overworking the heart by exercise is good?

Dear Reader — Your question is not very well phrased, since "overworking" the heart by any means isn't good for it. This includes overworking the heart by exercise. A sensible exercise program that gradually improves the functional capacity of the heart is useful. The same applies to proper exercise programs that improve the overall level of physical fitness.

The type of work induced by the heart from physical activity is quite different from the type of work caused by high blood pressure. High blood pressure results from constriction of the innumerable small arteries throughout the body. As a result, the heart has to work harder to pump a small amount of blood. With physical exercise, the arteries actually dilate and the heart works, harder because it's pumping a lot more blood. This increases the size and capacity of the heart just as breathing exercises can improve the size and capacity of the lungs. In turn, this improves the pumping capacity of the heart, which is a healthy reaction. This is not achieved by simple, persistent high blood pressure.

Exercise has many important functions. It can improve the volume capacity of the heart, the circulation to the heart muscle, and it is a calorie burner. When done properly and consistently it helps to prevent obesity. There are other more subtle biochemical changes asociated with a good regular exercise program. None of these important benefits are achieved by high blood pressure or tension.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the difference between scarlet fever and scarlatina? Are these two terms used interchangably? My 5-year-old daughter has had scarlet fever twice, although I have read that a second attack is very rare.

Dear Reader — Scarlet fever is a strep throat with a rash. The toxic reaction from the strep infection causes the rash. Years ago the cause of scarlet fever was not properly understood and its association with strep throat wasn't appreciated. A strep throat is contagious whether or not one has an associated rash. Scarlatina is a strep infection with a less obvious rash.

Young children are often susceptible to strep infections. With streptococcal infections their immunity develops and they are less susceptible.

With the development of antobiotics to treat strep infections, the great concern that used to exist about scarlet fever as a contagious disease is a thing of the past.

Since scarlet fever is a streptococcal infection, it can have later complications, including the possibility of rheumatic fever or rheumatic heart disease. Antibiotic treatment is usually very effective and useful in preventing these problems. Strep throat, with or without a rash, should be treated with antibiotics. Not all sore throats, however, are strep throats. Some of them are viral infections which are not benefited by antibiotic therapy.

State cases, expenses for welfare drop

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California welfare caseload declined by 89,369 during the first six months of 1973 to 1.94 million, state health and welfare secretary Earl Brian announced today.

The cost of the state's welfare program also decreased by nearly $38 million during the fiscal year ending June 30, Brian reported.

The California caseload on Jan. 1 was 2,030,455, he said, compared with the June 30 figure of 1,941,096. It marked the first time the caseload had dipped below the 2 million mark since 1970.

Brian said the reduction in the welfare rolls this year displayed the success of the 1971 Welfare Reform Act and "the special efforts we are making to help welfare recipients become self-supporting."

"While we have been helped tremendously by the rising employment rate—which is growing at just over three per cent annually—our job placement statistics for welfare recipients show a 49 per cent increase," Brian said.

Caterpillar case on Lords' agenda

LONDON (UPI) — The House of Lords is to consider the case of the hawkmoth caterpillar found in a can of peas bought by Mrs. Winifred Voss at her local supermarket in Dorchester.

Smedley Ltd. was fined $62 last year and the local appeals court dismissed its appeal. On monday, the high court gave the company leave to appeal to the House of Lords that it had taken all reasonable care to avoid such incidents.

Butz urges Nixon to veto new farm bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has said he would recommend to President Nixon that he veto a farm bill unless Senate-House conferees scaled down provisions for grain, cotton and dairy supports.

Butz' statement came at a news briefing before the conferees met in a new effort to finish a compromise draft of the four-year farm, food stamp and Food For Peace bill. It dashed congressional hopes the administration would accept compromise support terms tentatively approved by the conferees.

Butz said he would recommend approval of the bill if conferees agreed to allow support target prices for grains and cotton to rise during only one of the four years covered by the measure and if they drop a section which would permanently increase the floor under dairy supports.

The bill includes fixed support target prices for grains and cotton in 1974. The conferees agreed to keep the targets fixed at the 1974 rate through the end of 1975, thus allowing escalation only in 1976-77.

Butz said he would accept the plan holding targets fixed in 1974-75, allowing them to rise in 1976, but then holding them unchanged again at the 1976 rate in the final year of the bill, 1977.

Burping cows a source of smog?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Suggesting that environmentalists are going overboard in their attempt to purify their environment at the expense of technological advances, Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, today issued this warning to farmers and dairymen.

He told them to keep a close watch for federal Environmental Protection Agency inspectors carrying emission control devices.

"According to the 'EPA Log,'" Ashbrook said, "the agency's official publication, 'burping cows must rank as the number one source of air pollution in the United States ... the nation's cows burp 50 million tons of hydrocarbons into the air each year.'"

MEETIN' & EATIN' AT BETSY ROSS
By Gene Neighbors

Hi Neighbors,

Summertime is the season for getting together with friends and families for special events, or just to enjoy the company. But if you're planning a special party, a birthday party, anniversary, or some other fun thing, let Betsy Ross help you. We have no less than six separate Party Plans at all prices, starting from just $1.00 per person to our highest price of only $3.50 per person. We will take your reservations and do all the fixin'-up. That includes preparation of all the foods and ice cream specialties, and we'll give you at no extra charge printed tablecloths, party hats and blowers, if you want 'em. We have a lot of free things too that go along with each Party Plan that you select, startin' out with free hot coffee to mothers and friends who chaperone the young ones when they celebrate a birthday.

Please talk with the manager of your local Betsy Ross Ice Cream & Coffee Shoppe for details. The Party Plan was designed so you, too, can enjoy your own party.

The Claremont Coffee Shoppe was visited this week by fifteen orthopedically handicapped children from the Danbury School. They were under the supervision of MRS. GOODWIN and MRS. LIEBICH. The children, some of whom had never eaten in a public restaurant, had a ball with their flag-bedecked sundaes.

Our newest Betsy Ross in Glendora, on Grand just south of Alosta, has now been tried and tested. Come by and meet the congenial manager, JOHN BARSODI.

There's nothing fishy about our fish special on Tuesday at $1.69. Drop in and try it! Or join the gang for the 49c Hot Fudge Sundae on Wednesday.

Y' know? We in Claremont have a new neighbor? Welcome to Marie Callender.

EPA drafting control ideas

Trucks get first call in noise pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the government's first formal move against noise pollution, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) proposed regulations Tuesday to cut down noise from trucks and said it would soon propose similar controls to cut down noise around airports.

The truck regulation, which would affect most vehicles over 10,000 pounds in weight, would set levels for noise, require certain mufflers and outlaw certain types of noisy tires. The truck proposal, put forward under the Noise Control Act of 1972, will take final effect on October 1, 1974.

The Agency estimated the cost would be from $50 to $200 for each truck, with a total cost to the industry of somewhere between $10 million and $30 million.

David D. Dominick, an assistant EPA administrator, said the actions mark "the first time that the federal government has taken explicit, direct action against noise pollution." The agency also released a study of aircraft and airport noise which concluded that 16 million Americans are affected. The study contends the problem will continue into the mid-1980s unless the Federal Aviation Administration considers more aggressive

Dominick estimated that the proposed regulation for trucks would affect about 190,000 diesel engine vehicles. Dr. Alvin Meyers, director of the EPA's office of noise abatement said the impact of the truck regulations "will tend to pull the truck noise into the ongoing interstate highway noise" thereby eliminating the noises that are heard as trucks change gears or accelerate.

In addition to its other actions the EPA released a document which reports on criteria for noise as it affects the public health and welfare. Among other things the study claims that exposure to high levels of noise is potentially detrimental not only to health but also to the way people do their jobs.

The EPA said it would utilize criteria in that study to propose noise regulations for other areas of the environment.

World has robot room

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) —Robots still aren't a part of everyday life, but scientists who are looking ahead have developed a way to control the cybernetic beings with a blink of the eye.

The Stanford Research Insitute claims it's developed an eye-tracking system that can make robots perform tasks based on eye movements. No knobs to turn or buttons to press. Just stand a safe distance away, gaze at the point where you want the robot to go and it's on its way to do your bidding.

Woman Achievers

Receive awards at luncheon

Praised for sharing their time and talents in many hours and years of community volunteer work, four Pomona Valley women were honored at a luncheon Monday at Orlando's Restaurant hosted by the Progress-Bulletin.

More than 60 people attended the event recognizing the contributions of Mrs. Harold Edick of Pomona; Mrs. William Kelber of Ontario; and Mrs. Sanford Newton and Mrs. Richard Todd, both of Pomona, Progress-Bulletin Woman Achievers for 1973.

Joseph A. Gendron, editor of the Progress-Bulletin, served as chairman of the meeting and the woman achievers were introduced by the newspaper's women's editor, Mrs. Mary Remillard who outlined the women's accomplishments in various activities. The newspaper's general manager, Bob Bush, presented the award winners with engraved silver Revere bowls commemorating the event.

The luncheon has been held each year since 1966 in conjunction with the publication of the Pomona Valley Women's special section. This year's 13th annual special, published July 24, also honored the woman achievers.

During the past eight years 33 women have been recognized as woman achievers. Five previous winners of the award in attendance at Monday's luncheon were Mrs. Clifton Allen, Mrs. Gladys Donlavy, Mrs. Richard Hyman, Mrs. William Stern and Mrs. Marvin Abrams.

Also introduced during the afternoon were two of the four judges for the awards contest, Robert Liedler, manager of Buffums', and Leonard Ryan, manager of the Montclair Plaza Broadway store. Judges not able to attend were Bob Lewis, Pomona Chamber of Commerce vice president, and Keith Mulrooney, Claremont City Manager.

Among the activities of Mrs. Marie Edick, one of this year's award recipients, are the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary, Foothill Guild of the Crippled Children's Society, Visting Nurse Association and Pilgrim Congregational Church.

A community volunteer for more than 25 years, Mrs. Rose Kelber's achievements are many. Included in her activites are Recording for the Blind and the Pomona Valley Transcribers Guild, both of which she founded, Stella Kelber Chapter of B'nai B'rith Women, Ontario-Montclair School District board of trustees and the San Bernardino County School Boards Association.

PTA, Girl Scouts and United Way are the three organizations which have received the major benefit from the volunteer work of Mrs. Pat Newton. She has been involved in the community for 17 years.

Achieving on a singular and individual basis, Mrs. Jean Todd has devoted her time to Pomona Teen Post development and the Attic Reading Center in her home which aids pupils of all ages in communication skills. Mrs. Todd was not able to attend the luncheon but was represented by a former award-winner, Mrs. Hyman, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Grace Todd.

Ask Dr. Brothers

About infidelity

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Dear Dr. Brothers: I've just discovered that my husband is cheating on me and he knows that I know, even though we haven't discussed it. We've been married seven years and I thought our marriage was very happy, at least, as happy as a marriage is supposed to be, with four active children. Because my own mother died when I was very young, I've tried to give my children all the mothering that I never got and I spend a great deal of time with them. I love each one of them in a special way and I wouldn't want to do anything that would hurt them. On the other hand I can't see living with a man who's making a fool of me by going out with other women behind my back.

I've been very close to his mother and I discussed this matter with her expecting her to deny it and defend her son. Instead, she informed me that she was aware of what he was doing and that she put up with this kind of behavior from his father all her life. She seems to think this is normal behavior and a woman just has to accept it. I'm very confused about what my action should be at this time. —B.P

Dear G.P.: It seems to me that the first thing you should do is discuss this with your husband to try to determine what this means to him and what his attitudes are, generally, about infidelity.

Sex patterns are often established early in childhood, and even though you may be hurt or angry, it is best to approach your husband calmly. Yelling, becoming hysterical, or blaming everyone, including yourself, will not settle anything, and it may prevent you from learning things that might help toward a solution.

In certain cultures, men are raised with the feeling that they are not really being masculine unless they have numerous extramarital relations. This is looked upon as a kind of divine right of being born male, and a man who has doubts or fears about his own potency may try to make conquests to prove to himself that he is virile.

Dr. Frank Caprio, psychiatrist and marital counselor, has observed that certain men have a habit of multiple relationships; either instilled by early parental influence and environment, or resulting from fears and feelings of inadequacy and insecurity.

Whatever the cause, if your husband has had many extramarital relations,then this will not be easy to change. If his father had a pattern of the same behavior then he may feel this is the way all men are expected to behave. All children learn from observing their parents and, naturally, the male child identifies with his father and usually wants to be like him.

It is important to find out if your husband "cheats" habitually or if this is a one-time thing. It is also important to discover how seriously he is involved in this particular relationship—if it is a relationship.

Sometimes a wife is responsible for her husband's wandering. Possibly you are so interested in your children's welfare that you've neglected yourself and your husband. It is possible that he feels pushed out and emotionally replaced by his own children.

It often helps the children and the husband and wife, if the wife makes an effort to separate some part of herself from her family. If your children are young it might even be advisable to take one or two nights off each week, get someone reliable to come in to care for your children, so that you and your husband may get to know each other again.

Whatever you do, do not act in haste or out of false pride.

Landscape architects

Girls entering field

Like several other professions, the field of landscape architecture is opening its doors to an increasing number of women.

At its recent national convention in Michigan, the American Society of Landscape Architects passed a resolution encouraging women in the field, according to a delegate, Mrs. Janet Gillman of Honolulu, Hawaii.

The niece of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Worness of Pomona, Mrs. Gillman is visiting in the Southland before returning home. She says that while only four per cent of the landscape architects are women, 10 per cent of those who qualify as Fellows of the American Society of Landscape Architects are women.

Mrs. Gillman is employed as a landscape architect by C. Brewer and Company in Hawaii. She is working with land planning for the large Hawaiian sugar company whose holding includes 63 miles of land. Much of the area is not suitable for the growth of sugar, she reports, so land planning includes the development of diversified agriculture, pasture land and a large comprehensive resort area.

Her work stresses broad-scale land planning, including the analysis of soil and climate conditions, topographic studies and the preservation of existing flora.

A 1964 graduate of the University of Illinois with a degree in architecture, Mrs. Gillman spent a year in London working for a noted woman landscape architect.

This stimulated her interest in the field so she returned to the United States and obtained her master's degree in landscape architecture at Harvard University.

After completing college, Janet married Jack Gillman, a teacher, and the couple spent the next three years on Panape Island in Micronesia as members of the Peace Corps.

JANET GILLMAN

"I was the first architect to work on community projects there, so the natives just assumed that architects were women," says Mrs. Gillman in reporting on her acceptance as a supervisor of various island improvements.

She began her present job two years ago and finds the work stimulating and a challange. Hawaii, she reports, was the first state to stress statewide landscape planning.

As a career for women the field offers excellent opportunities. It is not overly crowded and about one half of the jobs are with the government and pay well, Mrs. Gillman reports.

Both in the universities and in the profession, she has experienced no discrimination because of being a woman, she says.

Voortman-Harmsen vows are exchanged

Miss Shirley Harmsen and Art Voorman were united in marriage in an evening ceremony read by the Rev. Louis Dykstra in the First Christian Reformed Church of Chino.

The daughter of the John Harmsens of Chino and the son of the Anthony Voortmans of Artesia exchanged vows in a double-ring service.

A floor-length gown of chiffon and chantilly lace was worn by the bride. It was accented with seed pearls and a detachable train. Her veil was finger-tip length. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Leanne Harmsen was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Voortman and Mrs. Anna Voortman.

Darrell Voortman was best man. Ushers Don Voortman, Ron Harmsen, Tom Harmsen and Fred Wassenaar.

A reception at the church honored the newlyweds.

Grace Baptist Church setting for nuptials

Miss Linda Joy Corbett and Steven Allen Blankenship were married at the Grace Baptist Church in Glendora with the Rev. Ron Cline as officiant.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Corbett of Glendora was given in marriage by her father. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blankenship of Claremont.

The bride selected a Grecian gown of white georgette featuring a shirred bodice and raised waist encircled with pearls. Her elbow-length bouffant veil was held by a bandeau of fresh spring flowers.

The former Miss Corbett carried a semi-cascade bouquet of multicolored spring flowers, including roses and stephanotis.

Miss Merrie Lynn Corbett, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Peggy Dillingham and Miss Nancy Youngquist were bridesmaids.

The groom's brother, Gary Lee Blankenship, was best man. Ushers were Scott Corbett, Mike Norman, Gene Benson and Mike Robb.

Approximately 200 guests attended the reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

After a honeymoon at Solvang, Mr. and Mrs. Blankenship will reside at Azusa Pacific College where both are seniors. Mr. Blankenship is minister of youth at the Hacienda Heights Nazarene Church.

Let's Ask The Cook

DEAR NAN:

So many times guests say' "My this is good! I'd like to have the recipe." I tell them, "Not mine it's Nan's." Here is a little suggestion you may not know. Many recipes call for thin-sliced water chestnuts, so I put one in the egg slicer, press down, get the nicest, most even slices ever. It's fast, too.

Velma E. Schnele,
Raytown, Mo.

Now why didn't I think of that? I make a dish that calls for frozen green beans, sliced water chestnuts and black olives, diced pimiento and cream of mushroom soup all mixed together, placed in a greased casserole, topped with grated cheese or buttered crumbs, then popped into the oven until cheese melts or crumbs bake golden.

Grammy Award-winning country music singer Jerry Reed will be on stage there Aug. 12-17. The Raiders, who have played together for 10 years, have 15 hit singles and five gold albums.

Music fest ends tonight

CLAREMONT — The final chamber music concert of the Claremont Music Festival will be held in Bridges Hall of Music, Pomona College, at 8:15 tonight.

Also onthe program will be the Trio for Oboe, Clarinet and Bassoon performed by Sara Watkins, oboe; David Shifrin, clarinet: and Robert Williams, bassoon, by 20th century Brazilian composer Heiter Villa-Lobos. The program will end with Brahms' Quintet No. 2.

PRISCILLA DAVIS

Soprano, Army band at Starlite

MONTCLAIR — Soprano Priscilla Davis of Pomona will be intermission soloist at a concert by the 72nd U.S. Army Band at the Starlite Patio Theater, Montclair civic center, at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

This is one of the Starlite summer series offered free by the Montclair recreation department.

Miss Davis, accompanied by Julie Rodgers, will sing "Plaisir d'amour" by Martini, Schubert's "Serenade" and "It's a Grand Night for Singing."

Jerry Reed, Raiders to play at Knott's

BUENA PARK — The Raiders, featuring Paul Revere and Mark Lindsay, and country music star Jerry Reed will perform this month at the John Wayne Theater of Knott's Berry Farm.

Country music's Instrumentalist of the Year for 1970, Grammy Award-winner Reed will be on stage Aug. 12-17.

The Raiders take over for a five-night stand Aug. 18-22.

Led by Paul Revere and Mark Lindsay, the Raiders have been on top in rock music for over ten years. Fifteen consecutive hit singles and five gold albums attest to the group's popularity.

Featured on the ABC series "Where The Action Is" in 1956-66, The Raiders were voted by many magazines to be the top group in the country at that time.

The Raiders have a long list of hits including "Indian Reservation," "Steppin' Out," "Let Me," "Hungry and "Good Thing."

Reed, songwriter, guitarist, producer and performer has long been popular with country music buffs. His latest hits have begun to cross the lines from the country charts to the pop charts.

His latest hit single, "Lord, Mr. Ford," number two on Billboard's Hot Country Singles List, is now played on Top 40 and rock music stations.

His hit list includes "Amos Moses," "When You're Hot You're Hot" and "Georgia Sunshine."

A regular on CBS's Glen Campbell Show, Reed is known around Nashville as the "Guitar Man" after a song he wrote that was made popular by Elvis Presley.

Showtimes are 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays and 8 and 10:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

Afternoon entertainment in the Theater includes the Allen Family each Monday and the Hear and Now Tuesdays through Sundays. Afternoon showtimes are 1 and 3 p.m.

Rod Culpepper and the Boothill Express perform nightly, Saturday through Thursday, in the Wagon Camp at 7, 9 and 11.

Store telephone finally debugged

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — You can't get Sen. Sam Ervin, H.R. Haldeman or John Dean by calling the Akron store any more.

For the past several weeks, callers who were put on "hold" by the Akron's operator found themselves listening to the Senate Watergate hearings. The store's telephone line was somehow picking up the transmission from a radio station.

The telephone company had the line debugged Monday.

Hartford schedules new musical

HOLLYWOOD —"$600 and a Mule," described as "an exciting new musical experience," will have its world premiere at the Huntington Hartford Theater Aug. 21, with low cost previews Aug. 17-19.

Produced by Michael Moriarty with Abbott Productions, Inc., with the Greek Theater Association, the new musical stars Double Exposure, a name that encompasses the cast of actors, dancers and singers. Like its successful predecessor "Dont Bother Me, I Cant Cope," which had a record breaking 35-week run at the Hartford, it features an all-black cast, several of whom were members of "Cope."

Book and lyrics are by Lester Wilson who also directed and choreographed the show. Music is by Wilson and Arthur Smalls, Jr. Sets are by Terry Gates, costumes by Andrea Lilly.

The show will mark Moriarty's local debut as a producer. Normally a concert promoter, he is at 25, one of the older people in the youthful company.

Slow process

It takes about seven years before a rubber tree plant produces the raw material used in making natural rubber. The tree's breeding cycle, from cross-pollination to production, takes 25 years.

Big one hooked

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) —Marine engineer Ron Scott took 90 minutes to catch one of the biggest sharks off Sydney for many years. Scott hooked the 905-pound, 13-foot tiger shark on 80 pounds breaking strain line five miles off Dee Why, one of Sydney's most popular beaches.

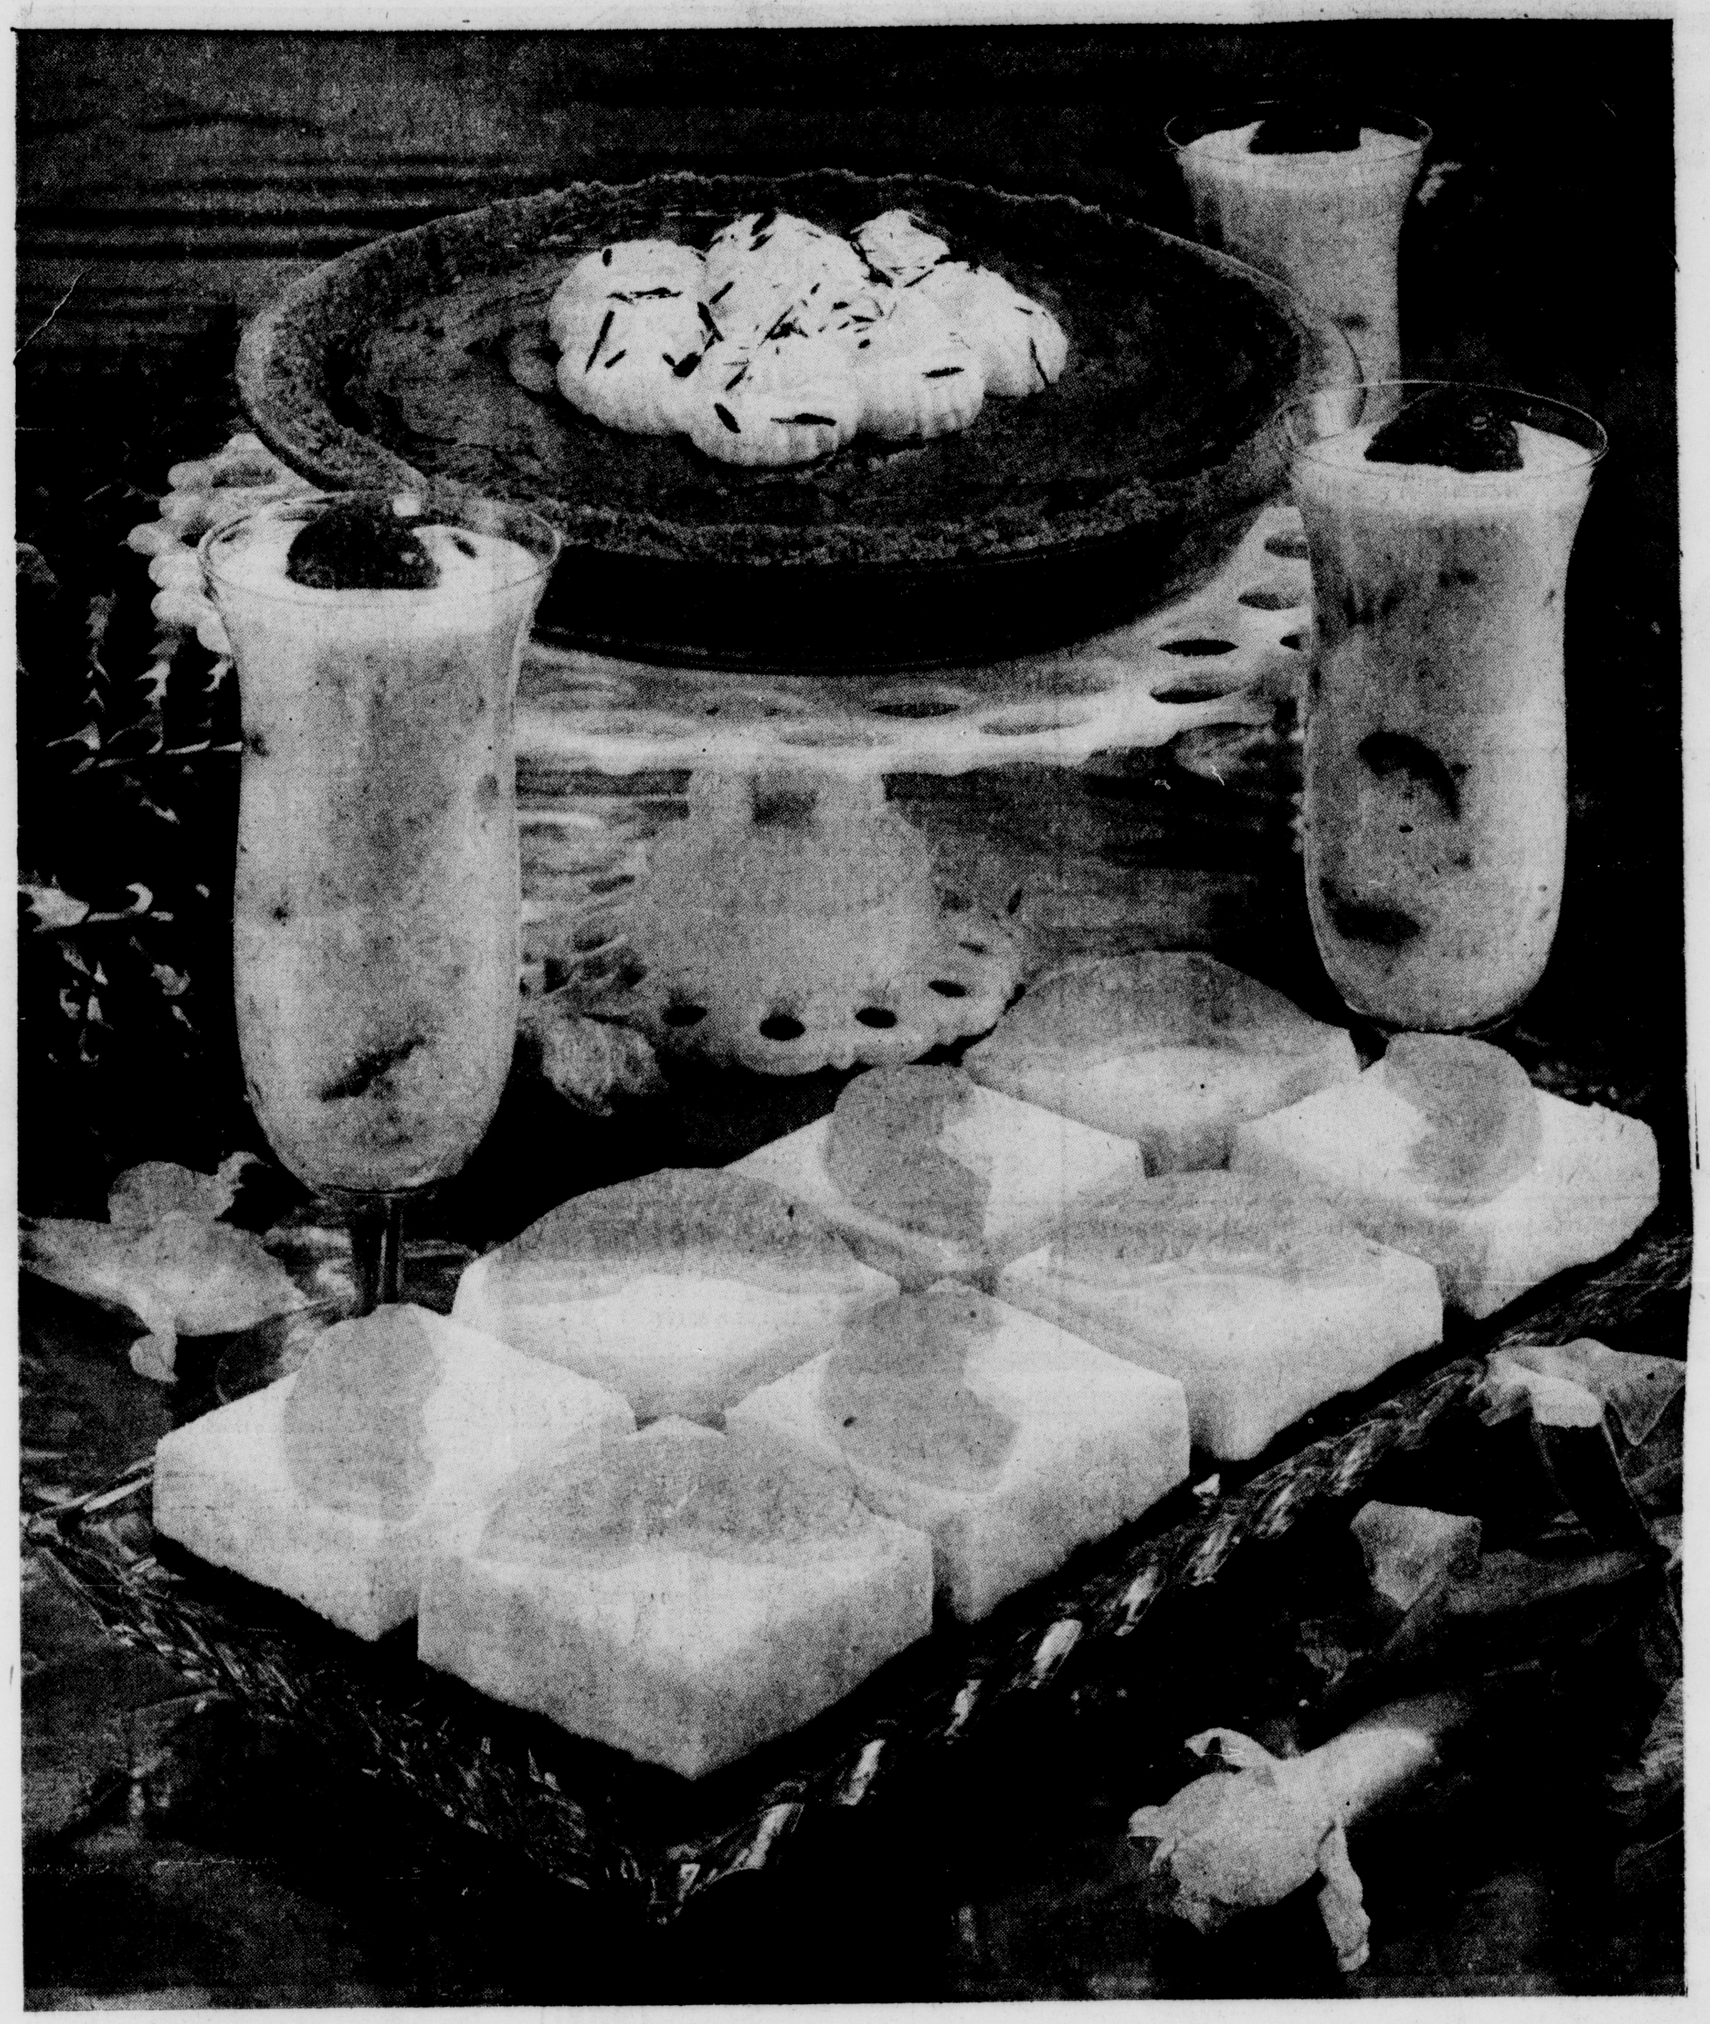
Cool Summer Desserts

Elegance with ease...



Whatever the season, desserts add the crowning touch to any meal. Now that summer is here put away your recipes for hearty fruit pies and cakes and try some of these light summery favorites. Yes, warm-weather desserts have an entirely different look, with rich fluffy fillings and cool fruity flavors.

The secret of these fancy-looking desserts lies in Royal Instant Pudding and Gelatin mixes which make their preparation too simple to believe! No cooking, no baking and look at the results—elegant desserts you'll be proud to serve to your most honored guests. In addition, all these tempting sweets are stored in the refrigerator, so they're ready to serve anytime—cool and satisfying.

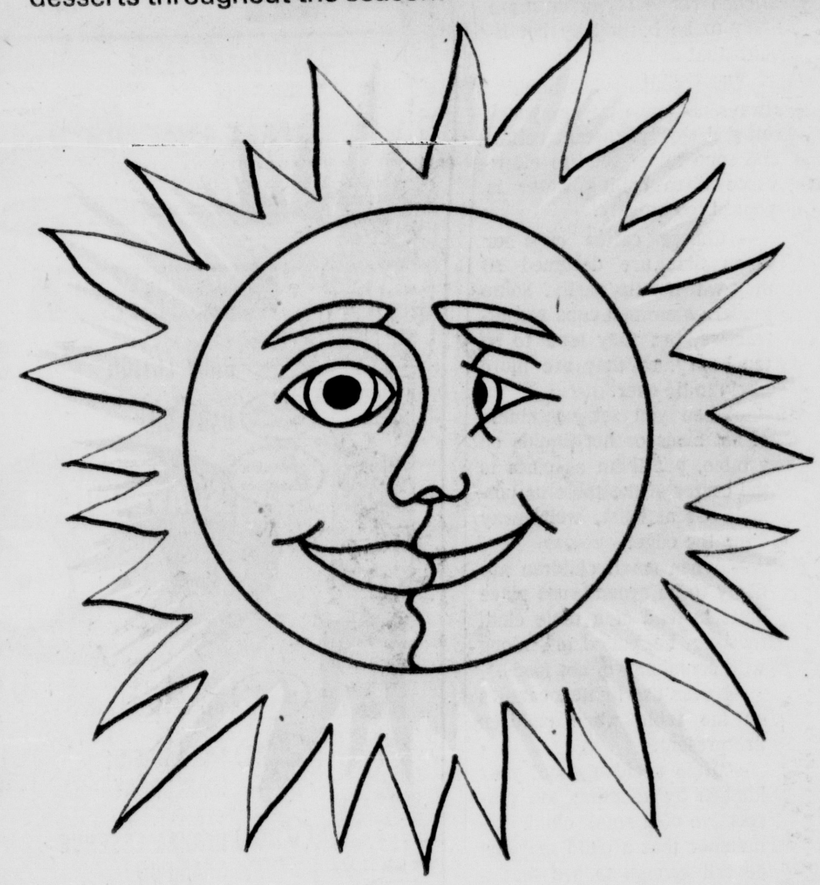
Royal's exclusive flavors (Mocha Nut, Pistachio and Peach) makes each of these desserts deliciously unique.

Mocha Nut Bavarian Pie is made by simply folding sweetened whipped cream into the pudding and turning it into a graham cracker (or other cookie crumb) crust. Topped with more whipped cream and chocolate it is quite a sight, and the taste is divine!

Peach gelatin and vanilla ice cream make a smooth delicate filling for Royal Peach Dessert Squares. The chocolate crumb crust is a tasty contrast for this light flavorful dessert.

Everyone loves parfaits, and these pale green pistachio treats are no exception! Pistachio Pudding blends with fresh strawberries for a great flavor duo.

Spark your summer meals with these elegant, but easy summer desserts. And, plan to keep plenty of pudding and gelatin mixes on hand for more quick and creative desserts throughout the season.



Mocha Nut Bavarian Pie

- 1½ cups heavy cream
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup cold milk
- 1 package Royal Instant Mocha Nut Pudding
- 1 (9-inch) crumb crust
- Shaved chocolate

Whip heavy cream with sugar until stiff.

Pour cold milk into small deep mixing bowl. Add Royal Instant Mocha Nut Pudding and using egg beater or mixer, slowly beat until thickened. Fold in ⅔ whipped cream. Turn into crumb crust. Top with remaining whipped cream. Chill at least 1 hour before serving.

Garnish with shaved chocolate. Makes one 9-inch pie.

Royal Peach Dessert Squares

- 1½ cups chocolate wafer crumbs
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/3 cup melted Blue Bonnet Margarine
- 1 package (3-ounce) Royal Peach Gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream
- Peach slices

Combine wafer crumbs and sugar. Add melted Blue Bonnet Margarine; mix well. Press onto bottom of an 8-inch square pan. Chill for 15 minutes.

Dissolve Royal Peach Gelatin in boiling water. Stir in vanilla ice cream. Stir until completely melted. Pour into prepared pan. Chill until firm.

To serve, cut into 9 squares and garnish with peach slices. Makes 9 servings.

Pistachio Parfaits

- 1 cup sliced fresh strawberries
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup cold milk
- 1 package Royal Instant Pistachio Pudding
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
- 7 small whole strawberries

Combine strawberries and sugar. Let stand 5 minutes.

Pour milk into small deep mixing bowl. Add Royal Instant Pistachio Pudding. Beat at low speed of electric mixer until well blended, about 1 minute. Add ice cream and beat at low speed until blended, about 1 minute. Stir in strawberries. Spoon into parfait glasses. Chill until set. Garnish each with a strawberry. Makes 7 servings.

Keep kitchen safe for the children

NEW YORK (UPI) — The sights and sounds and smells of food preparation make the kitchen the most fascinating room in the entire house for young children.

But the kitchen also can be the most dangerous room for toddlers —especially if there are electric cords that can be put into the mouth, open outlets wihin reach, or appliances that can be pulled down from cabinet, counter or table tops.

A child who can reach the top of a range also may be able to spill a pan of boiling water or scalding-hot grease over his body.

Below counter-top level, hazards often include toxic household chemicals and hot water pipes under the sink, cabinet drawers full of knives and an oven hot enough to broil meats.

The busy homemakers can't keep their eyes on a curious child every second, but here are some safety suggestions from the Coffee Information Institute:

—Cover or conceal any electric outlets below countertop level. Don't allow electric cords to hang below the counter or table top.

—Do not store sharp instruments, such as knives or dangerous chemicals where small children can reach them.

—Never allow the handles of pots or pans to extend over the edge of a kitchen range; keep them turned toward the rear or the side of the stove.

—When you buy a kitchen range, make sure the heating units and controls are beyond the reach of small children.

—Keep children away from kitchen areas that may be especially hazardous during meal preparation; a child playing on the floor beside a kitchen range is much more likely to be burned by hot liquids that are spilled.

—When pouring hot liquids, always pour away from yourself and slowly. Instant coffee and soup mixes tend to effervesce when boiling water is poured too quickly.

— Choose coffee cups or mugs that are designed so they will not tip easily. Some modern stemmed cups are attractive, but they tend to be top heavy, so they are more likely to tip over.

—When you set containers of hot foods or hot liquids on a table, put them as close to the center of the table as possible—or at least, well away from the edge.

— When small children are likely to be around, use place mats instead of a table cloth that can be pulled off, along with containers of hot foods.

—Never use lighted candles on the table when children are present.

— Help accident-proof your kitchen by adopting the perspective of a small child. Remember that a child may not be tall enough to see that a pot on the stove or a bowl on the table contains hot food.

If a child is allowed to play with pots and pans, he may think of the food containers on the kitchen range as his toys. If he sips fluids occasionally from an adult's cup, he may assume that the cup on the table is for his use.

—Resist the temptation to hold a child in your arms while you drink any hot beverage. A frisky child can knock the cup out of your hand in a fraction of a second. Put the youngster in his playpen, high-chair, or some other safe place during your coffee break.

—Finally, be sure you know what to do if an accident occurs in the kitchen despite all precautions. For example, in case of burns apply ice or cold water to the burn area. Keep your doctor's telephone number posted nearby so you can contact him quickly about any serious accident.

—Most accidents are predictable and preventable. Make yourself a committee of one to keep the kitchen a happy room rather than a hazardous room.

Choosing chicken

When buying chicken for frying, roasting, braising, or stewing, allow about half a pound ready-to-cook weight for each serving. For broiling, allow ¼ to ½ bird per serving.

Short ribs rate high economically

With meat going astronomicall, finding a few cuts still relatively inexpensive is a great help. Among them, short ribs rate four stars.

While short ribs are full of flavor and meaty, this is not a tender cut. You must cook them well, to tenderize.

Two new recipes using short ribs come your way now. For the first, you bake the ribs in the oven, then finish them on the outdoor grill. They get juicy savor from basting with a piquant sauce, combining prepared yellow mustard, tomato juice and molasses.

The second dish, Chili Grilled Short Ribs, is equally delicious and even easier. The ribs are wrapped in foil along with their sauce and cooked that way over the grill. So you don't even need to tenderize the short ribs by precooking. An envelope of chili-o seasoning mix makes this sauce lively.

Serve the short ribs with cole slaw and buttered French bread. For the beverage, give the grownups iced tea and the small-fry lemonade, with strawberry ice cream as dessert for all.

GRILLED SHORT RIBS

3 to 4 pounds beef short ribs
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup tomato juice
2 tablespoons molasses

Arrange short ribs in shallow baking pan; cover with foil. Bake at 400 degrees for 1 hour. Stir together mustard, tomato juice and molasses; brush over baked short ribs. Grill over hot coals for 20 to 30 minutes until tender, turning frequently and brushing with mustard mixture. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CHILI GRILLED SHORT RIBS

1 envelope (1¾ oz.) chili-o mix
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup oil
1 green pepper, chopped
3 to 4 pounds beef short ribs
1 tomato, sliced

Stir together contents of chili-o mix envelope, vinegar, oil, and chopped pepper. Place ribs on large piece of heavy duty aluminum foil; spoon chili-o mixture over ribs and top with sliced tomato. Wrap securely, leaving room in foil for steam to form. Grill over hot coals, turning frequently until tender, 1 to 2 hours. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Apple-Carrot Bake full of vitamins

Apples are another fresh fruit coming into season. This is a versatile fruit which even the most finicky of eaters enjoy. An Apple-Carrot Bake also includes prunes and the conbination is rife with tasty vitamins and minerals everyone needs in a balanced diet.

APPLE - CARROT BAKE

1 pound carrots
½ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup prunes, plumped
4 Washington apples, pared cored and cut in quarters
1-3rd cup corn syrup
¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
2 tablespoon butter

Pare and cut carrots into 1-inch chunks. Place in saucepan with water and salt. Bring to boil; cook until just tender, about 20 minutes. Drain, reserving liquid. Combine with corn syrup, orange juice and orange peel. Arrange carrots, apple quarters and prunes in baking dish. Pour over orange sauce. Dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees 45 minutes or until apples are tender. Baste fruit occasionally. Makes 6 servings. Serve with poultry or pork.

Garnish your green salads

Julienne strips of lunch meat turn an ordinary tossed green salad into main dish fare. Easy, economical and delicious!

Heart hints

Fish is an excellent nutritional resource

Any cook who has had the experience of looking a ten-pound mackerel in the eye and wondering what to do with it will appreciate the following suggestions from the Los Angeles County Heart Association on fish cookery.

Although this may be an unfamiliar area of food preparation, it is well worth the extra effort. Fish is an excellent nutritional resource, being high in protein, moderate in calories and usually low in fat, most of which is unsaturated.

Most varieties of fish are very low in fat with the exception of salmon, mackerel, butterfish and trout, which are somewhat higher, though not a matter of concern for anyone who is not on a strictly reduced fat or calorie intake.

For those who enjoy cooking out of doors at this season here is a tasty collection of recipes for fish grilled over charcoal.

BARBECUED CALIFORNIA SEA BASS

2 pounds sea bass or other lean fish steaks, fresh or frozen
½ cup margarine, melted, or oil
1-3rd cup lemon juice
1-3rd cup cognac
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1 large clove garlic, crushed
½ cup seasame seeds

Thaw frozen steaks. Place steaks in a single layer in a shallow baking pan. Combine remaining ingredients except sesame seeds. Pour sauce over fish and let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting. Place fish in well-greased, hinged-wire grill. Baste with sauce; sprinkle generously with sesame seeds. Cook on a barbecue grill about 4 inches above moderately hot coals for eight minutes. Turn steaks. Baste and sprinkle with sesame seeds. Continue cooking for 7 to 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve any remaining sauce with fish. Serves 6.

TANGY HALIBUT STEAKS

2 pounds halibut steaks or other fish steaks, fresh or frozen

½ teaspoon powdered mustard
½ teaspoon grated onion
⅛ teaspoon paprika
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
3 drops liquid hot pepper sauce

Thaw frozen steaks. Cut into serving-size portions and place in a single layer in a shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients. Pour sauce over fish and let stand for 4 hours, turning occasionally. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting. Place fish in well-greased, hinged wire grills. Cook about 4 inches from moderately hot coals for 8 minutes. Baste with sauce. Turn and cook for 7 to 10 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serves 6.

¼ teaspoon sage
¼ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce

Thaw frozen steaks. Cut into serving-size portions and place in a single layer in a shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients. Pour sauce over fish and let stand for 4 hours, turning occasionally. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting. Place fish in well-greased, hinged wire grills. Cook about 4 inches from moderately hot coals for 8 minutes. Baste with sauce. Turn and cook for 7 to 10 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serves 6.

Dash pepper

Thaw frozen fillets. Skin fillets and cut into strips approximately 1 inch wide by 4 inches long. Place fish in a shallow baking dish. Pour dressing over fish and let stand for 30 minutes. Wash tomatoes. Remove stem ends and cut into sixths. Remove fish, reserving dressing for basting. Roll fillets and place on skewers alternately with tomatoes and potatoes until skewers are filled.

Place kabobs in well-greased, hinged-wire grills. Add salt, pepper, and remaining dressing to margarine; mix thoroughly. Baste kabobs with seasoned margarine. Cook about 4 inches from moderately hot coals for 4 to 6 minutes. Baste with sauce. Turn and cook for 4 to 6 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serves 6.

Bread is indeed the staff of life

Many Americans are eating less bread and rolls. Yet, nutritionists warn that bread is an essential part of any good diet. At the Symposium on Bread and Nutrition sponsored by the American Baking Assn., the subject was discussed with a somewhat scientific approach.

"A tomato sandwich with only a very small amount of butter is ideal," says Dr. Olaf Michelson, professor of Human Nutrition and Foods at Michigan State University. "Bread," he says, "is not so fattening as it often has been maligned to be."

"The explanation lies in what people put on top of the slice of bread which itself contains only 60 calories. An ordinary pat of butter adds 100 calories. Now, if you place a slice of cheese on the buttered slice, the calorie count goes up by 115. Your cheese sandwich now packs a hefty 275 calories. Remember only 60 of these calories come from bread. However, many people still think most of the calories come from the bread" Dr. Michelson observes.

To remain in good health and to carry on normal activities you need a number of nutrients — including a source of energy amino acids, vitamins, and minerals. Bread provides a significant amount of each. The starch in bread becomes an ideal source of energy since the starch is slowly broken down into glucose.

"Another nutritionally important way that bread contributes to our health involves roughage," the Michigan nutritionist who also participated in the 1969 White House Conference of Food, Nutrition and Health says. At Michigan State he did an evaluation of bread as a source of protein for normal college men. "It now appears that roughage of bread in our diet may reduce the incidence of colonic cancer, the second leading cause of cancer mortality in the United States."

Another defender of bread as a vital food at the symposium was Dr. Philip L. White, secretary of the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Assn., who said, "Not all of the misunderstandings about bread have a nutritional overtone.

What has happened to the image of bread is occurring also with other food staples. Bread is one food that always has enjoyed a special significance. Historical references to bread as the staff of life and the implications of breaking bread with family and friends illustrate this special status. However as life styles change food and bread have been assuming different and, I feel, less significant roles in social interaction.

"The decay in the role of food as an expression of love and warm interpersonal relations may be behind some of the attacks leveled against bread. When society changes we tug defensively at the threads of change without ever realizing that the whole fabric is different. So it may be with food faddism in general and with bread in particular," he says.

A variety of ethnic cookbooks available

NEW YORK (UPI) — Soup for breakfast and chicken with lentils and pineapple are among the interesting and often economical ideas in recently published cookbooks about foreign and ethnic cookery.

The soup is suggested by Elizabeth Alston in "The Best of Natural Cooking Around the World" (McKay). It is miso, a spicy bean concoction that's a breakfast staple in Japan. Miss Alston, a former Cordon Bleu Cooking School instructor, has many other inventive and frequently inexpensive suggestions for good, healthful eating without faddism. For instance:

Cheese pancakes for breakfast, cabbage salad with light, low-calorie yogurt dressing, turkey with mild curry sauce and tuna mousse.

Miss Alston's book is good even for beginners, because her shopping, storage and cooking directions are particularly clear.

Some of the world's most unusual ethnic dishes evolved in the Caribbean, where fish, seafood, pork and chicken are widely used because the tropical islands have neither the climate nor the terrain for cattle ranching. In "The Complete Book of Caribbean Cooking" (Evans), Elisabeth Lambert Ortiz shows how the Indians, Africans, Europeans and Asians have blended their diverse cuisines harmoniously in the nearly five centuries since Columbus first made landfall in the islands.

Included are fish, seafood and meat stews, pot roasts, chicken cooked with various fruits and rum, rice and bean combinations, fruit breads, desserts and many soups that make a one-dish meal.

"Geoffrey Holder's Caribbean Cookbook" (Viking) is as captivating as is its multitalented author but more admirable for his writing and illustrations than as a practical kitchen guide. Many of his 77 recipes, especially for salt cod, chicken or fresh fish, are economical, but there is no glossary and no source list for unfamiliar and not readily obtainable ingredients. Holder is best known here as a singer, dancer, and actor.

In "An Invitation to Indian Cooking" by Madhur Jaffrey (Knopf), recipes appear more complicated than they actually are because the ingredient lists are long. The author uses individual spices instead of commercial curry powder.

An initial investment in seasonings is required but the basic ingredients of many dishes are lower-priced items such as ground beef, lamb shoulders and shanks, stewing beef and chicken. Almost all the spices and herbs are sold in supermarkets.

Admirers of Pennsylvania Dutch cooking will find familiar fare in "Food That Really Schmecks" by Edna Staebler (McGraw-Hill Ryerson). The author, a Canadian, grew up in a Mennonite community where plain cooking is the rule: simple chicken and meat dishes with potatoes and fresh vegetables and delectable sweets and sours — preserves and pickles.

For admirers of Chinese cuisine, there are three new publications, each quite different from the others.

"Eighty Precious Chinese Recipes" by May Wong Trent (Macmillan) is almost as good as a live cooking demonstration for teaching techniques. Line drawings accompany each recipe and most are simple to prepare, although some special ingredients will have to be ordered by anyone not living near a Chinese community. The book contains 10 chicken recipes and several with ground beef.

Many recipes in "The Step-by-Step Chinese Cookbook" by Georges Spunt (Crowell) cover two to three pages of fine print. Others are followed by several pages of variations that are hard to understand. The most useful feature of this big book is a 6-page buying guide that tells how many servings or cup measurements are obtained from a pound of various ingredients.

"Peking Cooking" by Kenneth H. C. Lo (Pantheon) is fun to read but I wouldn't try to cook from it. Terminology and measurements are retained from the original British publication and there's no list of mail order sources for special ingredients. The complexity of true Chinese cooking can best be realized from Lo's list of 15 different cooking methods — including scorched-frying. In most other parts of the world, scorched food is an embarrassing mistake!

Cool and easy summer snacks

A warm summer night is an invitation to party on the patio. Scoop out a watermelon for your punchbowl, then set out a cold cut tray for easy pickup treats. Serve frank nips, too. Cut ½ pound skinless franks into 10 slices each. Marinate them in french dressing with a drop of hot pepper sauce added. Serve the nips on picks.

This after-tennis menu will net raves for the cook

Love is a many-splendored thing—unless, of course, you happen to be playing tennis. For, if you are participating in this sport, which promises to become the new American pastime, "love" is a term which means that you have zero points.

The prospect of having zero points, however, does not deter millions of American men, women and children from donning their whites—or a reasonable facsimile—and taking to the courts, racquet in hand. In fact, tennis courts now dot the landscape with nearly the same frequency as gasoline stations and hamburger stands.

Most net enthusiasts agree on several things. Tennis is tremendous exercise, provides a great sense of exhilaration and builds a huge appetite.

This summer, plan a tennis outing—complete with picnic lunch to be served after the last set.

First thing off the courts, before the feast begins, try cooling pre-dinner wine drinks—aptly named Vino Volleys. This delicious blend of lime, blackberry wine and lemon-flavored soda is sure to score points with players and spectators alike.

An easy-to-tote main dish is Serve 'Em Up Meat Pastries, which are delicious heated up over a charcoal grill on the spot or pre-warmed at home and kept in an insulated carrier. The crisp pastry crust envelopes a wine-spiced meat mixture.

The perfect side dish to complement this is 30-Love Salad—crisp vegetables marinated in a light wine dressing and served in lettuce cups. Carry the salad to the picnic site in a plastic bag, dressing and all. Just before eating, drain off excess dressing and serve right from the bag.

Fresh fruit and dessert cheeses, such as Brie or Camembert, will complete this meal with a flair. Be sure to bring along an extra bottle of blackberry wine to enjoy with the cheese and fruit.

This summer, serve up a special apres-tennis meal to your friends and family. Just the thought of all that good food waiting should improve their game.

And, to make your tennis outing just perfect, we offer one small bit of advice: Don't jump over the net—even if you win.

VINO VOLLEYS

½ cup (4 ounces) blackberry wine
Fresh limes
Lemon-flavored soda
Ice

In each tall glass place 4 ounces wine. Squeeze a lime wedge into each. Fill with ice and pour over lemon-flavored soda. Mix and serve.

This may also be prepared in quantity in a vacuum bottle. Add the soda just before serving.

SERVE 'EM UP PASTRIES

Pastry
2 cups flour
2-3rds cup margarine or shortening
¼ cup cold water

Filling
1 pound lean ground beef
½ cup finely chopped onions
¼ pound finely chopped fresh mushrooms
½ cup blackberry wine
½ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 egg yolk
Egg wash (1 egg yolk plus 2 tablespoons water)

MAKE PASTRY: In medium mixing bowl, place flour. Add margarine or shortening and cut in with pastry blender until mixture resembles cornmeal. Add water, and mix until dough is formed (if too crumbly, add more water). Chill. Divide dough in half and roll each half out on floured pastry cloth. Cut into 6-inch squares.

PREPARE FILLING: In skillet, brown ground beef with onions and mushrooms. Add wine, oregano, basil, salt and pepper. Cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in egg yolk. Place about ½ cup of mixture on each of 6 pastry squares. Fold over pastry square to form a triangle. Seal edges with tines of fork. Place on a baking sheet. Pierce top of dough with fork in several places. Brush each triangle with egg wash. Bake in a 425 degree oven for about 20 minutes or until well-browned and pastry flakes easily.

TO CARRY TO PICNIC: Wrap pastries individually in aluminum foil. Heat in low oven, then pack in an insulated carrier.

30-LOVE SALAD

1 cup sliced radishes
1 cup raw cauliflowerettes
½ cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup thinly sliced carrots
½ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup minced green onion (with tops)

Dressing
1 cup vegetable oil
¼ cup pink catawba wine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 teaspoon seasoned pepper
½ teaspoon oregano
Lettuce cups
Radish roses
Parsley

Place raw vegetables in a shallow pan. In a jar, place oil, wine, lemon juice, salt, pepper, oregano. Cover and shake well. Pour over vegetables. Cover with plastic, wrap and refrigerate.

TO CARRY TO PICNIC: Place vegetables and dressing in a large plastic bag. Seal end with a twist-tie. Before serving, open bag and drain off excess dressing. Spoon into lettuce cups and garnish with cherry tomatoes and parsley. Makes 6 servings.

It's the spread, not the bread, dieters must dread

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you think bread is fattening be surprised. It's one-third water.

The water content was cited by Dr. Olaf Mickelsen, president of the American Institute of Nutrition. He was in New York for a symposium on bread and nutrition.

The meeting, sponsored by the American Bakers Association (ABA), undated food editors and writers on new developments in nutrition. But the panelists spent most of their time correcting misconceptions about the staff of life and rebutting faddists' claims that commercial enriched white bread is devitalized, artificial and so starchy that it's fattening.

In answer to the latter, Dr. Mickelsen said:

"People load bread with a tremendous number of calories and then blame the bread."

He said a slice of enriched white bread contains only about 60 calories. A pat of butter doubles the calorie count and butter plus a slice of cheese such as cheddar can increase the total to 275 calories or more.

Mickelsen, professor of the Human Nutrition and Foods and the Biochemistry and Human Development Departments at Michigan State University, described a study he conducted there to evaluate bread as a source of protein for active young men in good health.

Twelve students spent 50 days on a diet in which bread made up 90 to 95 per cent of their protein intake. Each ate eight slices per meal, or 1½ loaves of bread a day.

Mickelsen said the young men not only emerged from the study healthy, but most of the 12 stubjects also still like bread after eating so much of it for nearly two months.

"We didn't set up our study to prove that man could live by bread alone, but our results indicated that he can," Mickelsen added.

Another panelist, Philip L. White, director of the American Medical Association's (AMA) Department of Foods and Nutrition, answered critics who claim flour enrichment doesn't restore nutrients lost in milling.

"It was never meant to," said White. "Enrichment was designed to help correct nutrient deficiencies common 30 years ago."

He said bleaching flour is not designed to destroy nutrients, as some persons have claimed, but to age flour and make it look whiter. He said the whitening is presumably in response to consumer demands and that aging improves flour's baking quality. Chemical bleaching now replaces the older, costlier method of storing and turning flour in warehouses for long periods of speed oxidation.

White said unbleached flour that has been aged is slightly golden in color but it doesn't differ significantly from bleached flour in nutritional quality.

"There are only minor (nutritional) differences between whole wheat and enriched white bread," he said, contrary to faddists' claims. He added that consumer demand determines how much whole grain bread is baked, compared with the enriched white variety.

Ordinary bakers white bread contains only about 3.5 per cent fat, much of which is polyunsaturated because it comes from wheat oils, said White. It's also a low-cholesterol product unless the baker uses a few eggs and a lot of milk, both of which would also increase the calorie count.

Too many persons can't be concerned about the calories in bread. The ABA said per capita consumption of commercial bread and bread type rolls rose from 80.1 pounds per year in 1967 to 84.3 pounds per year in 1971, the most recent date for which figures are available.

Money-saving tips

Here are two money-saving tips on using stale bread. Make melba toast or dried bread crumbs. Place slices in a single layer on a cookie sheet in a 250-degree oven until dry and lightly browned. For crumbs, break into chunks and whirl in blender a few slices at a time. Or place chunks in a plastic bag and or a soft drink bottle. Store tightly covered to prevent softening in humid weather.

Good salads come in pears

When the size you are and the size you'd like to be just don't coincide, and you decide the time has come to do something about your caloric intake, you may have a family problem. Every member of that group may not need to take off pounds, and carrots and celery stalks just won't strike them as the most exciting meal in town.

There are ways, however, of putting together relatively low-calorie entrees so skillfully that no one will know what you're doing, and everyone will praise you for your gourmet touch. Place a lot of importance on attractive groupings of ingredients. Salads come instantly to mind as one-dish meals that can be attractive and delicious, too. Fresh Bartlett pears, now sitting in green and gold splendor in your neighborhood produce section, make a marvelous start for a salad.

Depend on fresh pears to help you through those diet "crisis" periods when you just have to have something sweet. A medium pear, taken chilled from the refrigerator and eaten right of hand, has only 95 calories. It's the perfect neat, sweet treat—but be sure you keep a good supply on hand, even non-dieters can't resist nibbling cold, juicy pears on a warm summer day.

For additional recipes and serving suggestions for this and other summer fruits, send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to "The Fruits of Summer," P.O. Box 4640, Sacramento, CA 95825. You'll receive a 48-page cookbooklet with luscious color illustrations of more than 100 ways to serve California fruits.

Piano tuner turned on by topless shows

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 35-year-old piano tuner announced he is organizing a drive to gather signatures for a ballot petition to make topless and bottomless entertainment legal in San Francisco.

"I don't like to see censorship of any kind except for national security," said David Carlstroem, who also announced his candidacy for the city's board of supervisors.

However, Carlstroem said he doesn't like the nudity featured in North Beach night clubs. "I don't waste my time going there," he said.

Tennessee jobs

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Unemployment in Tennessee has averaged more than 1 per cent below the national average of about 5 per cent during the past year.

He almost had it made

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — The way the police old it, Irineu Manuel Cequinato did almost everything right in planning one big narcotics caper.

Using the confusion of carnival season in Rio de Janeiro to divert attention, police said, Cequinato planned to drive to Paraguay, buy all the marijuana he could find at bargain prices and then sell high at home to carnival celebrants.

He bought a big new car for the trip, police said, purchased $70,000 worth of marijuana and successfully made it back across the border into Brazil. Then, a policeman stopped his car for a routine check— Cequinato had forgotten to put license plates on the car.

PEANUTTY SKYLAB BARS

Treat your junior spacemen who are following the Skylab mission to these delicious cookies. Cream together ½ cup smooth or crunchy peanut buttter, 1 stick margarine and 1 cup packed brown sugar. Beat in 1 egg and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift together 2 cups sifted flour and ¼ teaspoon salt and add to peanut butter mixture. Spread dough on a buttered baking sheet and bake 20 to 25 minutes at 325 degrees. Melt 1 package semisweet chocolate pieces and stir in ½ cup peanut butter. Spread this mixture over the baked mixture while it is still warm. Cut into bars. This recipe makes about 4 dozen bars.

FROZEN BAVARIAN

Convenience foods --easy elegance

Elegant desserts are fun to serve, especially when their preparation is deceivingly simple. Convenience foods, such as pudding and gelatin mixes, are a great aid in preparing these elaborate looking desserts in no time.

Frozen Maple-Nut Bavarian is a spectacular dessert that's sure to be applauded by family and friends. A bavarian is basically an egg custard made with gelatin (to hold its shape) and whipped cream (for richness and a light fluffy texture).

Bavarians lend themselves to a great variety of flavors and are often set in fancy molds for dramatic results. This particular bavarian is frozen rather than refrigerated, and the resulting cool, maple, flavor is sheer delight.

In spite of its fancy appearance, this lovely dessert made with instant pudding is quite simple to prepare. No need for gelatin; the pudding sets this dessert, and heating maple syrup is the only cooking involved. The caramel-nut flavor blends with the syrup for a rich maple-nut taste.

The prepared bavarian may be poured into an 8-cup mold or 16 custard cups for individual desserts. Unmold before your guests arrive and place on a serving plate in the freezer. Garnish with whipped cream and nuts just before serving.

FROZEN MAPLE-NUT BAVARIAN

4 eggs
2-3rds cup hot maple-flavored syrup
4 cups cold milk
2 packages instant caramel nut pudding
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 cup heavy cream, whipped and sweetened with 2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup chopped English walnuts

Beat eggs slightly. Slowly add hot maple syrup to eggs, stirring constantly.

Measure milk into large mixing bowl. Add instant caramel nut pudding and using egg beaters or mixer, slowly beat two minutes. Stir egg mixture into pudding. Fold in plain whipped cream. Place in freezer for 1½ hours, or until very thick; then whip until creamy. Pour into an 8-cup mold or 16 custard cups. Freeze until firm.

At serving time, unmold desserts. Garnish with sweetened whipped cream and chopped English walnuts. Makes 6 servings.

Refreshing is word for this salad

Local fruits and vegetables are in more plentiful supply during summer months. Buying them at this time does save money. As a refreshing summer dish, combine thinly sliced cucumbers and green grapes in a sweetly tart marinade. Salads always are welcome on hot days and this combination will please the serious dieter who may use a sugar substitute to eliminate those sweet calories if desired.

DANISH SLICED CUCUMBER WITH GREEN GRAPES

2 8-inch cucumbers, pared and thinly sliced
1 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons cider vinegar
6 tablespoons water
6 tablespoons sugar
1 cup halved and seeded green grapes (fresh or canned)
Dried dill weed
Salt and black pepper

Sprinkle cucumber slices with salt in small mixing bowl. Allow to stand 15 minutes. Stir together briefly and allow to stand another 15 minutes. Turn cucumbers into strainer to drain off liquid. Combine vinegar, water and sugar in same bowl. Stir until sugar dissolves. Add cucumbers and grapes in layers, sprinkling each layer with a dash of dill weed. Salt and pepper to taste. Cover tightly and chill well. If desired, serve on lettuce cups. Top with dollop of sour cream if desired. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

New food programs encourage good eating habits

NEW YORK (UPI — Two small midwestern colleges and two parochial schools in Louisiana have found ways to cut student complaints about food and, at the same time, encourage good eating habits.

MacMurray College, a small liberal arts school in Jacksonville, Ill., introduced open cafeteria service to its 1,000 students. A continuous service schedule launched last fall provides food without interruption between 7 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. weekdays and during two serving periods on weekends.

St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn., has an even more varied program for its 2,750 undergraduates. It includes vegetarian menus, a special diet program for overweight students and staff members and so-called health foods such as soy bean and soy products, whole wheat and spinach noodles and granola breakfast cereal.

The cafeteria, coffee shop and self-supporting public dining room also serve baked goods prepared at the college and meat cut daily by college butchers.

The MacMurray, St. Olaf and Baton Rouge Diocese programs were described in the School Food Service Journal, a trade publication. It said the Minnesota school added granola, a high protein dry cereal, when a survey showed 60 per cent of the college's breakfast eaters wanted it.

St. Olaf's diet program was launched after food service director Mike Simione joined a weight-loss program that had no connection with the college. Twenty-five students and staff members were accepted in the college's own diet regime. It provides three meals a day tailored to individuals with a weight problem.

Each dieter is removed from the program when he reaches his goal, and no one is allowed to join it without first consulting with his or her doctor.

At MacMurray, the open cafeteria system provides a wider food selection for students and better food merchandising.

With peak periods and crowded conditions eliminated, the staff has more time to produce smaller and more attractive quantities of different foods.

Students are allowed to eat as often as they wish during the day. There are no restructions on second helpings, except for steaks at Sunday dinner.

During the week, breakfast is available between 7 - 10:30 a.m., lunch, between 10:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. and dinner, 4:30 - 6:30 p.m.

The dining hall changes encourage good eating habits because students no longer have to miss meals if they oversleep or have class schedule conficts.

Food waste decreased because sandwiches and grilling orders are prepared individually. An extensive salad bar and a bigger choice of entrees was added without sizeable increases in expenses.

It' a case of more for less. For service director Jerry Gold said his projected budget for the year indicated a substantial reduction in food and labor costs as a result of the expanded service.

In the Louisiana capital, the St. Gerard-Redemptorist Schools use the elementary school cafeteria to serve every grade from kindergarten through senior high school. The route to the building used to take junior and senior high students past a concession stand that served malts, french fries and other teen-aged favorites.

The concession stand was closed after the cafeteria added snack type meals to its menu.

French fries sometimes are available and sandwiches are similar to main dishes on the hot lunch line. They include hamburgers, sloppy joes, fishburgers, church wagon steak burgers and ham poorboys—known in other areas of the United States as heros, grinders or submarines.

Even malts are served at a small charge after lunch has been eaten.

To make the hot lunch as appealing as the sandwich line, doughnuts, cinnamon rolls or a favorite dessert are featured with the regular menu. Both menus are posted in advance and rotated 30-minute lunch periods are used to prevent long lines.

NEW WAYS WITH TOMATOES

Nectarines add zip to bean salad

Fresh nectarines are perfect for eating out-of-hand or sliced over a favorite cereal. Nectarines also blend well with other foods in recipes and their sweet-tart flavor and lovely color make refreshing eating during hot weather. Nectarines are at their peak through September and should be enjoyed while at their juicy best. As a definite change of pace combine them in a Nectarine Bean Salad. Serve with cold cuts, cheese and a fresh homemade bread.

NECTARINE BEAN SALAD

- 1 (27-ounce) can red kidney beans
- ½ cup green pepper rings
- ½ cup onion rings
- ½ cup bottled Italian or French dressing
- 3 fresh nectarines
- 1 quart western iceberg lettuce, Shredded or torn

Drain beans well. Combine with green pepper, onion and dressing. Cover and chill several hours. Halve and slice nectarines. Arrange layers of bean mixture, nectarines and lettuce in serving bowl. Drizzle on any dressing remaining from bean mixture marinade. Serve with additional dressing, if desired Makes 6 servings.

Love apple stars in summer salads

Fresh tomatoes are available all year round, but now the greatest supplies are arriving on the produce market. This is the time to savor the goodness of beefsteak tomatoes which are large, red and slightly elliptical in shape by enjoying them raw in salads or just sliced and dressed in the golden flavor of Spanish olive oil.

The red cherry variety is perhaps better known as the "Love Apple". It is cherry-size and is bright red. Its excellence is shown when it is eaten raw, or in pickles and preserves. San Morzano is the intense red, plum-shape variety that is so popular eaten raw, or used to make tomato pastes and purees.

Tomatoes are best in flavor if they are allowed to ripen on the vine. When shipped long distances, they must be picked green and so are less juicy and flavorful when fully ripened. When purchasing fresh tomatoes, look for ones that are a good color for their variety, firm, rounded and free from blemishes. If they are not to be used immediately include a few that are a little underripe. In general, tomatoes should be heavy in weight for their size.

Whatever variety tomato you select, its flavor will be enhanced by the golden fragrance of olive oil from Spain. Why not serve a pyramid of tomato slices which have been sprinkled with salt and fresh tarragon, and lavishly coated with a dressing of golden olive oil? Try this tomato idea as a salad or as an appetizing first course.

For a new twist to this easy salad idea, try serving fresh tomatoes with various other seasonings or topped with mayonnaise easily made with the convenient goodness of Spanish olive oil. It is most important to remember that olive oil points up the tomato flavor regardless of the manner in which you choose to serve them.

MAYONNAISE-TOMATOES

- 2 egg yolks or 1 whole egg
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons vinegar, wine vinegar or lemon juice
- 1 cup Spanish olive oil
- Tomato slices
- Diced cucumber

In electric blender container, combine egg yolks, mustard, salt, vinegar and ¼ cup of the oil. Cover; turn to high speed. Add remaining oil in a steady stream. Blend well. Chill, covered in refrigerator until ready to use. Makes 1-½ cups. To serve, top fresh tomato slices with diced cucumber and a spoonful of the dressing.

TOMATO PYRAMID

Sprinkle fresh tomato slices with salt and fresh tarragon, or any one of the following:

- One envelope of dry salad dressing mix,
- One envelope of dry spaghetti sauce seasoning mix,
- a sprinkling of curry power and salt, or freshly-ground black pepper.

Cover completely with Spanish olive oil. Refrigerate for an hour or two. Drain and stack in a pyramid. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

STUFFED TOMATOES

Marinate cooked mixed vegetables in any one of the seasoning and oil mixtures suggested in the Tomato Pyramid recipe. Drain and spoon into hollowed-out tomatoes.

TOMATO "SANDWICHES"

Spoon cottage cheese between two slices of tomatoes (marinated as in Tomato Pyramid recipe). Serve with pickles and potato chips.

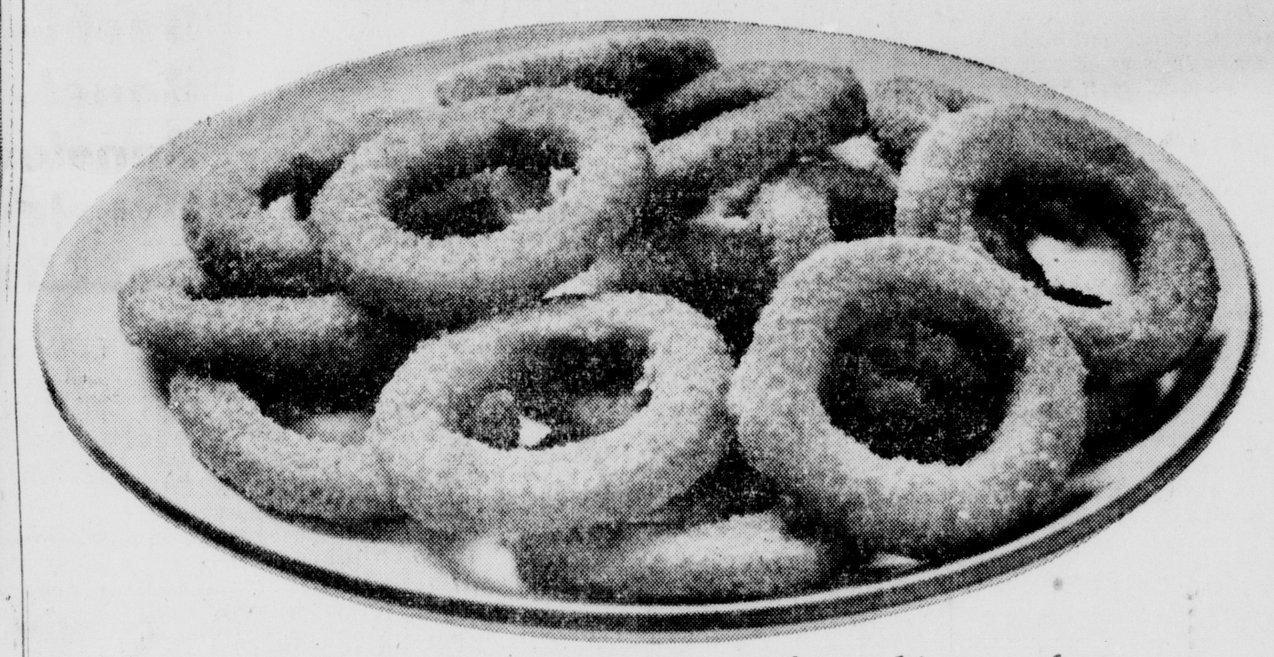
THESE NEW ORE-IDA ONION RINGS TASTE AS GOOD AS THEY LOOK.



Look. Ore-Ida onion rings are formed into perfect circles. And they stay that way. Don't fall apart in the package. Or on your plate.

Taste. Ore-Ida onion rings are made with fresh chopped onions. They give you more sweet onion, more true onion flavor. That's because they have a thinner coating of batter that clings, through oven baking, to a golden, french fried crispness.

Ore-Ida onion rings. Try a bag or box. 10¢ says they taste as good as they look.

New book has advice for cutting food bill in half

(UPI) — Step right up and learn how to cut your grocery bill without resorting to only water and hard bread three times a day. Even in Phase 4.

The invitation sounds like a circus sideshow come-on, I know. But Delight Dixon Omohundro, of Georgetown, Conn., says women are smart enough to win what she calls "the grocery game."

Mrs. Omohundro, mother of three young sons and wife of the man who invented the hairdryer with a bonnet, says pooh-pooh to the consumer advocate advice to "shop harder."

You can shop harder all day and do higher math figuring out your advantages or disadvantages on 8,000 different prices you'll encounter in the typical grocery store—and still not make the best food buys, says Mrs. Omohundro. You need the advice she has jelled.

She's put it all in a guide that challenges shoppers to exercise power as consumers and beat inflation while playing "the grocery game."

Mrs. Omohundro has it all down between the covers of a new book, "How to Win the Grocery Game: A Proven Strategy for Beating Inflation" (Drake).

In an interview, she said the figures are based on phase 2 controls. At that, a family of four could be fed well on $100 a month. Then came phase 3 and the food bill went up to $120. With phase 4, Mrs. Omohundro says the $100 price tag from last January goes to $140 to $150.

Two important lessons, she says, are to pay for food and not the processing or packaging; to cook with the least amount of waste and the most nourishment.

If you follow her strategems, Mrs. Omohundro figures you can cut a $60 grocery bill nearly in half each week. That's like having a $30 increase in take-home pay. The author says it can be done—especially if you have been far from a careful shopper.

She advocates shopping just once a week and frets over money wasted when working couples or working singles go food shopping every day.

"Never spend more than one-half an hour in a store," the cost-conscious shopper and nutrition-conscious cook said.

"Studies have shown that after a half hour in a store blinking slows down and the pupils change—slightly trancelike. I get groggy. When you're in a trance or groggy you buy on impulse, you buy wrong and you waste money."

The Georgetown matron suggests 45 minutes planning before you shop and also, shop more than one store. Her planning starts with tearing all the food ads out of the paper.

Then make a chart, with the store names at top and the food items listed down the left side. Draw lines down and across. Put in all the specials at the various stores. Shop the specials but only within your plan for the week's meals.

Avoid convenience foods. You'll spend more than you would from scratch except in the case of instant mashed potatoes, frozen orange juice, some chocolate cake mix, ice cream and bread.

Mrs. Omohundro is a marketing expert, one of the few female ones. Before retiring to motherhood she worked with large marketing organizations in the nation. Winner of numerous awards, she was the first woman graduate of the American Management Association's course in marketing.

She believes the women of America can win the grocery game. The problems with food —high prices and spotty supplies—would not be so great, as she put it, "If we had more women in Washington."

"I recommend that we send more women to Washington," she said. "Men can handle the big international problems but women should handle the family budget."

Her basic game plan:

—Buy lower-price foods exclusively. The less tender cuts of meat, the less popular types, special purchases the store has made, things the store wants to get rid of. On fruit, "I've made an unwritten law that I won't pay more than five cents apiece for fresh fruit. This is a handy rule of thumb. You'll find yourself buying shorter bananas and smaller apples.

"The search for lower-priced food extends to all manner of canned goods and staples. Rule No. 1 should be a frame of mind, a shopping way of life. In his book, 'How to Be a Millionaire,' J. Paul Getty singles out thrift as a secret of success. Your supermarket is as good a place as any to start."

— Eliminate unnecessary items. Don't buy things you don't need. The more attention you give to buying essentials, the more immune you're going to be to the frivolities.

—Know what things cost or should cost. A general target price for canned goods: a penny an ounce is a good buy. A bargain. As the price edges up from that there's less bargain.

—Buy it when it's there. Soon you will know how to recognize a genuine bargain. When you see an incredible price, buy. If you've been following the ads and know that good roasting chickens run around 49 cents a pound, and you find some for 29 cents, buy.

—Do it yourself. Bologna pre-sliced has figured in the price around $9 an hour for the expense of slicing and packaging. Buy the whole piece. Same with chickens. Takes about five minutes to cut one up. Also make stews, home made soup, pies and cakes, cookies, spaghetti sauce. The savings are enormous. You can make a huge pot of spaghetti sauce at one-fourth the cost of store-bought sauce.

—Substitute ingredients. Instead of cream, for example, use evaporated milk.

—Plan your menus and live with them.

Mrs. Omohundro also recommends what she calls weekly DOLODOL, the automatic economy menu guide. This is to cut your food bill in half. The letters mean as follows:

—Double meal meat; One-meal meat; Leftover meat; One-meal meat; Double-meal meat; One-meal meat; Leftover meat.

A double-meal meat is one that is enough for two meals plus lunch sandwiches. A one-meal meat is just what it sounds like. Leftovers?

2 executives accused in fraud case

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two executives of CBS' Records Division have been accused by the company of plotting to obtain more than $300,000 in fraudulent expense reimbursements.

A suit filed by the Columbia Broadcasting System Inc. in Manhattan Supreme Court charged David Wynshaw, a director of special marketing projects, and Anthony Rubino, director of marketing administration, with conspiring since 1970 to submit false and misleading invoices.

Wynshaw, of New York, and Rubino, of Wyckoff, N.J., allegedly used the funds obtained for their own benefit and that of unnamed co-conspirators.

Time lag hurts Dodgers

LOCAL - NATIONAL
Sports

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. — Time lag caught up with the Dodgers Tuesday night. Or maybe it was a case of the Dodgers not catching up with the time lag.

Playing the Houston Astros in the Astrodome at 5:30 p.m. California time, Dodger bodies were ready, but Dodgers minds weren't geared to play for another 2½ hours.

As a result, an eight-inning rally that saw a lead-off single and out, and three more hits back-to-back netted only one run.

So instead of a 3-3 tie or possibly a 4-3 lead, the score was 3-2, Houston, and that was the way the game ended even though the losers out-hit the winners 9-4.

Dave Lopes was both the hero and the goat.

Lopes hit his second home run in two days and fourth in the season. He added a single in four at bats to raise his average .293.

But it was the single that proved his and the Dodgers' undoing.

Trailing 3-1 in the eighth inning, Bill Russell led off with a single. Tom Paciorek batted for starter Tommy John against left-handed Dave Roberts and flied to right.

Lopes singled Russell to second. Manny Mota lined a sharp hit to right-center which Cesar Cedeno flagged on one hop and fired toward the plate.

Meanwhile, coach Tommy Lasorda had held Russell up at third. But Lopes hadn't seen this and apparently thought Russell had scored on the play.

Lopes never slowed at second, but rounded the base and raced to third, only to find Russell standing there when he arrived.

Seeing Lopes was also heading for third, Roberts cut the throw off and fired to Doug Rader who tagged both runners. Russell had original possession of the base so Lopes was declared out.

So instead of the bases loaded with one out, there were two outs with runners at first and third. The embarrassment became more acute when Willie Davis slapped a long single scoring Russell and sending Mota around to third. But Joe Ferguson ended the winning by grounding out.

Ferguson nearly wore goat's horns himself in the Houston half of the inning. Tom Agee singled to open the inning and was forced at second by Roger Metzger.

With Cedeno at bat, reliever Jim Brewer cut loose with a wild pitch that bounced to the back stop. Ferguson started to jog after the ball and Metzger, seeing this, raced around second and broke for third.

Ferguson retrieved the ball, fired to Ron Cey and barely nipped the Houston shortstop.

It was a bad night all around.

"I didn't see Russell until I got to third," admitted the crestfallen Lopes. "You can't print what I was thinking. I guess I was a little too aggressive."

Lasorda, who managed Lopes in the minor leagues took it almost as hard.

"I feel bad because it happened to him," he sympathized. "I can imagine how he feels. It was a very unusual thing for him. Davey is an exceptional baserunner and he rarely ever makes a mistake."

Manager Walter Alston took the philosphical view in explaining the play. "I guess it's the price you have to pay sometimes when you're going with youngsters," he said.

"I think Russell had to hold up somewhat," he continued, "to see if Cedeno was going to catch the ball. If there had been two outs, Russell would have been running and Tommy (Lasorda) would have tried to score him. But with one out you have to respect Cedeno's arm and Lasorda held him (Russell) up. It's up to Lopes to look over to third to see what has happened."

The Dodger pitcher, John (10-6), deserved a better fate. In seven innings he had been charged with three runs on allowing just three hits. The runs scored on just two of the hits.

The Astros scored once in the second—on a double, sacrifice, and an error by Russell. The run would have scored anyway. Russell's error merely allowed the batter to reach base, when he should have been retired.

The other pair or runs came in the sixth on one hit. A walk, Cedeno's double, an infield out advancing Cedeno to third, and Rader's sacrifice fly accounted for two runs.

As John commented, "It's a shame to waste those games when you have good stuff. But you win some when you don't have it."

Lasorda summed it up best. "It was just one of those games, gentlemen."

Tonight Al Downing (8-5) tries to even the series against James Rodney Richard (2-0).

DODGER NOTES: The Dodgers are now 3-5 against the Astros this season, 0-3 in the Astrodome and 3-2 in Dodger Stadium. . . .

Roberts is 6-1 at the Astrodome and 5-7 on the road this year. He is 3-6 against Western Division opponents and 8-2 against the Eastern Division. His earned average in the 'Dome is under two per game.

Michael Weaver fights Foreman

There will be an interesting sparring match in the ring at the San Diego Sports Arena Friday night.

For one fighter, it is an opportunity to keep in top shape for his defense of his world heavyweight championship. For the other, it's a great chance to gain experience and publicity.

Pomona's Michael Weaver will be fighting an exhibition with heavyweight champion George Foreman at San Diego Friday.

Foreman is getting ready for his title fight against Joe Roman of Puerto Rico in Japan on Sept. 1. It is his first bout since winning the crown against Joe Frazier.

Meanwhile, Weaver, a 22-year-old Ganesha High product, is preparing for a fight on the Muhammad Ali-Ken Norton card at The Forum on Sept. 10. His opponent hasn't been determined yet but forum promoter Don Fraser thinks it will be Donnie Nelson of Phoenix, Ariz.

"I like the chance to box Foreman," Weaver said. "It's a great opportunity for me. In the past, I have sparred with both Ali and Norton."

Weaver expects the sparring match to last four rounds with both boxers using 16-ounce gloves in an effort to eliminate any cuts.

Boxing is Weaver's main thing with his goal being the heavyweight championship.

Two hours a day

Single, Weaver makes his income by selling vacuum cleaners. He also spends two hours each evening working out at the Sacred Heart Athletic Club's gymnasium behind the Pomona Unified School District's offices on Garey Avenue.

Weaver admits the only sport he participated in while attending Ganesha was track. He didn't become interested in boxing until joining the Marine Corps.

"I got into a fight with a guy on the boxing team," Weaver said. "The coach heard about it and asked me to join the team. I've been interested in boxing ever since."

After winning the All-Marine Corps heavyweight crown in 1971, he also won two Golden Gloves titles before turning pro. His current record after defeaing Billy Ryan last February is 7-2.

Obviously, a good showing at The Forum will be a big boost to Weaver's career.

Who knows, Weaver and Foreman may meet again some day with a heavyweight title on the line.

Sorry to hear about the fate of Pat Rogers, the University of New Mexico linebacker.

Rogers, a former All-CIF star at Damien High who went to New Mexico after playing for Walt Ambord at Pomona College and John Strycula at Citrus, has to give up football because of a congenital spine problem which was aggravated by playing football last season.

As a junior at New Mexico, Rogers was in on 111 tackles.

Pat recently underwent surgery on his back but doctors have told him he can't play football again. He is currently using a cane to walk but will be back to normal soon.

Young Clyde handles Angels

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — Young David Clyde, the pride of Texas, must feel like he is still facing high school teams the way he handles the California Angels.

The 18-year-old lefthander defeated the Angels for the second time in a week Tuesday night. Two of his three major league victories have been over the Californians.

Only the Halos did better this time. Last week in Texas, Clyde helped blank the Halos, 8-0. Tuesday night, he allowed one run in his seven innings of work as the Rangers enjoyed a 4-2 victory.

Clyde, who was pitching for Westchester High in Houston this spring, lived up to all his notcies. He was able to change his speeds effectively against the Angels and showed great poise both on the mound and in his post-game interviews.

"I was lucky tonight," he said with much modesty. "Everything the Angels hit went right at somebody. I still need a lot of work on my breaking pitches."

As usual, Clyde credited everybody for his remarkable success.

"God has to give you the fastball," he said. "I also owe a lot to my father, who would work with me every day after coming home from work. That's something in these times when parents don't have a lot of time to work with their kids."

Clyde, who works only seven innings a game as the Rangers want to protect his arm from overuse, allowed the Angels only four hits and two walks while striking out five batters.

The Angels had two opportunities of getting to Clyde but the youngster pitched out of both jams.

Ken Berry opened the sixth inning with a single and pinch-hitter Billy Grabarkewitz followed with a bloop double to put two runners in scoring position with no outs.

Pinch-hitter Winston Llenas hit a long sacrifice fly to left to score Berry with the Angels' first run off of Clyde in 12 innings. But both Sandy Alomar and Al Gallagher flied out to end the threat.

Veteran Frank Robinson drilled a double off of Clyde to open the seventh inning but stayled at second base as the Texan struck out Bob Oliver, got Richie Scheinblum on a fly and struck out Lee Stanton.

The Angels didn't fare much better against the Ranger relievers. The Halos loaded the bases against Bill Gogolowski in the eighth inning but were turned away empty handed when Gallagher bounced into a double play.

Oliver belted his 14th home run of the season in the ninth off Gogolewski and Scheinblum followed with a single but Bull Durham came out of the bullpen for the final outs.

Meanwhile, Texas was enjoying batting practice against Angel starter Clyde Wright, who was drilled for 10 hits in the six innings of work in losing his 15th game of the season.

Alex Johnson collected two hits and Jim Fregosi added another as the ex-Angels enjoyed their return to Anaheim.

The revived Rangers, going great behind Clyde and Jim 'No-Hit' Bibby, have taken four in a row from the struggling Angels.

In first place as late as June 27, the Angels lost 19 of 29 games in July to sink 8½ games behind co-leaders Oakland and Kansas City in the American League West.

ANGEL NOTES — Ex-Cincinnati star Jim Merritt (4-5) will pitch for the Rangers tonight against Rudy May (6-9) . . .

Thursday's game starts at 6 p.m. because of Texas travel arrangements. In the twinight affair, Sonny Siebert (6-7) will pitch for the Texans against either Nolan Ryan or Bill Singer . . .

The Angels will hold a tryout camp at Anaheim Stadium on Aug. 10-11 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. with players, ages 16-21, invited to attend . . .

Robinson's double enabled him to pass Lou Gehrig for the 28th spot on all-time hit list with 2,722.

OMS to test new rules

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Now it's Ontario Motor Speedway's turn to test the new United States Auto Club rules.

With the fourth running of the California 500 at the OMS facility only a month away, USAC officials are promising high speeds and a more competitive race this year than ever before.

At least Rolla Vollstedt thinks so.

Vollstedt, the car owners' elected representative on the United States Auto Club's Board of Directors, was the featured speaker at the second annual California 500 press luncheon held by Bryant Air Conditioning Company Tuesday at the Sheraton-West.

In briefly explaining the new rules which USAC put into effect after the tragic accidents at this year's Indianapolis 500 and the new racing format for this year's Cal 500, Vollstedt said, "The reduced fuel loads will increase the safety factor but will put a tremendous responsibility on the pit crews.

"All the crews will have to calculate carefully when to bring in their cars and drivers, then refuel the cars at least twice as many times than before in 500-mile races," added the owner of the Bryant Heating and Cooling Special driven by Tom Bigelow. "Add all the pit stops to the more evenly matched cars and you will come up with a better race with more action and greater interest for the spectator."

On the new racing format which includes two 100-mile qualifying races, Vollstedt submitted, "I think we will have a couple of exciting 100-mile sprint races."

But the Portland lumber broker didn't focus a lot of his discussion on the Ontario race — he spent most of the time going into what changes might be made next year.

Vollstdt said that important specification changes have been proposed for next year's cars at a technical meeting held earlier this month at Indianapolis.

"The most radical recommendation concerns engine specifications and performance," he said. "We would like to restrict the horsepower so that naturally aspirated engines can compete with turbo-charged engines. To increase further the safety factor, we are recommending more changes affecting fuel capacity and the location of fuel tanks in the cars. And, we have some additional ideas about wing dimensions."

There were some criticisms about the USAC's changes in the rules right after the Indy 500. It seems that a lot of the static came from those who thought USAC wasn't doing anything about reducing the speed of the cars.

But Vollstedt explained that by reducing the fuel capacity per car the mechanics would have to tune down horsepower in order to get as much mileage as possible out of the 40-gallon tank.

But still the car owner pointed out that one of the recommendations for next year would be to reduce the supercharged engines from 1,000 horsepower to 600 horsepower.

"By restricting the horsepower it'll naturally slow the cars down," he said. "But it will also make the stock block a competitive engine again as opposed to the turbocharged engine."

Along with the turning down the engines, the recommendation competition committee has proposed changesin the body structure of the championship car — changing it to resemble the cars which race in Formula One competition.

Also the committee is recommending that the starting speed for the championship races be moved up.

"We'd like to get all the super speedways like Indianapolis, Ontario and Pocono to provide a minimum starting speed of 100 miles an hour instead of the present 80 MPH," Vollstedt explained. "That way the cars would be starting in a top gear instead of second gear. It would also avoid the juggling which occurred at Indy."

The Indianapolis race has been known for past several years for its shaky starts, but not all of the blame went to USAC.

It's predicted that the 200 mile-per-hour barrier will again be broken this year at Ontario during the time trials.

Saturday, August 25 will see time trial qualifying with each car having three opportunities to turn in two laps on the clock. The fastest two-lap average will stand as the qualifying speed.

The pole position and the other two front row spots for the Cal 500 will be "locked in" by Saturday's time trials. Additional time trial qualifying will be held Sunday morning, August 26 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The starting order of the 33-car field will be determined by the "Twin 100" qualifying races on Sunday, August 26. Odd numbered qualifiers from the time trial sessions will square off in one heat while the even numbered qualifiers will meet in the other with $50,000 in prize money, championship points, and starting berths in the California 500 at stake.

The 500-mile race is scheduled for Sunday, September 2.

Keough makes way for Allen

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Ganesha High and Mt. San Antonio College star Joe Keough was sent to the Iowa Oaks of the American Association Tuesday by the Chicago White Sox to make room for Dick Allen, the American League's Most Valuble Player last year.

Allen was sidelined June 28 with a hairline fracture of a small leg bone. He has been running, riding a bicycle and swinging a bat in a conditioning program to get back in the lineup.

Aaron moving towards Ruth

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron is back moving toward the Babe.

Aaron, who hit his 700th homer July 21, got his 701st Tuesday night in the first game of a doubleheader against the Cincinnati Reds.

Aaron now has 28 homers this season in the Braves' 110 games this season.

The Braves are home tonight against the Cincinnati Reds.

'The Bear' tries to make it with the Broncos

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — O. J. Simpson ran across the television screen one afternoon when Charles Hinton was still a schoolboy in East Orange, N.J.

It left a lasting impression on Hinton, an All-Everything running back in East Orange High. He set his mind that he would one day play for Southern California.

O.J. was gone by the time Hinton first made an appearance at USC, by way of Arizona Western JC, a community college near Yuma with a reputation as a pipeline to major college football.

Hinton related the story, and the trauma of the switch he made from offensive back to defensive back, as he relaxed in his room at Cerritos Hall at Cal Poly University Tuesday afternoon.

Hinton, one of 11 free agents signed by the Denver Broncos, will fight for one of six defensive secondary berths in the next few weeks of summer training.

He learned a little something of what it's going to be like in the pros at the College All-Star game last weekend in Chicago. He was one of four Bronco All-Stars.

"It was a good experience," he pointed out. "It gave me more confidence to play with the pros. Nothing surprised me about Miami. I had built them up as superman in my mind.

"Yes, I was disappointed in not being drafted," said the former Trojan cornerback. "But nothing has ever come easy. I've always had to prove myself. But I think that's helped me. I play best under pressure—pressure breaks pipes, you know. You have to rise to the occasion."

Hinton, dubbed "Sugar Bear" by a teammate who thought he looked like one, is a contradiction in humility and confidence with a bit of candidness thrown in on top of it.

At 5-foot-10 and 190 pounds he resembles another former Trojan, Heisman Trophy winner Mike Garrett.

"They started calling me that for awhile," he said. "But it never stuck. 'Sugar Bear' just seemed to fit. I was 'Charlie' in high school, but just about everybody called me 'Bear' now."

Hinton was on of five Trojan running backs when he started his junior year in the fall in 1971.

Except for punt and kickoff returns, including a 68-yarder in an upset victory over Notre Dame at South Bend, Hinton spent most of the time, in his words, "riding the pine."

"I was one of the minute men. And boy I sure didn't like that," he added chuckling.

The Trojan coaching staff, however, elected to switch him to the defensive secondary following a disappointing 6-4-1 season.

"I almost quit," Hinton admits. "I wanted to carry ball. The ball is the game. Once you have the ball you have the game — you have the game right there—all eyes are on you.

"It was a traumatic experience. They turned me every way but loose as a running back, the entire game is going forward. As a cornerback, the entire game is running backwards.

Hinton attributes his eventual successful transition to the unfamiliar position to sound lessons in the fundamentals of the game taught to him at East Orange High. "I never forgot how to hit, how to tackle, the fundamentals," he pointed out.

"So in the summer before the fall of his senior year, Sugar Bear practiced what came hardest: running backwards.

"I ran backwards constantly. I ran until I could hardly run forward."

And, alas, it paid off. Sugar Bear started all 12 of Southern California's games at cornerback, as the Trojans swept to a perfect season, a National Championship and a Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State on New Years Day.

In 12 games, Hinton was burned only once, when a Stanford receiver got behind him for a TD pass. Over the season he intercepted four, however, and led the club with seven blocked passes.

Sugar Bear will have to make another transtition with the Broncos. On the advice of Trojan head coach John McKay, John Ralston and the Denver staff will take a look at Hinton at safety, a switch he's looking forward to.

"I've always wanted play safety," he said. When you're in the middle you're better able to see the ball and watch the play develop. Besides, you have to be a better athlete to play the corner."

BRONCO NOTES: The agreed Tuesday to lift the suspension on starting offensive guard Larron Jackson, and said the three-year veteran obtained from Houston in 1971 would rejoin the team at Cal Poly sometime today. . . contract negotiations will continue said a Bronco spokesman in a wire story.

Jackson said he was "certain that a fair and equitable contract will be eventually worked out. We have no problems which cannot be resolved."

The Broncos practiced today at 9:30 and 3:30 and will hit the field at the same time Friday. . . Ralston will give the team an afternoon off Saturday after a 9:45 a.m. workout. . . the team will report again Sunday at 6 pm.

Sports news in brief

FORMER LA VERNE COLLEGE third baseman Dave Cripe collected five hits for San Jose Tuesday night in a 7-6 loss to Bakersfield in California League contest at San Jose. Cripe was the starting third baseman on the 1972 La Verne College team that won the NAIA national baseball title.

THE OAKLAND A's picked up three veteran major leaguers for the stretch run in the American League West. Outfielder Vic Davalillo and Jesus Alou and infielder Mike Andrews were purchased from Pittsburgh, and Houston respectively, while Andrews formerly of the Chicago White Sox was signed as a free agent. The addition of Jesus to the Oakland roster makes three Alou brothers who have played for Bay Area teams — either Oakland or the San Francisco Giants.

THREE YEARS TWO contracts and one court case later, Julius Erving finally becomes a New York Net today in a desperation move by the American Basketball Association to prevent yet another of its superstars from jumping leagues. The 23-year old Erving, the ABA's leading scorer with a 31.9 average last season, was "secretly" traded by the Virginia Squires to the Nets Tuesday in exchange for another more lesser-known forward, George Carter, plus the usual 'other considerations."

Tonight's game

Optimist (American) vs. Rod & Gun (Northwest), Montvue Park, 5:30 p.m.

Park Ave. advances to the championship bracket against the Angels from Northwest League Monday.

Park Ave. struck first in the fourth inning with back-to-back singles by Ron Peek and Bill Eldrige.

Greg Stevens walked to load the bases, and Lee McCollum, the pitcher, walked Troy Thomas to score Peek from third. Larry Maleskey hit a 1-2 pitch down the right field line for a double to drive in Eldridge and Stevens to make the score 4-0.

Park Ave. came back in the fifth to score two more runs when relief pitcher Jeff Osborn walked the first batter, then Adkins hit a lon fly to left field for a two-run homer to make the score 6-0.

Clark Brothers' biggest opportunity was in the first inning with one out. Bernard Hurd got on when the third baseman made an error, but Osborn hit into a fielders' choice for the second out. McCollum singled to center to put men at first and second, but Chester Spirlin hit back to the pitcher for the third out.

Eldridge, the pitcher for Park Ave., allowed just four hits, while striking out eight Clark Brothers batters for the win.

Clark Brothers advances to the consolation bracket to face Mautz Flooring, who lost to Angels Monday evening. The two teams play next Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. at Montvue Park.

Gems play Oxnard

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

BURBANK — Pomona Post 30 will call on either southpaw Keith Hartley, or righthanders Larry Pekarcik or Mark Lambert Thursday in the opening round game of the Area 6 American Legion Baseball Tournament.

Friday's games...

Thursday's winners, 7 p.m.

The Gems, sponsored by Larry Wellins Jewelers, travel to Northwest Park in Burbank for a 4 p.m. encounter with Oxnard. The second game of the doubleheader, starting at 7 p.m., will be between Sylmar and Pacific Palisades.

Post 30, riding the crest of a nine-game winning streak including three straight to cop the District 18 crown, sports a 32-10 overall slate.

If Hartley gets the nod, he'll be trying to improve upon a 6-1 record and an impressive 1.26 earned run average. The red head hurled 4 1-3 innings in the District 18 Playoffs allowing five runs and four hits while striking out four.

Pekarcik posted a 1-1 mark after coming to the Gems from the Pomona Connie Mack Kings and pitched effectively sporting a 2.04 ERA. Larry hurled three innings allowing one run and three hits while striking out five in helping the team to the district title.

Lambert did not appear in the playoffs but won six of eight decisions during the regular season while posting a 2.32 ERA.

Either Bill Wilkinson or Jeff Corkill will handle the catching chores with Greg Ballard at first, Eddie Carmean at second, Conde Rael at third, and Wil Lewallen handling the shortstop duties.

The outfield will consist of Roger Slayton in right, Keith Thomas in center, and either Corkill or Bobby Chaulk in left.

Wilkinson swatted his first homer of the year in Thursday's 5-2 playoff win over West Covina. Ballard picked up one of the pitching wins, clubbed a home run and batted .615. Slayton collected 10 hits in 15 wins at bats for a .667 mark to lead all performers, besides blasting a roundtripper.

Lewallen will be ready to resume shortstop duties after suffering a bone bruise on his elbow from being hit by a pitch Saturday.

Norton chooses sparring mate

GILMAN HOT SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Light heavyweight Eddie Jones of Los Angeles will join Ken Norton's training camp here Friday as the ex-Marine's chief sparring partner.

Norton, 28, is preparing for his Sept. 10 rematch with former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali at the Forum in Inglewood, Calif.

The San Diego-based Norton scored a 12-round split decision over Ali at San Diego March 31. Ali suffered a broken jaw in the fight.

Eddie Futch, Norton's trainer, said he wanted to use Jones because of his quickness.

Diamond Bar, Chino seek Section title

MONTCLAIR —The Pomona Valley field has been cut to two in the national Little League tournament with District champions Diamond Bar and Chino National continuing their path to the World Series in Williamsport, Pa.

Friday's game
Tonight's winner vs. Thursday's winner, 7 p.m.

Montclair Central Little League will host the Section 7 tournament at John F. Kennedy Park starting tonight with four teams hoping to advance beyond the third step towards th World Series.

Diamond Bar (District 20) plays Riverside La Sierra (District 24) tonight while Chino National (District 23) battles Colton Terrace (District 21). The two winners meet Friday with the survivor returning to Kennedy Park Saturday for the Section championship after the winner from a similar four-team tournament at Cypress.

All games here begin at 7 p.m.

The Section championship advances to the state tournament next week at Santa Clara. The next goals are the Western Regionals at San Bernardino and the World Series in Williamsport.

Both Diamond Bar and Chino National won four consecutive games to win District championships.

Diamond Bar beat Pomona American, 3-0; Claremont American, 10-3; San Dimas, 12-0; and Pomona National, 8-2. In a series of close games, Chino National defeated Upland Foothill, 8-7; Upland American, 7-5; Upland National, 8-7; and Ontario Eastern, 4-2.

Manager Buzz Nunn of Diamond Bar has his pitching sensation Kevin Gross, ready for action tonight.

Gross has been sensational in the tournament, pitching a perfect game against Pomona American and coming with-in one out of a no-hitter versus San Dimas, settling for a one-hitter.

Diamond Bar showed great balance in winning the District championship. Six different players hit home runs in the four victories with Joel Nunn and Vincent Hall belting grand slams.

Chino National, coached by former Cal Poly quarterback Jack Surina, has been winning the close games with Jerry Ramirez' bat leading the way.

Ramirez has hit home runs in every game in the tournament as Chino National has hit 11 round trippers all together in displaying his muscle.

Surina will probably start his brother, John, on the mound Thursday. The young Surina won two games in the District playoffs while Gary Niekirk picked up the other two victories.

Montclair conducts swim meet

MONTCLAIR — The Montclair Swim Team will host the Mt. Baldy League finals at the Montclair High pool Saturday with swimmers from the host club, Pomona, Claremont, Upland and Alta Loma entered.

The meet starts at 8:30 a.m. with the public invited.

Alice Hall of Montclair won the 11-12 age group high point trophy last week at the Inland Empire Conference Championships at Cajon High in San Bernardino. She placed first in the 50-yard breaststroke, the 100-yard freestyle and the 200-yard freestyle, setting an Inland Empire record in the latter event with a time of 2:10.7.

Other first place winners for Montclair were Barbara Schuld in the 15-17 50-yard butterfly, Mike Harbottle in the 15-17 100-yard breaststroke and Jim Woods in the 15-17 200-yard freestyle.

Earning second place ribbons were Earl Welliver in the 11-12 50-yard butterfly and 100-yard freestyle, Schuld in the 15-17 100-yard freestyle, Michelle Thompson in the 15-17 100-yard freestyle and Christine Johanson in the 15-17 50-yard butterfly.

Rentzel hopes to return for Dallas game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said Tuesday that he hopes Lance Rentzel will be back in uniform for the Los Angeles Rams' Friday night exhibition game against the Dallas Cowboys.

Rentzel has been suspended indefinitely by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle but Garvey said the NFLPA will file a suit in federal district court in Los Angeles on Wednesday or Thursday to challenge the suspension.

Citing "some similarities" with the Jane Blaylock golfing case Garvey said in his Washington office that the NFLPA will ask for an immediate injunction overturning Rozelle's suspension so Rentzel can return to the Rams right now.

Los Angeles is scheduled to play the Dallas Cowboys Friday night in the first exhibition game for both teams.

In the Jane Blaylock case, the golfer was suspended last year by the Ladies Professional Golf Association for "unethical conduct." The LPGA had claimed Miss Blaylock was guilty of cheating.

In U.S. District Court in Atlanta, Miss Blaylock gained an injunction against the LPGA which permitted her to continue on her tour. Last month (June 22), Judge Charles A. Moye, Jr. ruled that the LPGA's action was a "naked restraint of trade" and that the suspension was "tantamount to total exclusion from the market of professional golf."

Judge Moye also ruled that Miss Blaylock could collect the winnings she earned during the year of suspension, which ended on May 31, 1973. She had been able to play during that year because of the injunction. The LPGA is appealing that ruling.

Garvey said that the NFLPA had been in contact with Miss Blaylock's attorneys. "There are some similarities in the cases although she was suspended by an association while Rentzel was suspended by a commissioner," he said.

Garvey said the Minneapolis law firm of Lindquist and Vennum, which is the NFLPA's counsel, would file the suit in Los Angeles with Ed Glennon handling the case. "It'll be filed either Wednesday or Thursday, depending on when all the legal papers are drawn up," he said.

Rentzel was suspended by Rozelle for "conduct detrimental to pro football." He was arrested on Jan. 11 for possession of marijuana. He pleaded guilty but is appealing the case. Previously, he had been arrested and pleaded guilty in both Minneapolis and Dallas to charges of indecent exposure.

But Rentzel, contacted in Los Angeles, said he feels "very confident" he will be exonerated on the marijuana charge on appeal. Rentzel claims he pleaded guilty so he could play football this year while the case was being heard on appeal.

McGuire signs Knicks' pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Marquette backcourt ace Allie McGuire, hoping to continue following in his father's footsteps, Tuesday signed a professional contract with the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association.

McGuire, who played for his father, Al, at Marquette for three years and holds that school's career assist record (322(, was the Knicks' No. 3 draft choice this past year. The elder McGuire played guard for the Knicks for three seasons in the early 1950's.

Billy Martin enjoys last laugh on Milwaukee fans

By United Press International

Billy Martin is having the last laugh on the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Brewers were planning to have some fun with Martin tonight prior to their game with the Detroit Tigers by holding "Chinese Aviation Night," sort of mock tribute to the Tigers' manager for his derogatory statement earlier this season about the Brewers' pennant chances.

"If the Milwaukee Brewers are a pennant contender, then I'm a Chinese aviator," was what Martin said early in the season. Well, the fans were being asked to dress up as Chinese aviators tonight and Martin is supposed to participate in the pre-game ceremonies.

But the joke isn't really going to be on Martin after all. The Tigers saw to that Tuesday night by sweeping a doubleheader from the Brewers 6-5 and 9-4. The twin loss dropped the Brewers 7 ½ games behind the American League East Division leading New York Yankees, who defeated Boston 5-4, and Martin may prove to be right before the season is over.

In other AL games, Baltimore topped Cleveland 5-1, Texas beat California 4-2, Oakland nipped Minnesota 4-3 in 11 innings and Kansas City edged Chicago 2-1.

Cincinnati took two from Atlanta 9-5 and 13-11, Pittsburgh defeated New York 4-1, Houston edged Los Angeles 3-2 San Francisco topped San Diego 5-1, St. Louis defeated Montreal 10-5 and after losing the opener 4-3 in National League games.

The Tigers' doubleheader sweep stretched their winning streak to seven games and moved them to within two games of first place in the AL East. Bill Freehan's single in the seventh inning capped a three-run rally that gave Detroit its victory in the opener and home runs by Gates Brown, Dick McAuliffe and Jim Northrup proved decisive in the nightcap.

Woody Fryman worked the first seven innings of the nightcap to post his first victory since April 26. He had lost seven in a row after winning his first two decisions. George Scott homered for the Brewers in the opener while John Briggs connected for them in the nightcap. Dave May's 24-game hitting streak came to an end in the second game.

Bobby Murcer's two-run single capped a three-run ninth inning rally as the Yankees came from behind to defeat the Red Sox. Felipe Alou started the ninth inning uprising with a homer and singles by Gene Michael, Matty Alou and Roy White preceded Murcer's hit. Murcer also singled home an earlier run. Tommy Harper and Carlton Fisk homered for the Red Sox.

Jim Palmer tossed a three-hitter as Baltimore remained one game behind the Yankees with a victory over the Indians. Palmer, boosting his record to 13-6, notched his fifth straight victory. Earl Williams supported him with a homer while Charlie Spikes homered for the Indians.

Rookie David Clyde pitched a four-hitter for seven innings in sparking the Rangers to their ninth triumph in 11 games. Clyde, only 18, gave up one run and was relieved by Bill Gogolewski after throwing his allotted number of 100 pitches. Bob Oliver had a homer for the Angels.

Ray Fosse's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning enabled the A's to defeat the Twins and brought Ken Holtzman his 16th victory. Deron Johnson opened the 11th with a double and pinch-runner John Odom moved to third when Jerry Terrell dropped a throw on a force play. Odom scored on Fosse's fly ball.

Rich Reichardt, playing in Chicago for the first time since he left the White Sox to become a free agent, doubled in two first inning runs to give Kansas City its victory. Paul Splittorff, with ninth inning relief help, registered his 14th triumph. Dick Allen out since June 28 when he suffered a broken bone in his left leg returned to the lineup for the White Sox and collected three singles in four at-bats.

Can a team score 16 runs in two games and lose both? The Atlanta Braves can. Their pitching staff was clobbered by Cincinnati twice despite Hank Aaron's 701st homer in the first game and his 400-foot pinch-hit sacrifice fly in the second when he just missed a grand slam. Joe Morgan collected seven hits in the two games including three homers. His third was a two-run blast in the ninth inning of the second game that snapped an 11-11 tie and climaxed a five-run rally. Two-run homers by Morgan and Tony Perez in the seventh inning of the opener snapped a 3-3 tie.

The Pittsburgh Pirates may be on their way. The three-time defending Eastern Division champions continued to roll as they beat New York on the four-hit pitching of Dock Ellis and Ramon Hernandez. Run-scoring singles by Rennie Stennett and Manny Sanguillen helped beat Jerry Koosman.

St. Louis maintained its lead in the East by routing Montreal as Ted Simmons and Joe Torre cracked three-run homers. Alan Foster went six innings to get the win and Ernie McAnally suffered the loss.

Chicago fell two games back of the Cards by splitting with Philadelphia. Billy Williams drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly to pace Chicago to the opening game victory. But the Cubs lost a chance for a sweep in the second game when winning pitcher Ken Brett helped his own cause with a two-run single. Brett pitched a nine-hitter to beat Milt Pappas.

Juan Marichal pitched an eight-hitter to lead San Francisco over San Diego. Bobby Bonds collected three hits including his 29th homer. Marichal and Bob Gibson of St. Louis are now tied for the lead among active pitchers with 236 career wins.

NFL clubs face heavy schedule

By United Press International

After three weeks of heavy work under the hot sun, National Football League players finally get into live action this weekend.

Following last weekend's two pre-season openers, 11 games are scheduled for this weekend.

The New York Jets are at Houston, the Detroit Lions at Washington and the Dallas Cowboys at Los Angeles to open a long weekend Friday night. On Saturday, Cincinnati is at Miami, Baltimore at Pittsburgh, Buffalo plays Philadelphia at Jacksonville, Fla., the New York Giants are at San Diego, New Orleans at Kansas City and Chicago takes on Green Bay at Milwaukee.

Oakland is at New England on Sunday while on Monday night, San Francisco is at Cleveland.

In news from the training camps Tuesday, defensive tackle Don Croft will be lost to the Buffalo Bills for three months after undergoing knee surgery. Croft started the Bills' final 12 games last season.

Pete Van Valkenburg, a rookie running back who was a high draft choice for New Orleans, returned to the Saints after missing two weeks of practice with a pulled hamstring.

Jerry DePoyster, the kicker claimed by Cleveland just last week, told the Browns he is retiring from football. DePoyster lost his job with Oakland when the Raiders made Ray Guy of Southern Mississippi their No. 1 draft pick.

Wide receiver Isaac Curtis, the Cincinnati Bengals' No. 1 draft pick, pulled a muscle in his first workout with the club. Curtis reported to the Bengals Monday after playing in the College All-Star game last week in Chicago.

MEAT SHORTAGE THREATENS . . . . . .
Because of shortages resulting from Government - imposed economic controls, you may find some cuts of meat missing from store cases.
During the freeze which was in effect from June 13 to July 18, farmers cut back production or delayed marketing some products because the ceiling price that processors or retailers could pay would not cover the farmers' expenses. Many meat plant operations have been shut down because of supply and cost problems.
The continued freeze on beef prices until September 12, has created a particularly bad short - term supply situation, which is beyond our control. Future supplies are unpredictable at this time.
In the meantime, we will try to bring you as wide a variety at as reasonable a price as possible. Any retail price increases are the direct reflection of the increased cost of raw agricultural products only.
Thank you for your patience and understanding.

Two-state battle in Cal-Neva 150

IRWINDALE — The best of two states will converge on the San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale this Friday evening for the running of the "Cal-Neva 150" sportsman stock car race.

The stars of Nevada NASCAR racing will move into the southland challenging the local drivers on their home ground for the top spots in this all-important race carrying double championship points.

The red-hot action will get underway at 7:30 p.m. on the half-mile asphalt oval with trophy dashes followed by consolation races for non-qualifiers and the "Cal-Neva 150" running in two 75 lap segments.

Heading the list of Nevada based sportsman stock car racing stars set to invade the Irwindale speedway is point leader, Romey Alderman of Las Vegas, driving a 1966 Chevelle.

Alderman is the Craig Road Speedway point leader and is considered a top threat to the winner's circle.

Other Nevada talent includes former champion, Bob Ruppert, driving a 1964 Chevelle and Bob Van Norman, Jim Sanderson and Gus Newman.

Forgetting their personal differences brought by their heated track championship battle, Ivan Baldwin and Bill Spencer will unite against the out-of-state threat along with some 60 other southern California racing stars.

Time trials begin at 6 p.m. on the 4900 Rivergrade Road oval in Irwindale.

The NASCAR stars move to Craig Road Speedway in Las Vegas on Saturday for the final race of the two race series.

What ever happened to Viceroy team?

By DEKE HOULGATE

Some of the smartest people in racing claim that Al Unser is the best all-around driver in the country. Other astute observers say that the Viceroy Special he drives is the best car on the U. S. Auto Club championship circuit.

Unfortunately for Unser and the Vel's Parnelli Jones Racing Team, the 1973 box score for Al and Parneli isn't all that wonderful.

Al Unser has led four of the six races held so far but won only the 200-miler at Texas World Speedway. His teammate Mario Andretti has won only once race, and the other driver in the PJ stable, Joe Leonard, hasn't even come close. What has gone wrong?

"We just don't know," the youngest Unser brother said frankly. "It's just one of those things. We don't seem to put things together. Like last year, I only finished four or five races.

"We think our cars are better than they were a year ago, but we are still having handling problems. We are trying to work them out, but we can't seem to put a finger on them."

Al wasn't trying to cop out, but he pointedly remarked that Dan Gurnery's Eagle team has had its embarrassing moments in years past. Al believes the Maurice Phillippe-designed Parnellis are going through the same painful process and will eventually emerge as unbeatable race cars.

"I can remember the 1970 Eagle," Al said. "It was no good. The design was junk. People forget all the bad years Dan had after his two good years."

More than one of the Viceroy "super team" competitors have labled Unser and Andretti as the men to beat in championship racing this season. How soon will the potential of the Viceroy cars and drivers be known?

"We won't really know till the end of the year," Al said. "Then we will sit down with the designer and the mechanics and assess the season. We'll either make changes to the cars or build new ones."

Preparing for the California 500 at Ontario Sept. 2 is Unser's big project for the moment, and because of the new USAC rules Al is approaching the race differently than he planned to originally.

"It's a different race this year," he said. "Between speed and pit stops you're going to have to be sharper all day to win. It will be very important to make good, honest, clean pit stops. A guy just has to take better care of his car."

Cutting fuel capacity from 75 to 40 gallons has doubled the number of pit stops required to run 500 miles. That means, of course, that pit crews will have to perform more efficiently, but Al claims it will place a bigger responsibility on the driver as well.

Coming in and out of the pits a driver can burn the clutch, miss a shift and overrev his engine or abuse his gearbox. Each additional stop gives him the opportunity to make one of those mistakes.

Al bitterly assails the new "safety" rules of USAC, put in after Indy's horrors. Cutting fuel capacity, he said, has knocked almost 250 lb. of weight off the cars, making them faster, and shortening the interval between pit stops. This has allowed the use of a softer tire that wears out sooner but also makes the cars faster between stops. He also doesn't like having all the fuel on the left uside of the car — the side he hit when he went into the wall at Pocono at 150 m.p.h.

Al would like USAC to concentrate on making fuel cells stronger. He believes speed is not the culprit and cites the Salt Walther and Swede Savage crashes to bolster his arguments.

"Salt was only doing about 115 when he crashed, and Swede was doing about 165 when he lost it, not 200."

The other day John Bishop and his new sanctioning body, the International Motor Sports Assn., were welcomed to the august Automobile Competition Committee of the United States (ACCUS).

It took a couple of years before Bishop's application was processed, and there were a couple of special charges he had to pay in addition to the $1,000-a-year dues. IMSA paid a non-refundable application fee of $1,000 and an initiation fee of $2,000, both of which he characterized as new house rules.

Bishop jokes wryly about his $4,000 investment in joining the Establishment.

"Our application wasn't wholeheartedly received," he said. "Before us there were no membership standards, so ACCUS named a committee which spent money for a year on high-priced New York lawyers to study the standards. And we still got in."

Why did Bishop, a former member of the committee when he was an SCAA executive, wait so long, try so hard and put out so much money to join?

"I hope we can make a contribution to motor racing in the United States," he said, adding that IMSA hopes to share in the most important benefit of belonging to ACCUS — having its important races listed on the international calendar so that non-members can participate.

Daytona International Speedway would like to invite foreign drivers to a road race it plans late in the year, and now that IMSA has corralled the Sebring 12-hour enduro — once the premiere international race in this country — Bishop would like foreign drivers in that race too.

ACCUS membership also represents grudging acceptance of the success of upstart IMSA, which had the affrontery to go out and sign two important commercial sponsors and build two of the best spectator-oriented road racing series in the U.S. virtually from scratch.

They are companion endurance events, one for small-engine sedans running on street-legal tires called the Goodrich Radial Challenge and the other for exciting Corvettes, Porsches and other touring and grand touring cars. It is called the Camel GT Challenge.

The most recent race held, at Mid-Ohio, drew spectacular crowds. The Goodrich six-hour drew record attendance Saturday of 13,000, and the Camel six-hour attracted 31,000 to the track that is more than 60 miles from the nearest metropolitan area.

IMSA is big in the Southeast and East but has had trouble lining up dates on the West Coast and some other parts of the country. Bishop claims that rival SCCA has pressured its promoters not to book IMSA races, but he isn't worried that he will be unable to schedule events where and when he wants them in the future.

"Sure, we're being blocked," Bishop said. "I believe it's just misguided loyalty. Once the promoters are convinced that ours is a good show, they'll come to us and ask for races.

Southland racing

CORONA — The most exciting type of racing ever witnessed comes to Corona Raceway in the form of quarter oval, powder puff and figure 8's Saturday night.

The action gets under way with the "Women's Libbers" showing the men that they can handle themselves on the tricky oval. Among some of the notable women drivers are, Connie Church, Bev Arnold, Diane Skillman, Barbara Llewellyn and the 50 year old great grandmother Mabel Masters.

The men will follow the women on the oval track as the six fatest cars dice for the win in the trophy dash. The heat races will follow the dashes, and the last event on the oval will be the 15 plap main event. Dorsey Steele will be pulling out all stops in his effort to pull out his sixth win of the season. Sure to be on his tail will be super fast Roger Hester, Larry Lord, Dale Perry and Larry Bishoff.

IRWINDALE — Borrowing from big league baseball's book, Irwindale Raceway will present a special T-shirt night this coming Saturday featuring all of drag racing's pro categories and a California Land Speed Record attempt by the nation's newest rocket powered vehicle.

Every fan who purchases a pit pass, usually about 80 per cent according to management, will receive a free Irwindale Raceway T-shirt silkscreened two color both sides. Once in the the pits the new shirt owners will find a massive array of 240 mph Top Fuel dragsters, AA-Funny cars and Pro Stocks.

Over 35 fuelers are expected to quality for a 16 car field, standout entries include PDA Champ James Warren, the sport's quickest shoe-Don Moody, World Series winner Walt Rhoades, Bakersfield March Meet winner Dwight Salisbury and T.B. Samilwood's Memphis based beauty with Les Allen of Bellflower aboard.

IRWINDALE — The claimer stock cars of United States Racing Club will make one of their rare appearances on the half-mile racing oval at San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale this Saturday night at 7:30 p.m.

Racing on the quarter-mile at the speedway each week the speedsters will move out onto the super fast larger track for competition in trophy dashes, consolation races and a 100 lap main event run in two 50 lap segments with a pit stop at the alfway mark.

VALENCIA — Eddie Cole of Saugus, who campaigns a rapid imported Penton motorcycle in the 125 cc displacement division for proofessional riders, will be seeking his 28th and 29th straight overall victories on the bound-and-bounce courses during a pair of motocross racing features Friday night and Sunday at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

Considered by many as the top rider of lightweight machinery in the United States, "red-hot Cole has even more at stake than keeping his win streak intact; he's hoping to gain a berth on the American competition team which will be meeting European riders for the first time ever in a 125cc world championship round later this year. And wins Friday and Sunday would definitely enhance his chances of receiving an invitation to participate in the classic that will be held in Ohio.

SAN BERNARDINO — Following a highly successful northern tour of the NASCAR Grand National West late model stock cars will race at the Orange Show Speedway in San Bernardino on Saturday night.

The 1971, '72 and '73 stock cars will run in a trophy dash, heat races and 100 lap championship main event on the tight quarter-mile speedway with over $6000 in prize monies on the line.

Of the 500 top banks in deposits in the free enterprise world, 175 were American.

Energy Fund portfolio

By ROGER SPEAR

Q — My husband and I are in our late forties, have substantial savings and are now interested in investing $100 a month in Energy Fund for future growth. Never having invested before and knowing very little about the stock market we would appreciate your opinion of this fund. —T.O.

A — This fund is conservatively managed, investing for long-term appreciation rather than for short swings. A portfolio turnover rate of 50 per cent or under annually is management's goal. The top-10 holdings in Energy's portfolio, which constitute less than 30 per cent of total asset value, include Exxon, Amer. Tel. & Tel., Chicago Bridge & iron and Atlantic Richfield.

Over the last five years, 1968-72, the fund has not been an outstanding performer reflecting the weak market that existed for oil and gas stocks and utilities, which together represent about 30 per cent of the fund's holdings. At this juncture, however, with the energy crisis in the forefront, oils have been a bright spot in a sagging stock market. A monthly investment plan with this fund appears well-suited to your particular aims.

Q — I am retired from Campbell Soup Co. (NYSE) and have some shares of their stock. Do you think it would be wise for me to sell these and buy savings certicates? Would I receive more on my investment? — B.M.

A— Since these shares are yielding around 4 per cent currently, you certainly would earn more on savings certificates which return 5¾ per cent and up. However, there is no possibility of capital appreciation from fixed-income investments such as savings certificates. One alternative suggestion would be to sell half these shares and put the proceeds in certificates.

Campbell earnings for fiscal 1973 are expected to be well ahead of depressed 1972 results. In the first 9 months net gained 42 per cent on a 15 per cent increase in sales, year to year. Although rising commdity costs will exert pressure on profit margins, some increase in selling prices may be allowed in coming months. Also, with dividend controls relaxed, a boost is possible in that rate, which is now well below the maximum allowable payout.

U. S. loans So. Vietnam $50 million

SAIGON UPI) — The United States granted a development loan of $50 million to South Vietnam today the first assistance to this country for postwar economic reconstruction.

The loan will be used to purchase industrial machinery, spare parts and other manufactured products.

The loan agreement was signed by acting Foreign Minister Nguyen Phu Duc and U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin, who arrived last month to succeed Ambassador Elsworth Bunker.

Martin said the development loan was the first made by the United States to South Vietnam since 1961.

The loan will be repaid over a period of 40 years, including a grace period of 10 years.

Two senators call Nixon cancer program a fraud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's two-year-old crash program to conquer cancer through intensive research was denounced Tuesday by two leading senators as a "fraud on the American people."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., made public a memorandum written by Dr. Frank J. Rauscher Jr., director of the National Cancer Institute, complaining that administration budget cuts would "seriously limit" his agency's efforts to find a cancer cure.

Rauscher wrote the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) last Nov. 30, while the fiscal 1974 budget was being prepared, to protest in vain a $140 million OMB cut in his institute's request for $640 million.

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate appropriations subcommittee on health, said his panel would "do what should be done to put some of these programs back" into the pending health, education and welfare appropriations bill —including restoring $140 million to the administration's scaled-down $500 million request for cancer research.

The $500 million is $8 million more than Congress appropriated for that purpose last year.

"White House rhetoric about conquering cancer is no more than the rhetoric about other domestic programs —it is a fraud on the American people," the senators said in a joint statement.

"Like so many other promises, this one evaporated just two years later," Magnuson added. "It is clear from a reading of Dr. Rauscher's poignant memo to the OMB that far more than $500 million could be 'effectively used' to combat a disease that has killed millions of Americans."

Mansfield said the memo made clear that "even the fight against our most dread disease, cancer, is suffering in a budget that continues to spend money for unneeded American troops in Europe while gutting crucial programs to help our people at home."

Rauscher said the budget cut would significantly restrict expansion of research into immunologic treatment of cancer, postpone proposed automation of Pap smear tests, prevent development of attempts to control cancers caused by four newly discovered viruses, result in a 50 per cent reduction in lung cancer detection and reduce clinical work on breast cancer, the leading cause of cancer deaths among women.

Killers given death in Mont.

FORSYTH, Mont. (UPI) — Two jail escapers were sentenced to death Monday for the Sept. 28, 1972, fatal shooting of a jeweler during a robbery.

Judge Alfred Coates imposed the sentence on Wallace Rhodes Jr., 25, and James Shields, 21, who fled from a jail in Montain Home, Idaho.

Their executions would be the first in the state since 1943.

Rhodes and Shields were convicted July 19 of robbing Donald Kalberg, 48, Hardin, Mont., and taking him to a highway rest area where they shot him to death.

Talmadge admits pal paid for his outing

WASHINGTON UPI) — Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., a member of the Watergate Committee, admits that he went fishing last winter in the Bahamas with a big government contractor who paid for the flight.

Talmadge issued a statement in response to a report on Wednesday in the Washington Star-News that he was flown to the island of Bimini last winter in a plane owned and operated by Rockwell International, third largest contractor for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"Al Rockwell Jr. has an operation in Albany, Ga.," Talmadge said. "He has been a friend of mine for quite a number of years. I've hunted with him in Georgia on several occasions.

"He invited me to join him on a fishing trip and I went."

The Star-News said the flight, at Rockwell's expense, took place Feb. 9, the day after Congress began a week-long Lincoln's Birthday recess.

Rockwell, in response to the news story, issued a statement saying: "It is company policy not to disclose flight schedules of company airplanes or the name of individuals flying on company airplanes."

According to the newspaper, Rockwell arranged flights on its executive jets to and from Bimini "to meet the scheduling requirements of individual members of Congress, and handled all arrangements for the legislators' stay on the island."

Need aid, mayor says

Expanded transit too costly for San Diego

WASHINGTON (UPI) — San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson Tuesday warned that his city and others like it will not be able to meet regulations requiring expanded public transit unless a "massive increase" in federal funding is forthcoming.

Wilson addressed himself to regulations promulgated by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) which requires substituting buses for automobiles as a means of fighting air pollution.

"Our concern is that the EPA regulations —while providing moral authority and an administrative imperative for expanded public transit —do not ... provide the massive increase in financial assistance that will be inescapably required to actually achieve the expansion of public transit service which the regulations mandate," Wilson said in prepared testimony on mass transportation before a House subcommittee.

San Diego, the nation's 11th largest city, is one of 17 urban areas for which the EPA has imposed transportation control plans.

The standards for San Diego would require a 45 per cent reduction in vehicle miles traveled and a 20 per cent reduction in parking areas. Mass transit would be expected to carry the bulk of travel displaced from automobiles. Wilson said an additional 1,250 buses (the city-owned San Diego Transit Corporation has a fleet of 250) and some 2,400 personnel (at a cost of $40 million) would be needed to meet the regulations.

"It is obvious," he said, "that forcing cities to provide significantly expanded transit service, particularly in the peak hours, must escalate the need for operating assistance."

"Local transit systems are faced with overwhelming deficits and the prospect of increased fares and decreased ridership. We cannot continue to bear this burden alone."

The city government is also alarmed, he testified, by the parking restrictions contained in the EPA regulations. He said the proposals to reduce existing public parking and halt new private parking facilities "preclude the City's partly implemented plans to reduce vehicle miles of travel."

"These plans encourage redevelopment of the urban core and discourage continued, disorderly urban sprawl with its attendant transportation problems that have been so characteristic of the Los Angeles area," Wilson told the legislators.

The EPA proposals, he said, "are counter to the city's plans to change this trend."

Wilson, who was representing the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors, was asked what other mayors think the degree of federal participation in mass transit should be, in terms of funding.

He replied that many are "asking for a 100 per cent subsidizing."

Chairman Joseph Minish, D-N.J., suggested that such a commitment might lead to "federal interference."

"Mr. Chairman," said Wilson, "We've had federal interference for years. We'd just live with it."

Fat youth would rather eat alone

Dear Walt: I am about 50 pounds too fat and am trying to do something about it. What is discouraging is that my parents and my brother and sister all can eat gobs of food, and they still stay skinny. Because of this, I told my mother I'd like to eat separately. She is against this because she says it will not be good for family unity. Which do you think is more important, her feeling or my fat? —Jeff

Dear Jeff: Ask Mom if you might either join the family at the midpoint of the meal, or leave the table after finishing your first helping. If this compromise proposal isn't accepted, your family doctor might prescribe an appetite depressant, in addition to a special selection of foods that minimize calories while meeting daily vitamin requirements.

In addition you'll want to be ultara firm with yourself to make sure you indulge in no between - meal snacks. Good fortitude! —Walt

Dear Ele: This boy I know keeps teasing me to let him try on my clothes. We are just about the same size, and I have worn his clothes when we went camping, so I know they'd fit hom. But it doesn't seem right for a boy to wear my underclothing and dresses and things. The way he puts it, he just wants to understand the feelings women get from their clothing. But I don't know. — Elsa

Dear Elsa: In your spot I'd tell the lad I appreciated the time he loaned me his clothes, and state that I hope he hadn't felt "invaded" by having me in his clothes. And then explain, I, however, would defintely feel "invaded" by having a male in my things, so I'd appreciate it if he dropped the subject.

If he pushed further after I'd stated my honest feelings, I'd tell hom "no" was "NO" and that I'd discuss the subject no further. If the subject surfaced after this, I'd turn and walk away from him until he came to respect my feelings more. —Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: In our town there are four times as many bars as churches and the minimum age to drink is 18. Two of my brothers are already halfway to being alcoholics and I have one uncle who's in a sanitarium right now plus another who died from a bad liver from too much alcohol.

Considering this, I don't plan to ever drink at all. But I know from experience that other people push and push to get you to drink even when you don't want to. What can you say that doesn't sound babyish to refuse and make them respect you?—Warren

Dear Warren: Accept the fact that some people will alsways consider a nondrinker juvenile or nonvirile. In their sad heads, it's part of the male mystique that a man be a two-fisted drinker. For these folks "being able to hold your liquor" equtes with coming of age in Samoa, etc.

Don't allow yourself to be drawn into heavy arguments with such folks. Suffice to say, "That's not my taste," or "I'm in training (. . .for yoga, swimming, long-distance running, etc.)." Never get yourself nto a spot where you have to stay someplace where the boozers will bug you an entire evening. Always have alternate transportation to get home.

And if your resolve ever wavers, talk with some of the doctors at our uncle's sanitarium. There's good reason to think that the tendency towards alcoholism may well run in family lines. —Ele and Walt.

Pomona man named 'Drycleaner of Year'

POMONA — Don Parker, owner of Don's Dry Cleaners at 1773 N. Garey Ave., was selected "Drycleaner of the Year" at the 52nd annual convention of the California Fabricare Institute just concluded in San Jose.

Each year the award is presented to the industry member who makes the greatest contribution to advancement of the industry and improved services for consumers.

In the past two years Parker has served as insurance committee chairman for CIF's 1,800 member drycleaners. In that time he has developed insurance coverage for maximum protection of the consumer as well as the industry he represents.

One such protective consumer service provides insurance coverage for earthquake damage to consumer's goods in process of cleaning. This coverage is now included on all CFI sponsored insurance policies.

In his 20-year membership span with CIF, Parker has been active in supporting education programs for members. These programs keep pace with developments of new fibers, fabrics, and processing techniques in the industry.

Wasted energy

If burned in power plants, the 2½ billion tons of waste — garbage, manure, and vegetable refuse — produced every year in the United States would generate more than half of today's national output of electricity.

Mineral finds on ocean floor excite scientists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government scientist reported Thursday the discovery of a rich ocean bottom manganese deposit which has important implications for mineral exploration on exposed portions of ancient sea floors.

Dr. Peter A. Rona, a research geophysicist with the Atlantic Oceanographic and Meteorological Laboratories in Miami, said the two-inch thick metallic mineral layer was found on the sides of a long valley running the length of the submerged mountain range in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.

Unlike other less pure ocean bottom deposits of manganese Rona said the manganese in the new find was a hydrothermal deposit whic means it formed by the process that results when hot liquids carrying dissolved metals circulate through openings in rocks.

Rona said in a telephone interview that copper, zinc, cobalt, nickel and even silver could be forming the same way on the sea bottom. He emphasized, however, that the initial find was not economically exploitable at the present time.

"The importance of this discovery is to discover that a process is concentrating metallic minerals (on the ocean floor) more efficiently than we realized in the past," he said.

The manganese was dredged up by the NOAA research ship Discoverer last year in water 2½ miles deep midway between the coasts of Florida and Africa. The site was located at 26 degrees north, 45 degrees west.

The mid-ocean ridge is a globe encircling submerged mountain range. The central valley where the deposit was found is believed to represent the center of a sea floor spreading process where molten rock rises up from the interior of the earth and forms new sea floor.

Rona said the hydrothermal mineral deposits are probably related to this upwelling of molten rock.

"We think our discovery has implications for such a process being active in other places of the mid-ocean ridge system," Rona said. If such processes are global, he said this would mean that exposed slices of ancient sea floors —in islands or along continents —might contain such mineral deposits.

An example of this, Rona said, would be the rich copper deposits on the island of Cyprus. He said he believes those deposits were formed on a mid-ocean ridge and were later exposed.

"This should encourage more exploration work on exposed portions of the oceanic ridge," he said.

Manganese, a metal used primarily to strengthen steel, has been known for some time to exist in the form of potato sized nodules on the floors of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Several companies hope to dredge up these nodules for commercial use.

Rona said the new deposit is much more pure —containing 40 per cent manganese —than the nodules. Analysis of the new deposit also indicates it forms at a depth of seven inches per million years, compared to less than half an inch per million years for the odules.

Another oceanographic cruise is scheduled for October and November this year

Justice won't order halt to U.S. bombing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall refused today to order an immediate halt to U.S. bombing in Cambodia, although he hinted he might do so if the decision were his alone.

With the court in summer recess, Marshall said he felt he had to take a broader view to reflect the overall position of the entire court which in the past has sidestepped a direct ruling on the legality of the Indochina war.

The Watergate investigators who requested the suit said that it would not be "proper" to discuss the reasons for any of the research the committee lawyers are doing.

Marshall acted on an appeal by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and four Air Force officers who won an order in a federal district court in New York last week for an immediate bombing halt, but then saw an appeals court suspend the order.

The Holtzman group still did not give up after Marshall's ruling, saying they would take their case to another justice, William O. Douglas, who they presumably felt would look more favorably on their effort. Douglas is on vacation in Goose Prairie, Wash.

They were asking Marshall to set aside the appeals court stay of the district court judge's order for an immediate bombing halt —rather than on Aug. 15 as scheduled.

Meanwhile, they persuaded the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to advance to Aug. 8 its scheduled hearing of the case.

Marshall said that if the decision were his alone, he might well conclude that U.S. military operations in Indochina were unconstitutional, as the Holtzman group contends.

But the justice made clear that was the extent of what he was ruling on —whether the appeals court decision would be vacated. He concluded, "I would exceed my legal authority were I, acting alone, to grant this application."

He added that such a ruling should be made only "with the greatest caution" and only in exceptional circumstances.

Marshall said that the government's contention that vital security interests of the nation rest on continued bombing until Aug. 15 and that irreparable injury will occur if it is halted was subject to "considerable skepticism" by some people.

"But it cannot be denied that the assessment of such injury poses the most sensitive problems about which justices of this Court have little or no information or expertise," he added.

Brown suit is linked to probe on Watergate

WASHINGTON — Senate Watergate investigators Tuesday requested a copy of Rep. George Brown's suit against the Administration over fund impoundment, but would not explain why to reporters.

Brown's suit, filed earlier this year against William Ruckelshaus, then head of the Environmental Protection Agency, concerned impoundment of funds designated to combat water pollution. Brown, D-38th Dist., represents south Pomona, Chino, Montclair and Ontario.

The court originally decided Brown was not sufficiently affected by the issue to instigate the suit.

The city of Los Angeles, however, agreed to be a col-plaintiff, and the case was re-filed and is now pending.

A staff aide to Brown said that the Senate Watergate Committee is interested in any kind of legal action against the President or the administration instigated by a member of Congress.

He speculated that the investigators are looking for ideas for their own possible law suit over President Nixon's refusal to turn over certain tapes and documents.

Raindrops fall on W.E.; muggy days to continue

There is a chance of thundershowers today over nearby mountain and foothill areas but most Pomona Valley communities will have another hot and smoggy day without sprinkles to cool temperatures.

Ontario, Rialto and San Bernardino reported traces of sprinkles Tuesday from a weather system which centered in northern Mexico. Mountain areas near Big Bear reported .12 of an inch of rain from brief storms Tuesday. Yucaipa reported loud thunder but no rainfall during the afternoon.

Wilbur Shigihara of the National Weather Service office in Riverside said thundershowers over foothills and mountain areas is normal for this time of year and at times the moisture reaches into communities near the foothills.

He said the clouds that are bringing threat of moisture should dissipate by Thursday. Temperatures reached 92 degrees in Pomona Monday and highs of 92 degrees are forecast for today and Thursday. This morning's low was 62 degrees.

Both the San Bernardino and Los Angeles air pollution control districts forecast moderate smog for both county areas today. A community alert was called in Upland at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday when the oxidant reading reached .43 particles per million. The alert lasted for one hour and 45 minutes.

The peak reading in Los Angeles County was .34 in Azusa. Pomona reported a smoggy .33 ppm Tuesday afternoon.

Lightning struck and destroyed a tree in the San Gorgonio Wilderness of the San Bernardino National Forest Tuesday. Three men were flown into the inaccessible area and brought the fire under control with hand tools. Lightning also was the cause of a fire in the same area near Falls Creek Monday which burned about an acre. Some 45 men were flown in by helicopter to fight the blaze.

IBM fined in antitrust case

NEW YORK (UPI) — International Business Machines Corp., today was fined $150,000 a day for contempt of court until it turns over to the Federal Court documents demanded by the Justice Department in order to press its antitrust action against IBM.

Chief Judge David N. Edlestein found IBM guilty of contempt and ordered the fine in a pretrial proceeding. Justice Department lawyers had asked for a fine of 5 per cent of IBM's daily earnings, an estimated $177,000 a day. The company's lawyers had suggested a token fine of $100 a day.

Edelstein's order stated flatly that the court would not issue any stay of the order and attorneys in the case said a civil contempt order against a corporation in a pre-trial action cannot be appealed.

Demonstrations welcomed, says Watergate memo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — H. R. Haldeman wrote "good" and "great" next to notations on a memo saying violent and profane demonstrations could be expected when President Nixon and the Rev. Billy Graham appeared at a rally in Charlotte, N.C., last October.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., produced the memo at today's Senate Watergate committee hearing and said it showed that the Nixon White House welcomed demonstrations against the President because of the political backlash such events could inspire.

Haldeman, returning for a third day of testimony, said that was not the case, and insisted Weicker misinterpreted the memo. He acknowledged writing the word "good" alongside a sentence which said demonstrators at the Oct. 5 rally "will be violent" and "will have obscene signs."

Weicker said Haldeman wrote "great" next to a notation saying the demonstrations would be directed against Graham —the President's close personal friend —as well as Nixon.

The atmosphere at the hearing tensed while the memo was discussed. John J. Wilson, Haldeman's lawyer, insisted that Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., use his gavel when laughter erupted as Weicker read the memo.

"Mr. Chairman, I thought silence was to be enforced here!" Wilson called out.

"I wish you could tell me how to keep people from laughing," Ervin replied.

Haldeman said the reason he wrote "great" and "good" next to the anticipation of violence and obscenity was because the American people would thus come to understand that such demonstrations were organized, planned and evil —and not the casual, minor "off-the-cuff" events which he said reporters portrayed them as.

The memo also said that Ronald L. Ziegler, White House press secretary; Gerald L. Warren, his assistant; and Patrick Buchanan, a presidential speechwriter, had expressed concern that "liberals" in the press were becoming aware that the White House had manipulated demonstrations to rebound to its own political advantage.

Weicker said Ronald H. Walker was the memo's author. He did not identify him.

His voice rising, the Republican senator said he wanted to know "exactly what mentality" in the White House would use the words "good" and "great" in anticipation of violence directed against the President.

"Senator, I think I can explain that, I think, very easily," Haldeman responded. He then gave his explanation — that he hoped the demonstration would highlight the White House's "very great" troubles with demonstrators in the 1972 campaign.

Ervin, a North Carolinian, said he attended the rally and it was "one of the most orderly meetings" he had ever attended. He said a federal judge had recently ruled that its organizers had used improper means to bar demonstrators from the arena where the rally was held.

Beef shortage closing in; Canadian beef sales climb

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Supermarket operators complained today that the beef shortage is closing in, and the meat industry said sales of Canadian-slaughtered beef —exempt from the price controls— are increasing.

The County Board of Supervisors, in a related move, voted to support a boycott movement which is asking all Americans not to buy anything at all next Tuesday.

The Western Meat Packers Association, representing packers in 11 states, said it was bringing action in federal court against the Cost of Living Council, charging that maintaining the price freeze on beef, while relaxing it for other meats, is unfair and discriminatory.

Richard Koster, president of the Market Basket food store chain, said a beef shortage "is real and it is critical. The cattle simply are not being brought to market."

Ralph Liebman, of the Ralphs supermarket chain, said beef supplies are getting "very tight" and that previously placed orders are not being filled in full." The store has enough inventory to keep selling beef "this week and probably next, but our ability to purchase meat for the week after next is the real question now."

Norm Mafit, of the Western Meat Packers Association, said that one of the nation's biggest supermarket chains "has only about 50 per cent of their normal requirements this week."

Mafit said that beef sold by American ranchers in Canadian slaughterhouses is selling in the Los Angeles area for about 92 cents a pound, 18 to 20 cents a pound over the ceiling on U.S. packers.

Imported meat is exempt from the price controls, he said, so the sale of Canadian slaughtered beef at higher prices is legal so long as the meat is identified as imported.

The Board of Supervisors voted to support the efforts of Fight Inflation Together, the housewives group that started what grew into the national meat boycott in April, to make next Tuesday "don't buy anything day."

Prescription-only basis called for in federal order

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) ordered today that high doses of vitamins A and D be placed on a prescription-only basis. It also laid down plans for other general restrictions on sale of vitamins.

The order on vitamins A and D takes effect in 60 days. The FDA issued a final order on the matter, the most controversial of its proposal. The other restrictions will take effect at the end of 1974.

The FDA said there was evidence that Vitamin A in heavy doses can cause pressure inside the skull that may mimic the symptoms of a brain tumor, and may also cause retarded growth in children. Vitamin D in high doses has also been known to retard mental and physical growth in children, the agency added.

The other major rule says that any vitamin, food supplement or food containing more than 150 per cent of the recommended daily allowance of any vitamin shall be classified as a drug.

Once classified as drugs such products may continue to be sold over the counter the way cough medicines and aspirins are now. But they will be subject to review by the FDA as drugs and some may later be put on a prescription basis or banned entirely.

The health food industry contends that some of the proposals would cause many vitamin products now on the market to disappear and would restrict a person's freedom to choose what medicine he wants to take.

FDA commissioner Alexander Schmidt rejected objections to the rules.

Schmidt said in a statement: "Much of the opposition is based on honest fears of concerned citizens," he said. "Some fear that the FDA is going to make certain vitamin pills unavailable or if available then only with a prescription and at a higher cost. Others fear that the FDA may infringe on their right to decide what they will eat."

"None of this is true. The single, most important purpose and effect of the regulation is to require full and honest labeling.

Effective 60 days from today, Vitamin A in doses above 10,000 international units and Vitamin D in doses above 400 international units will be subject to prescription sales only.

The effective date of the proposal on classifying some products with high vitamin content as drugs is Dec. 31, 1974, although any labels on vitamin products covered by the rule printed after this year must comply with the new rule.

Ban ordered

Another regulation states that vitamins in combination with substances which have no scientifically recognized nutritional value will be banned as of the end of next year.

The health food industry estimates that perhaps 90 per cent of such combination products will have to be reformulated and that an unknown number of them will disappear from the market because no proof can be offered of nutritional value.

Liz and Richard call it quits

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

A couple of good-looking, highly eligible millionaires came on the marriage market today.

As soon as certain formalities are completed, Elizabeth Taylor can seek a sixth husband and Richard Burton a third wife.

For the famous lovers who announced their intention of seeking a divorce Tuesday have often said they could never be content living alone again, since they have known the happiness of a devoted family life.

If anything ever happened, they used to say, they would want the surviving partner to get married again. And unless the unpredictable pair make up or divorce then remarry each other, they will certainly take other partners.

Burton and Miss Taylor are in Rome, where their romance began nearly a decade ago during the filming of "Cleopatra," but announcement of their divorce plans was made in New York by their attorney.

The announcement did not give a reason for the split—and did not mention Burton's drinking, which a spokesman said contributed to a brief separation earlier this month.

The bustup apparently occurred Monday night when Miss Taylor left the Roman villa owned by actress Sophia Loren and her producer husband, Carlo Ponti, and checked into the Grand Hotel there. Burton, a spokesman said, remained at the villa.

"They are very amiable toward each other and...no third party exists in either case," said Aaron Frosch, their attorney.

Another spokesman, press agent John Springer, said Frosch was expected to file divorce papers in Switzerland in the next couple of weeks.

The Burtons had been together in Rome for the last 11 days following a 17-day separation that Miss Taylor said was necessary because "maybe we loved each other too much."

Miss Taylor started work Monday on a film "The Driver's Seat" while Burton is scheduled to start work shortly on a film with Miss Loren.

Some lucky man will get in Elizabeth one of the world's most beautiful woman of her age, which is 41, and the mistress of considerable wealth.

The Burtons have commanded as much as $1 million each for their films. Since they work as often as possible, they surely have amassed one of the great show business fortunes.

Only Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, the shrewd and thrifty Cary Grant and one or two other actors have ever gathered more assets—even taking into account the huge sums the Burtons have given to charity.

But the qualifications are severe. Miss Taylor's first husband, heir to the Hilton Hotel fortunes, was too immature in her judgment. By the same token she rated his successor, Michael Wilding, as too mature. Husband No. 3, flamboyant producer Mike Todd, was her ideal—tough, masculine, an achiever as much as a talker. His death in a plane crash shattered her. Husband

Introduces bill to outlaw spying on civilians

Too much snooping by 'Big Brother'—Ervin

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two separate moves are being proposed here to protect Americans against invasions of their privacy by "Big Brother" surveillance on the part of the government or others.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, introduced legislation Tuesday to outlaw spying on civilians by the military.

And a government advisory panel urged restraints on use of Social Security numbers and collection of information on individuals in computer data banks operated by government or private organizations.

Ervin's bill grew out of a three-year study by a Senate constitutional rights subcommittee which he heads. The Pentagon adopted regulations against military surveillance of ordinary civilians in 1971. But Ervin said disclosure of a White House domestic intelligence program during the Watergate investigation tells him that the potential for a return of the practice is there.

"The good faith of officials of the executive branch is not enough," Ervin said.

His subcommittee's report said: "At the height of the monitoring, the Army engaged over 1,500 plainclothes agents to collect information which was placed in scores of data centers around the country.... It was not unusual to find in the Army files details of one's membership, associations, remarks, published statements, attendance at meetings, personal finances, sexual activities, arrests, and personality quirks preserved in everlasting perpetuity."

The Army snooped on civilians with the stated aim of keeping track of those who might cause riots or demonstrations which it might be called upon to control. Ervin's bill would limit such surveillance to cases of criminal conduct on military installations and civilians seeking employment with the armed forces.

Meanwhile, an advisory committee of lawyers, educators, computer industry executives and others, reported Tuesday to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) that the "Big Brother" in George Orwell's book, "1984," may not remain entirely fiction.

It warned that increasing use of Social Security numbers and collection of credit information in data banks threatens an "information tyranny that could lock every citizen into his past."

It recommended legislation granting an individual the right to refuse to give his Social Security number to someone not entitled to it by federal law. It urged creation of a Federal Code of Fair Information Practice to outlaw any secret personal data-keeping systems.

"The public fear of a 'Big Brother' system," it said, "in effect a pervasive network of intelligence dossiers, focuses on the computer. But it includes other marvels of Twentieth Century engineering, such as the telephone tap, the wireless microphone, the automatic surveillance camera, and the rest of the modern investigator's technical equipage."

A 24-page appendix to the report accused former Attorney General John N. Mitchell of fostering invasions of privacy by increasing the government's use of wiretapping and by pressing for practices such as preventive detention and "noknock" police entries.

It said Mitchell greatly expanded federal surveillance of citizens thought to be threats to internal security, justifying his action on the theory that the executive has inherent and discretionary power to protect itself."

Panel chairman Willis H. Ware said the appendix, written by the Nongovernmental Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, did not necessarily reflect the opinion of the panel but was included as "a paper that deserves to be read."

Inmate stabbed to death in new prison violence

McALESTER, Okla. (UP) — Convicts at the Oklahoma State Prison stabbed to death a fellow inmate and severely beat another during the night in the prison yard, officials reported today.

The new violence occurred within sight of highway patrol officers and National Guardsmen who were unable to reach the disturbance in time, prison officials said.

But they said guards were able to capture the prisoner suspected of the knifing murder. The guards also aided other prisoners who were being attacked.

The death was the fourth reported by prison officials since the beginning of violence last Friday. The rubble of that riot was still being cleared and officials said they plan to remove all 1,700 convicts from the prison so it can be repaired.

Almost 700 convicts have remained in the muddy prison yard since the violence began. They said they did not participate in the rioting and claimed they would be killed by more militant inmates if they returned to their cells.

Ed Hardy, an aide to Gov. David Hall, said the incident during the night occurred in a group of 750 disgruntled prisoners who were kept separate from the other 670 in the prison yard.

"They did observe and isolate the man who committed the killing. It is expected he will be charged," Hardy said. "Another prisoner was beaten way back in the pack and Oklahoma highway patrolmen and National Guardsmen were unable to get to him in time to rescue him. They did remove him from the crowd of inmates."

WALTER ULBRICHT

Ulbricht, man who built East Germany, dies at 80

BERLIN (UPI) — Walter Ulbricht, East German chief of state and founding father of Communist East Germany, died today of heart failure, the East German government announced. He was 80.

Ulbricht suffered a stroke July 19 and earlier official East German reports said he had been confined to his bed in a luxurious stone villa inside a guarded compound for party and government elite near the town of Liepnith.

Although critically ill he continued to receive a number of important Communist visitors at his bedside.

Although Ulbricht was forced out of power as East Germany's Communist Party first secretary in 1971, his nation's leaders treated him in death as they had in his waning years as an honored Old Bolshevik and national hero. The death announcement involved the entire Communist leadership and said:

"The Central Committee of the Socialist Unity (Communist Party of Germany, the Council of State of the German Democratic Republic, the Council of Ministers, the Presidium of Parliament and the Presidium of the National Council of the Peoples' Front announce with deep sorrow that Politburo member and Chief of State of East Germany—our Comrade Walter Ulbricht—died today at 12:55 p.m. EDT."

A follow-up medical bulletin said "death was caused by heart failure." He suffered a previous heart attack in November 1970.

Ulbricht, whose goateed and bespectacled face became the very symbol of hardline East German communism during his quarter-century of power, is survived by his widow Lotte — herself a Communist with old Bolshevik credentials — and an adopted daughter, Beate.

Death found him at a moment when East Berlin was a scene of international Communist gayety, its streets festooned with flags and jammed with thousands of young persons attending the 10th international Youth Festival.

Ulbricht was a nimble, wily politician who survived every switch in Soviet policy and outlasted every other Soviet bloc leader.

He will go down in history as the man who built the Berlin Wall, but he also will be remembered as the father of the German Democratic Republic (GDR) and the man who kept Germany divided after World War II.

He took a land ravaged by war and Russian reparations — in which entire factories were moved to the Soviet Union — and built East Germany into the ninth greatest industrial power in the world.

Then he lived to see fulfillment of his goal of recognition by the West when, on Dec. 21, 1972, a treaty was signed between the two Germanys recognizing the permanent division of the country.

Ulbricht arrived in Berlin from Russia on April 30, 1945, in the closing days of World War II, following the collapse of Adolf Hitler's Third Reich. Premier Josef Stalin had ordered him to make Berlin Communist and he almost did.

He survived purge after purge with the support of the Kremlin and did not lay down his job as first secretary of the Communist party until age and ill health forced him to.

Even then, he nominated his successor, his longtime protege Erich Honecker, and retained his post as chief of state. He also was given the new, honorary title, that of party chairman.

Economic advisers rule out controls in price stability

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation faces a period in which there will be a strong tendency toward higher prices but, in time, stability can be achieved without controls, President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said today.

In a joint statement, Chairman Herbert Stein and members Marina Whitman and Gary Seevers conceded they did not know how long prices would keep rising.

Testifying before the Congress' Joint Economic Committee, the three said, "We believe that if we follow prudent fiscal and monetary policies we will reach a situation of reasonable price stability without wage and price controls.

"Moreover, we believe that long-continued controls will do great harm to the economy, a fact of which there is increasing awareness."

The council members acknowledged there is "a gap between where we are now and this condition of reasonable stability which we seek and expect to reach."

They said the administration had "tried to make it clear to the American people that it would be neither possible nor desirable to repress all of these prospective price increases."

The statement added: "Nevertheless, we think it is feasible and desirable to slow them down and reduce somewhat their ultimate dimension."

State economy regarded healthy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Despite rising living costs, California's economy has expanded at a healthy pace in recent months, according to a Security Pacific National Bank report released this week.

The report attributed the growth to continued gains in employment, reduced joblessness and further increases in consumer income and spending.

Security Pacific's seasonally adjusted business index for California averaged 158.1 during the first six months of the year, a 10 per cent increase over the figure for the first half of 1972. (The index is based on the year 1967 equalling 100).

Liz, Richard call it quits

number four, singer Eddie Fisher, she married on the rebound from despair.

Burton she regards in the Mike Todd mold. Every inch a man, a good intellect, a fine actor, fond of children. A combination of Todd and Burton would make an ideal sixth husband from Miss Taylor's point of view—for Mike drank very little, a quality she has come to appreciate even more with the passing of time.

Some lucky girl will get in Burton a handsome 47-year-old who is undoubtedly one of the best actors of the day, though he has tended lately to spread his talents too thin in too many films.

The girl will have great beauty, for Burton is used to beautiful people. A good drinker is required, a stay-up-late type realistic enough to accept that he is attractive to women and vigilant enough to see that his relations with, say, his leading ladies, do not escalate beyond the artistic.

In return she will have a luxurious, interesting life lived in the many cities where Burton's film making takes him, with holidays aboard a yacht and home, when they are home, in a luxurious pad in Switzerland.

It isn't often two such extraordinary people become eligible at the same time. But only paragons need apply.

School president admits he ordered bugging on campus

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A trade school president told a state assembly hearing Tuesday that he authorized bugging his own office and student meetings because he feared for his life.

Dr. Fred J. Brinkman, president of Los Angeles Trade Technical College, testified before a subcommittee investigating electronic surveillance and invasion of privacy on campuses of the Community College District.

Brinkman testified there was "great turmoil" on campus in 1971 and he authorized the eavesdropping by campus police because "there was concern for my life."

He said he received a letter signed "progressive students" that called him an "academic fascist," accused him of racial discrimination and gave him less than a week to quit.

The school's student body is 75 per cent black and Chicano. Failure to comply "might cause the loss of your fool head," the letter said, according to Brinkman.

Other witnesses have testified Brinkman was threatened with bombings and told that ground glass might be placed in his food.

Ernest Monteverde, chief of campus police, testified that on two occasions he bugged meetings of the Black Students Union on orders from Brinkman. When Brinkman met with black student leaders, Monteverde said, the meeting was taped by two recording machines, one in sight but the other hidden. When the BSU met in a student council conference room, the meeting was recorded by means of a microphone hidden in a wall clock, Monteverde said.

Brinkman and Monteverde were granted immunity from prosecution for their testimony to the hearing, but several civil suits based on the bugging incidents are pending against the college.

Monteverde, under questioning, said he authorized the bugging of his office because he suspected that officers of his own force might be stealing documents from his files.

Monteverde said one of his officers, Sigsbee James Skipper, had recorded student conversations without Monteverde's permission.

Skipper, who served 22 years on the Los Angeles Police Department before becoming a campus officer, said he had no experience with electronic surveillance. He said he was involved in five incidents of such surveillance.

The hearing ended on a mysterious note with the testimony of Capt. Daniel Lavery of the Pierce College campus police. He said that a member of his force had admitted to him that he had stolen documents from the office of a Pierce College professor.

Warren adminished Lavery not to speak about the incident except to law enforcement officials.

Ray to stay in cell while suit argued

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — James Earl Ray, convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., will remain in his prison cell while attorneys argue motions in connection with a $300,000 libel suit filed by Ray.

U.S. District Judge Harry Wellford Tuesday ruled that Ray would not have to appear personally for an Aug. 17 hearing in the suit, because it would cause "further notoriety and expense."

Ray filed suit against author Gerald Franks, the Doubleday Publishing Co., state Court of Criminal Appeals Judge Robert Dwyer and Dist. Atty. Gen. Phil Canale Jr. of Memphis in connection with Franks' book "An American Death."

Ray contends the book contains libelous statements based on information obtained by Franks from Dwyer and Canale, including allegations that he was involved with prostitutes and hated blacks.

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — Skipper David Moodie was released from custody Tuesday by French Naval officials who had seized his yacht two weeks ago as it sailed into waters marked for France's South Pacific nuclear tests.

Moodie, of Alstead Center, N.H., accompanied by a couple from New Zealand, entered the area as a protest against the nuclear test series that began July 21. When they refused to leave, French officials took them custody aboard a warship and towed the yacht, Fri, out of the danger zone.

ATHENS (UPI) — Greek officials expelled Timothy Bilodeau, a schoolteacher from Massachusetts, from the country Tuesday after arresting him for carrying a sign urging people to vote against President George Papadopoulos in the government's constitutional referendum.

Bilodeau, a 23-year-old Harvard graduate from Milton, Mass., was taken into custody Sunday as Greeks voted in favor of a government proposal which confirmed Papadopoulos as president, abolished the monarchy, and made Greece a republic.

For Claremont police department

Pope gives low bid

CLAREMONT — A base bid of $475,500 has made P. H. Pope Contractors, Cucamonga, the apparent low bidder for construction of the city's 10,000-square-foot police department on Bonita Avenue between Berkeley and Cornell avenues.

City officials opened eight bids ranging up to $515,900 Tuesday afternoon in the City Council chambers.

Architect Ted Criley of Criley-McDowell said the bids all were "within the ballpark."

The Cucamonga firm's base bid was just $1,500 lower than the second bidder, Emery C. Jackson Co., Ontario which bid $477,000.

Other base bids are as follows: Earle T. Casler, Upland, $486,281; Martin J. Jaska, Pomona, $488,900; Steed Bros. Builders, Alhambra $495,790; K R W Corp., La Habra, $503,800; Noyse Roach, Los Angeles $507,700; and Casner Construction Co., Temple City, $515,900.

Three alternate bids also were included by the bidders. Pope bid $1,340 for bulletproof glass windows added to the base bid, $4,166 deducted from the base bid for deletion of an east-west pergola at the front of the building and the planter walls north of the pergola; and $7,338 deducted from the base bid for deletion of a storage building holding evidence.

Criley said the city engineer's estimate for the facility was $448,500.

Deputy City Manager Norman King said that awarding of the contract by the City Council depends on the city's receiving the Office of Emergency Services' approval of a matching grant of federal funds of $50,000 to $70,000 for an emergency operation center in the new police station.

Claremont voters on Oct. 19, 1971 supported a $700,000 bond election to construct the new station.

At the time, it was noted that the rpesent 1,200-square foot police station has no protected communication center, and that the present salon was designed in 1948 to serve a ciy of 4,000 persons.

Criley said the new station will cost $100,000 more than an ordinary building because of requirements of the U. S. Department of Defense to make the new building "radiation proof." One requirement is a 19-inch-thick concrete roof.

Ontario takes suspects in L. V. robbery

LA VERNE — Two young Palm Springs men arrested in connection with a drive-in dairy holdup here Monday are being turned over to Ontario police after the robbery vicitms here were unable to identify them.

The men are John Scott, 20, and his brother, Willie Scott, 19.

The men were arrested by Pomona police several hours after the Inland Dairy here at 2055 White Ave. was held up. Pomona police said the pair was driving a car similar to one seen near the robbery and that the suspects appeared similar to the men who robbed dairy owners Arthur and Mary Mastro. A loaded pistol was in the car, police said.

Pomona police today said they planned to release the Scotts to Ontario police who want to question them about several robbries in Ontario. Pomona officers said they do not plan to press a charge of possessing a loaded pistol in the car against the Scotts at this time.

Officer claims he saw two inmates stabbing victim

ONTARIO — Two defendants in an inmate murder trial were seen stabbing another inmate Dec. 17 at the California Institution for Men by an on-duty correctional officer who testified Tuesday in West Valley Sueprior Court.

Correctional officer Ronald Gorski, the second prosecution witness to take the stand in the murder trial for CIM inmates Frank Phillip Mendoza, 28, Raymond L. Contreras, 35, and Juan Figueroa Colon 29, said he saw two of the defendants "trading off a shiny object" while attacking inmate Rudolph Cadena on the second tier of Palm Hall in the Southern Reception-Guidance Center.

The three defendants are accused of murdering Cadna and seriously wounding inmate Gilbert R. Sandoval during an altercation on the tier. Cadena was stabbed more than 50 times by his assailants and then with Sandoval, who was also stabbed trying to help him, fell or were thrown over the tier.

Monday, correctional officer Kenneth Maxwell testified he saw Mendoza throw Sandoval over the tier.

Gorski said that he was on the second tier when he heard inmates fighting. He said he sounded his alarm whistle and saw Mendoza and Colon fighting with Cadena on the tier. He said that he first saw Mendoza stabbing Cadena with a shiny object while Colon was holding him.

He testified that Mendoza than traded positions with Colon, and Colon began stabbing Cadena. He said a crowd began to gather around the inmates and he left to let the other officers inside.

During the trial Tuesday, a special hearing on motions was held outside the presence of the jury by Superior Court Judge James E. Cunningham. Motions for a mistrial, severance of trial, and suppression of evidence made by Contreras defense attorney Frank Batchelor were denied.

Batchelor asked for the hearing after explaining to the court he had received a 17-page document containing statements from CIM inmate Richard Smith implicating his client in the murder from the District Attorney's office only that morning. He said the document was a transcript taken from a recorded interview conducted by the Chino police with Smith during the murder investigation. He said Smith claimed that he had heard Contreras admit taking part in the stabbings of Cadena and Sandoval in Palm Hall.

Batchelor accused Deputy Dist. Atty. Kenneth Kloepfer of withholding the document from the defense until trial despite a number of letters for discovery of evidence sent earlier by the defense.

Batchelor said that if the document were introduced by the prosecution, he might have to change his defense strategy.

Batchelor asked for a mistrial so he could prepare a new defense, or a severence of trials so his client could have an individual trial at a later date. Batchelor also asked that the document be supressed as evidence if the motions for mistrial or severance were denied. Attorney Joseph Johnston, defending Mendoza, joined batchelor in the motion for mistrial.

Kloepfer said he did not know of the document until Monday night when it was brought to his attention by a Chino police officer. He said if he had known the document to be as important as it was, he would certainly have asked for it sooner.

Manager of Broncos addresses Rotary Club

POMONA — The Denver Broncos is a team on the upgrade in the American Football League with prospects of winning twice as many games this year as last season, the assistant general manager, Fred Gehrke, told members of the Rotary Club on Tuesday.

The reason for the improved outlook this season is that the Broncos have greater depth in most positions than ever before, Gehrke said.

According to Gehrke, coach John Ralston is telling his players that they can win 10 games this fall, twice as many as last season's record, and "they are beginning to believe it."

Gehrke said that the only way to build a football team is through the college draft. The Broncos have 10 scouts who work year around.

Gehrke said that pro football has come a long way since his time as a player for the Los Angeles Rams. In those days, he said, a player brought part of his uniform with him.

Today it costs about $250 to outfit a player, players travel by plane rather than by train, and they no longer have to carry their own equipment around. Trainers are now provided to pick up all the players' gear, Gehrke said.

He said that pro players are bigger and better than ever and that the process of contract signing is so sophisticated that players have agents to represent them in salary negotiations.

Congressman on 'enemy' list seeks impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Massachusetts congressman on the White House "enemies list" has introduced a resolution calling for the impeachment of President Nixon.

Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., a Jesuit priest, said in introducing the resolution Tuesday that "I have come to the point where I must follow my convictions and my conscience and recommend that the House of Representatives pursue its duty under Article 2 Section 4 of the Constitution which provides for the impeachment of the President."

House Democratic leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, also from Massachusetts, described Drinan as "an outspoken liberal and well-known anti-Nixonite" and said he was "the worst person in the House to take such an action."

Drinan said four recent disclosures alone justify impeachment, but the one that pushed him over the brink to introduction of his resolution was the revelation that Nixon "conducted a totally secret air war in Cambodia for 14 months prior to April 30, 1970."

On that date, Drinan said, Nixon told the American people that for the previous five years the United States had "scrupulously" observed Cambodia's neutrality "with the full knowledge that he personally ordered thousands of B52 air raids over Cambodia" during that time.

Other Nixon matters which justify impeacehment apart from the Watergate break-in, Drinan said, "include taping White House conversations without the knowledge of participants, impounding money appropriated by Congress for various programs, and establishing "a national police force accountable only to himself."

Drinan quickly picked up praise for his resolution although he admitted in an interview with UPI that his colleagues were reluctant to endorse it. He said they favored waiting for a conclusion of the Senate Watergate hearings .

"But only the House has jurisdiction" in an impeachment proceeding, he said and pointed out "the Watergate committee can't get into the question of impeachment."

Most of the House members who shared his viewpoint settled for measures calling for a committee of inquiry to look into the possibility of impeachment. "I'm inclined to think a number of them agree with it (his resolution) somehow," Drinan said.

One of those was Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey, R-Calif., who said he hoped the resolution "will result in a commencement of investigation by the House Judiciary committee leading to referral to the House."

Drinan's resolution appeared, however, to have little favor in the Judiciary Committee, to which it was referred, or with the House Democratic leadership.

O'Neill, who described Drinan to UPI as the "worst person" to introduce the measure, said he tried to talk Drinan out of it, or at least into waiting until the Senate hearings were concluded and a determination made by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Rep. Peter Rodino ,D-N.J., Judiciary Committee chairman, indicated he was in no hurry to begin an investigation or hearing into the impeachment resolution.

"At this present time, we are just looking at it," he said of the entire matter of Nixon's conduct in office. "This is so grave I want to act responsibly so I am just going to assemble the information available and I have been doing this."

Drinan could have taken a faster route and avoided the Judiciary Committee by standing on the House floor and demanding an immediate vote on impeachment. But he said he had no doubt but that he would have lost with that procedure. ..

Europe to tie in with U.S. space program

BRUSSELS (UPI) — After 10 years of trying to run its own independent space program, Europe decided today to link up with the U.S. post-Apollo program.

Ministers of 11 European nations agreed after 13 hours bargaining to put up enough money to build the $370 million Sortie Lab, a key component in the $5.5 billion U.S. Spacelab project. Contracts between the American government and the European Space Research Organization (ERSC) are to be signed Aug. 15.

Only 79 per cent of the money is guaranteed, ministers said, because Italy, Norway and Sweden were unable to give ironclad promises they could contribute their combined share of 21 per cent.

Because of this, the contract will contain a nullifying clause if the three nations fail to guarantee the funds by Sept. 18. But the ministers said they doubted this would happen.

Michael D. Heseltine of Britain said there was "too much momentum" for Italy, Sweden and Norway to back out now.

The European work will be carried out over the next eight years on Spacelab, which succeeds Skylab.

The ministers also agreed to set up a new European Space agency (ESA) by next April 1. They gave the go-ahead for a maritime satellite to which Britain will contribute 56 per cent of the funds and a rocket to which France will supply 62 per cent of the funds.

Over the past decade, Europeans have spent more than $1 billion on cooperative space projects. They have nothing to show for it but six unsuccessful rocket launchings and a series of satellites put into orbit by U.S. rockets. German and British refusal to spend more on the rockets forced the rethinking that ended in today's agreement.

France insisted on building a rocket to keep European independence, in case the United States should someday deny Europe the use of its launchers. Britain said this was "unnecessary" but agreed, as part of the package, to contribute money to it if France contributed to the British satellite. France agreed.

Protecting kids

HILLINGDON, England (UPI) — All government-owned low-rent housing in Hillington will be equipped with medicine chests which only adults can open, it was announced. The idea for keeping medicine out of children's hands will cost $200,000, the announcement said.

'Remorseful rapist' given prison term

VAN NUYS (UPI) — The man police called the "remorseful rapist" has been sentenced to 19 years to life in prison following a guilty plea to three counts of rape and two of burglary.

Edward D. Apodaca, 32, who earned his nickname by begging his victims to forgive him, pleaded guilty to the charges June 29. He was sentenced Tuesday by Superior Court Judge Harry V. Peetris.

Apodaca has served time before for sex offenses. A computer analysis of his past crimes helped lead police to him in connection with the recent offenses.

Maryland gives million dollar lottery prize

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Maryland awarded its first million dollar lottery prize late Tuesday to the night manager of a donut shop who said he would use the money to take a trip to the West Coast "by way of London, Paris and maybe Cairo."

When 30-year old Paul McNabb of Owings Mills heard his name called out, he leaped off his feet, hugged a nearby lottery hostess, and fainted. Gov. Marvin Mandel wore a broad grin when he handed McNabb a $50,000 check. McNabb will receive a similar amount every year for the next 20 years.

Senate okays farm, food stamp measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed the huge, four-year farm and food stamp bill, responding to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz's statement he was dropping his plans to recommend a veto.

The measure, passed Tuesday night by the Senate, was shipped to the House, where it was expected to receive final consideration before the congressional recess begins at the end of the week. Republican leaders reported they now had an "understanding" that President Nixon would sign the compromise.

House backers of the ban could try to restore it when the measure returns to the House, despite a warning by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

FTC puts new wrinkle into wrinkle remover

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) said today a facial wrinkle remover treatment for sale in various parts of the country may be dangerous, offers only a temporary cure and may be more expensive than similar treatment by a plastic surgeon.

It also announced that it had won a temporary court order to stop the company involved— Forever Young Inc., Denver, Colo.—from engaging in what it said was false advertising.

The agency issued a proposed complaint which said the treatment involves the use of carbolic acid to peel off the outer layer of skin, and that such a process may be poisonous. It said one patient allegedly died after the treatment.

But the company's advertising, the complaint said, does not mention that pain, discomfort or danger may be involved in the treatment.

"In reality," the FTC said, "The pain can be so severe that patients are always sedated or anesthesized before the application of acid and may require medication for days, weeks or months afterward to reduce pain and other discomforts."

The complaint also alleges that the treatment carries the risk of infection and may scar the skin: that it lasts only from 16 to 18 months before the natural aging process show up again; and that plastic surgeons throughout the nation use the same process under stricter medical control for a fraction of the $2,500 that Forever Young charges for it.

Haldeman ruled supreme at W.H.

By United Press International

When you talk about loyalty to a president, you talk about Harry Robbins Haldeman.

"Every President needs his s.o.b., and I'm Nixon's," Bob Haldeman was fond of saying.

His detractors, and they seemed legion, complained that he was too pluperfect an s.o.b.

His supporters and they often seemed few, said that if Haldeman didn't exist Nixon would have had to invent him.

But Haldeman cared not for his detractors nor his supporters. He saw as his job to protect the President, to shield him from the favor-seekers and the power-brokers —the pests.

Detractors and supporters alike said he did that job well.

Those who liked him said his was a necessary function if the President was not to get bogged down in minutia.

Those who disliked him said he was too successful, that Haldeman caused Nixon to operate out of an ivory tower and to run the country as a benevolent patriarch who didn't trust his children.

Haldeman, 46, once the strongest man in the White House next to the President, has fallen victim to the Watergate scandal. On April 30, with deepest regret and with public laudings for their loyalty and ability, Nixon accepted the resignations of Haldeman and his UCLA roommate, John D. Ehrlichman.

"Hans" and "Fritz," as Haldeman and Ehrlichman were called—but not to their faces—were Nixon's chief of staff and chief domestic adviser respectively. They tendered their resignations following a rash of published reports that they may have been involved in the planning and cover-up of the Watergate bugging.

There were few sorrowful expressions at the White House or on Capitol Hill when the news broke. Crewcut, formidable-looking Haldeman had won a reputation for the ruthless exercise of power and unquestioning loyalty to Nixon. His protective shield around the President became known as the "Berlin Wall."

He managed the President's time, personally cleared everyone who wanted to see the President—even Cabinet officials—and controlled all communications to the Oval Office.

With the President's acquiescence, he ruled supreme and delivered the bad news that Nixon did not want to personally handle—such as firing 2,000 top-level government officials the day after the landslide election.

Haldeman had served the President since they began an association in the 1956 campaign when Nixon sought reelection for vice president.

Four years later, Haldeman took time off as vice president of the J. Walter Thompson Co., to help direct Nixon's losing presidential race to John F. Kennedy. Since that first campaign, Haldeman had just two professional loves—he advertising business where he handled accounts for Seven-Up and Black Flag insecticide, and Richard Milhous Nixon. He joined Nixon again in the winning 1968 campaign.

He was considered the prototype of the "ad man" and brought with him other Californians from his firm, including Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, to fill top White House positions.

Haldeman believed so thoroughly in the doctrine of loyalty to his President that he bore with silence things that other men in his position might have resented.

He reportedly once told a close friend that he wasted hours dealing with "all the bitching and all the demands" of Mrs. Nixon and the President's two daughters. But he added quickly and cheerfully that if it made Nixon's life any easier, he was delighted to do it.

Former presidential confidant Robert Finch once said that Haldeman doesn't have a jolly, back-slapping relationship with Nixon, that it is "a very serious relationship."

Nobody claims to know Haldeman well, even his close friends. His mother, Mrs. Harry F. Haldeman; his sister, Mrs. Francis Raine; and his brother, Thomas Haldeman—all of Los Angeles—refuse to discuss him.

"I don't think I can think of anything I did or he did that is interesting at all," says his brother. "He's very human, though."

His sister Betsy says "I really don't know anything to tell you" about Haldeman.

Haldeman married Joanne Horton in 1949, whom he had known at UCLA. They both had been active politically on campus. The Haldemans have two daughters and two sons, ranging in age from 12 to 21.

Supplier rejects order

White House feeling filet mignon pinch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's kitchen has not yet felt the beef shortage, but one White House supplier said Tuesday he wants it to know of the pinch.

Bernard Goldstein, president of District Hotel Supply, Inc., one of the White House meat suppliers, turned down an order from the staff mess for 15 pounds of filet mignon and New York strip steak Monday.

Goldstein has been supplying the White House for 16 years. He said he informed Ron Jackson, chief steward of the Navy-run White House kitchen that he will no longer be able to sell him "the finest cuts of steaks" for the duration of the meat shortage.

"What they want is the finest," said Goldstein. His filet sells for $6 per pound and strip steaks for $5.00 per pound.

"I asked them not to order these," Goldstein said. "I asked them to order lamb, ground beef and pork. Anything not covered by the controls."

Later, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said "the gentlemen in charge of purchasing beef" for the White House "find themselves in the same position as everyone else."

Goldstein said he didn't think the beef he was getting was of the quality that should be sent to the White House. "Supplies are tight but it's a matter of principle," he said. "I asked them not to order items which they have caused to be critical."

Goldstein said that the White House is still a customer even though he told them that he was "planning to call the press in to complain."

Helen McClain Smith, the First Lady's press secretary, said as for the Nixon family's meat requirements, "we've had no problem whatsoever. Our kitchen has not been turned down."

For tonight's state dinner honoring Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, the Nixon's are serving duckling as the main course, Mrs. Smith said that menu was planned a week ago.

Fugitive nabbed by FBI agents

HONOLULU (UPI) — Scott R. Cade, 24, has been arrested by FBI agents and charged with unlawful flight to avoid confinement in Oklahoma.

Agents said Cade was arrested Monday on a Jan. 4 warrant issued in Oklahoma City.

He was accused of fleeing to avoid a five to seven year prison term after conviction on marijuana charges in Lawton, Okla.

Agents said he had been employed at the Aquarius Theater as an entertainer. The theater runs advertisements promoting sex shows.

Gals hose restaurant over some leggy tables

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) Are table legs controversial?

Yes, say some Bay Area feminists, if they look like Betty Grable's.

These women of the 70s oppose the new decor at a Union Square restaurant, "What This Country Needs," where shapely wooden gams uphold the tables.

Owner Tom McAteer says "those sort of legs were part of the good things of the 20s and the 30s, and that's the style of this restaurant.

"In those days women were preoccupied with leg care, legs were the thing," McAteer said. "Women felt they were a very important part of their image."

But some of today's women are offended by the former hosiery forms now used as furniture.

"Women are trying to get away from having their bodies viewed as sex objects," said Bonnie Baskin, public relations director of the University Art Museum at the University of California at Berkeley.

Another feminist reported seeing men feeling the table legs and she said she wouldn't think of eating there.

Others have made their feelings about the legs known in more obvious ways.

McAteer said that last week someone broke in and pasted hair on all the legs. Other people have drawn tattoos on them.

"I don't understand what all this trouble is about," McAteer lamented.

Firm sues magazine

'Godfather' caption suit

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Emprise Corp., a Buffalo based frim, Tuesday filed a $50 million suit in state Supreme Court here against the publisher of Sports Illustrated Magazine for a May, 1972 story linking the firm with underworld financial dealings.

The suit was brought against Time Inc., publisher of the sports weekly, for a May 29, 1972 issue which carried a cover photograph of the late Louis M. Jacobs, founder of the concession firm, under the caption "The Godfather of Sports."

The action, brought by Jacobs' sons Jeremy and Max, charges the cover "implicitly asserted that the elder Mr. Jacobs had been head of a Mafia-type organization in the sports world."

The suit, filed with the Erie County Clerk, claims the article falsely stated that Jacobs and Emprise had "in return for extended concession rights, advanced large sums of money to numerous persons" identified as "Mafia figures, mobsters, Mafia dons and hoods."

The story, according to the suit, resulted in a "substantial loss" of revenues and business opportunities.

The suit seeks $5 million in compensatory damages and $15 million punitive damages for Emprise and $10 million in compensatory and punitive damages for both Jacobs' brothers.

Emprise maintains charges of underworld involvement were "wholly false, without foundation, scandalous, defamatory and libelous."

Emprise filed a $20 million suit last month against Rep. Sam Steiger of Arizona and two competing concession firms, alleging that they conspired to destory Emprise.

Eight killed as car goes off bridge

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Eight Pine Bluff, Ark., residents were killed Friday when their car plunged off an interstate bridge in what police described as the worst single car accident in Nashville history.

"It was a horrible scene," said Metro Police Sgt. Lwrry Loftis. "Bodies were scattered everywhere."

Investigators said the 1971 sedan was traveling north on Interstate 65 when it plowed up more than 50 feet of guardrail and plunged off the Silliman Evans Bridge on the banks of the Cumberland River.

The automobile smashed to the ground 90 feet below, hurling some of the passengers out and trapping others in the wreckage.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Pernetta Brown, 56, driver of the car; Mrs. Erma Rayford, 36; Mrs. Georgia Glover, 28; Pernetta Tate, 9; Johnetta Glover, 7; Linda Rayford, 7; and Paula and Paul Rayford, 3, twins.

A five-year-old boy in the car, Gregory Rayford, was admitted to general hospital in serious condition with a broken arm and smashed pelvis.

Move governor from state capitol, suggests solon

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Sen. Peter H. Behr says the legislature's building space problem might be solved if the governor moves out of the golden-domed state Capitol instead of the lawmakers.

"The governor's moving out of the Capitol is one alternative to finding more space for the legislature—and an option I don't think has been seriously considered," Behr said Tuesday in a telephone interview.

"I don't want to get in a feud," the Tiburon lawmaker said. "But it would seem that his (the governor's) need to be in the Capitol is less than ours."

California legislative leaders currently are considering a plan to construct a new twintower Capitol to house the legislature.

But Behr said he was "not convinced we need an entirely new, larger building." He said if the governor and perhaps other nonlegislative officers were moved out of the Capitol, the legislature then would have "more than ample room."

He also said additional floors could be added to the west wing of the Capitol when it is rebuilt to make it safe in an earthquake. The century-old domed section of the Capitol currently has extremely high ceilings.

"I feel it's not a bad time to tighten our belts and live within our space and money," Behr said. "I personally don't think we are all that crowded in the Capitol. You can always use more space. The room we need often expands by the availability of more space."

Dick Gregory quits clubs for his public

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dick Gregory announced Tuesday he will leave the nightclub circuit after 15 years of standup comedy appearances but will continue doing college concerts and lectures.

Gregory, 40, said in a statement his final nightclub show will be Saturday night at Pall's Mall in Boston. The show will be filmed for television release and recorded for an album.

"I'm retiring for two reasons," Gregory said. "I find that in speaking to young people about the dangers of drugs and alcohol that there is a conflict with my nightclub work where I'm saying, in effect, 'Come on in and have a drink.'

-And second, it keeps me up too late depriving me of the time to give service to my fellow human beings."

Gregory said he has not "eaten a bite of solid food" since beginning a fast more than two years ago in protest against American involvement in Indochina. He said he will consider breaking the fast after the Aug. 15 cutoff date for bombing in Cambodia.

Gregory said he plans to travel to West Africa later in the year where the lives of 10 million persons are threatened by famine.

He said that "we as Americans, as well as the people around the world, must devote personal time and service to stop this. Americans throw away enough food every day to feed those people so that there would be no famine."

Illinois GOP visitor lauds welfare rules

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Republican chairman of an Illinois legislative committee Tuesday praised California's "reformed" welfare system as leading the nation and said he was impressed that it "helped the needy, not the greedy."

Sen. Don Moore of Cook County, chairman of the legislative advisory committee on public assistance, was heading a delegation of 10 legislators for a five-day study of various aspects of California's welfare system.

He said the visit, which will be followed by a study of welfare in Washington State, was in preparation of implementing "flat grant" welfare regulations in Illinois and possbly consideration of other changes.

Legislation was recently enacted which allows Illinois to develop a flat grant system instead of calculating numerous and costly variables for each recipient, Moore said.

At a small news briefing, Moore said there was "no question" that California had truly reformed its system.

He was joined by U.S. Welfare Commissioner Robert C. Carleson, a former California welfare official and one of the engineers of Gov. Ronald Reagan's 1971 reforms.

Carleson described Illinois as a "problem" state regarding welfare. "If we're going to solve the national problem, we're going to have to solve the problem in Illinois," he said.

In addition to flat grants, Moore said he was interested in California's system of insuring that fathers support their children, its computer system of double checking eligibility and programs requiring welfare recipients to participate in training or work.

Promotion fills empty job at top of water agency

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — John R. Teerink, deputy director of the Department of Water Resources the past six years, Tuesday was appointed to succeed director William R. Gianelli, who resigned.

Teerink, who was in charge of aqueduct design for the $3 billion California Water Project, will take over the directorship Sept. 1, subject to state Senate confirmation.

"John Teerink, as deputy director for the past six years, has been closely associated with the plans, policies and operations that have been established by Bill Gianelli," said Gov. Ronald Reagan in announcing the appointment.

"He is the logical choice to succeed Bill," the governor added.

Teerink joined the department in 1946 and as a water resources engineer he participated in all phases of planning for the California Water Project.

Prior to his appointment as deputy director, he served as district engineer for the water resources southern California district in Los Angeles for two years.

The 52-year-old Republican has been responsible for the department's programs for new water sources from desalting, waste water reclamation and geothermal energy.

Gianelli, 54, a Democrat, announced his resignation Monday. He was an outspoken critic of certain conservationist activities and at one time called his environmental critics "Chicken Little emotionalists."

Gianelli said he felt his job was completed since surplus northern California water had been successfully transported to southern California through the massive water project.

The project, dedicated May 18, involves 21 dams, 519 miles of aqueduct and 21 miles of tunnel.

Gianelli was one of the first architects of the project.

Teerink will receive an annual salary of $31,500 as director.

Top spending by tax lid backers

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An apparent record $436,452 was spent by backers of Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax limitation initiative to qualify the controversial measure for the Nov. 6 ballot.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Tuesday said the spending total was reported in a campaign statement filed with his office by Californians for Lower Taxes, a group formed by Reagan to place the measure on the ballot.

The statement showed the largest contributors were geles, Challenge - Cook Bros., Inc., of Los Angeles, and P.F. Jung of Standard Oil of California, each of whom gave $10,000. The Beverly Hills Lincoln Mercury gave $5,000.

The largest individual contributor was David Packard, former deputy of defense during President Nixon's first term who resides in Los Altos Hills. He contributed $5,000.

"Records in my office indicate that the Reagan tax limitation drive was one of the most costly initiative qualification campaigns ever conducted," Brown said.

He said the most money spent to qualify a measure in 1972 was the $394,985 spent by the California State Employes Association for Prop. 15, which failed.

Brown also said the tax initiative report disclosed that backers obtained a loan of $110,000 from the Community Bank of Los Angeles. Californians for Lower Taxes issued a news release which stated it borrowed $135,000 for the qualifying drive.

The loan from the Community Bank, Brown said, was guaranteed by a "group of wealthy Reagan supporters."

They were Republican State Chairman Gordon Luce of San Diego, J.R. Fluor of Los Angeles, William H. Doheny of Los Angeles Charles E. Documman of Los Angeles, Margaret Brock of Los Angeles, Robert Tuttle of Los Angeles, Putnam Livermore of San Francico, Joseph Hall of the City of Industry, Roy Crocker of Los Angeles, Jacqueline Hume of San Francisco, Earle M. Jorgensen of Los Angeles, R.F. Bauer of Los Angeles, and Thomas Pike of San Marino. Many are longtime GOP contributors.

Brown said that so far $50,000 had been paid back on the loan.

Californians for Lower Taxes collected more than half million signatures to qualify the initiative for the special November ballot. The effort included the use of professional signature gatherers.

Brown said the campaign statement showed initiative supporters raised a total of $425,050, including $31,660 in non-monetary contributions.

The non-monetary services, Brown said, consisted of services provided by the California Real Estate Association, the Republican State Central Comimttee and other organizations.

He said the group reported spending slightly more than it received.

Californians for Lower Taxes said in its news release that of the $436,452, $297,390 came from 16,750 individual donors. The group said the average contribution was $15.37.

Mother, New England TV viewers see birth of child

BOSTON (UPI) — For 31 minutes Monday, Sally Dineen sat in front of the television set in a hospital room watching the birth of her second child. Across New England, thousands of other persons also watched the recorded birth of Alyssa Dineen.

Public reaction to the show came immediately, and was overwhelmingly favorable to the film, shown on "The Sonya Hamlin Show" on WBZ-TV.

"We got many, many calls from men: some of them expectant fathers, all of them asking that we show the film again in the evening," said a spokesman.

The station logged more than 150 calls immediately after the broadcast "all but eight of them positive, and many of them demanding a rebroadcast of the film."

Station executives said they planned to repeat the film in evening prime time, but did not specify a date.

Dr. Donald Walton, the attending physician at the birth last Saturday at Lawrence General Hospital, said he was "delighted with the birth" and "glad to see the film. We were busy, and not in any position to see everything the firsttime."

"I'm really glad I did it," said the 23-year-old housewife from North Andover. "the whole experience was so fantastic."

Haldemans appearance the peak of watergate probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time in 10 weeks of Watergate hearings, the hundreds of people crammed into the marble hall fell silent all at once as the senator and the witness regarded one another in something less than mutual admiration.

Across that breath-holding hush, the glare exchanged Tuesday by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. and H.R. Haldeman bespoke what more than 5,000 pages of transcribed testimony has not quite captured — the deep divisions carved by the scandal and the clash of philosophies it has come to represent.

"Who set the example for what happened?" Weicker had demanded a few moments earlier.

"I don't believe that anyone has to set an example..." replied Haldeman, who until last spring was regarded as the most powerful man in Washington next to Richard M. Nixon himself.

"Because I still stand foursquare behind the statement that this was the most outstanding, most dedicated and most able group of people with whom I have ever been associated and with whom I ever hope to be associated."

"But Mr. Haldeman," Weicker protested. "I think that in light of the facts that are coming out that both you and I would agree that this went far beyond just a few men breaking into the Watergate. But rather it's revealed...a situation both in the Committee to Re-Elect the President and within the White House whereupon everything that was touched was corroded."

Haldeman regarded Weicker, a Connecticut Republican who months ago called for his resignation, icily.

"No, sir, I will not in any way, shape or form accept that allegation or contention," he said. "There is no way that any man in this country can establish and make the case that everything in the White House, or everything that the White House touched, was corroded. And I think that does a great disservice to this country to even state it..."

"I would only say this," Weicker shot back. "That the real problem is that your definition as to who does a disservice to the country has always been far too broad a definition."

The audience gasped and fell silent. Rage rose and then fell in Haldeman's pale blue eyes as he regarded Weicker across the massive committee table. He gritted his teeth, looked away and did not reply.

The committee soon adjourned, to question Haldeman more again today.

His first full day before the Senate Watergate Committee and had not been an easy one. Low-key at the outset, Haldeman matched the mood— flashing a frequent grin, speaking softly and politely and not seeming to match his own billing as "Nixon's S.O.B."

But as the questioning got tougher—probing to find out if Haldeman, as alleged, was deeply involved in at least the Watergate cover-up if not the planning for the actual bugging itself—so did the crewcut Californian.

His voice took on a hard edge and his answers got shorter and firmer. He volunteered little.

Conceding that Watergate has become "an enormous embarrasscent" to the administration, the former White House chief of staff nonetheless insisted that both he and the President had been kept in the dark for some nine months after the June 17, 1972, arrests at the Democratic National Committee about who was behind the espionage raid and who was covering up the truth.

And from listening to tape recordings of two crucial conversations between Nixon and John W. Dean III, the only witness thus far to allege the President's own involvement in the scandal, Haldeman said "any reasonable person" would similarly conclude as he did Nixon was innocent.

Would he be willing to play those tapes before the committee—if the committee can obtain them?

"I would welcome that opportunity, because they would confirm what I have told you," Haldeman said.

His testimony Monday that he had listened to the tapes—which Nixon has refused to provide to the committee or to Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox—still had the committee reeling. He stunned them further by saying he had had one of the crucial tapes out of the White House for 48 hours or more early this month, along with an unspecified number of others he had not elected to listen to.

"Now, this is the question that people are asking: Is it possible that this tape, during those 48 hours, could have been doctored?" asked Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii.

"I don't consider it to be possible," Haldeman replied, explaining they had been shut up in the closet of his study at home and had seen "no evidence" it had been broken into or the tapes tampered with.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., complaining that the White House was "leaking" the secret tapes through Haldeman to its own advantage, contended that there had been collusion.

"There was an effort on the part of White House lawyers to join Mr. Haldeman in making the interpretation of these tapes public," Ervin said angrily. He described it as "counterfeit testimony" and again demanded that the tapes be made public.

Though Haldeman said it was "absolutely" untrue that he had collaborated with the White House to put Nixon's version of the critical conversations into the committee record, almost every committee member demanded a chance to hear the recordings to find out what they really say.

The committee is expected to file suit later this week seeking to force Nixon to provide the tapes. Cox has already done so.

The White House, meanwhile, said Haldeman had been provided the tapes on the basis of "the President's judgment of who could best assist him in determining the facts of the Watergate matter" without violating their confidentiality. Haldeman said the President himself had asked that he review the two tapes—of meeting Sept. 15 and March 21 —and said he understood no one else would be permitted to do so.

Author of impeachment action

Priestly solon a man of firsts

By United Press International

The Rev. Robert Frederick Drinan, the first Roman Catholic priest elected as a voting members of Congress, is the first member of the House to introduce a resolution of impeachment against Prsident Nixon.

Drinan, a firm liberal, was elected in 1970 from his native Boston as a strident anti-war activist. In the primary he defeated Rep. Philip J. Philbin, D-Mass., a 14-term congressman and hawk on the Vietnam war who was slated to become chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

"I'm not so pretentious I'm going to save the nation,' Drinan said in a interview shortly after he took his House seat, and he soon found himself cast among his ideological adversaries.

The man who had bitterly denounced the old House Committee on Un-American Activities and was an official of the "Committee to Abolish HUAC" readily accepted appointment to the committee after a few days in office. Drinan still serves on its successor, the House Internal Security Committee, as a self-styled "token liberal."

ANTI-WAR, ANTI-NIXON JESUIT, REP. ROBERT DRINAN

Drinan, 52, is balding, lean and hawk-nosed. He seems to run rather than walk. A former law school dean, he spends a lot of time on the House floor rummaging through a battered brief case and dog-earned congressional folder that bulge with reports, constituents' letters and notes to himself.

He rarely participates in debate, but when he does he speaks in a nervous, rasping voice and frequently leaves fellow members with the impression that he is ill-prepared.

In private conversation he spits out facts in machine gun bursts, but his printed statements, like the legal-size, 13-page explanation of his impeachment resolution, reflect a scholarly background.

Ordained a Jesuit priest in 1953, he studied in Florence, Italy, for a year before he was named dean of the Boston College Law School, where he also taught constitutional law. Among the books he has written is one titled "Religion, the Courts and Public Policy."

Drinan has served as chairman of the Massachusetts Bar Association committee on the administration of justice, chairman of the family law section of the American Bar Association, and chairman of the Massachusetts Advisory committee for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

Drinan was the first member of the New England delegation in the House to endorse Sen. George McGovern for the Democratic presidential nomination last year.

While in Washington, Drinan resides with the Jesuit community on the Georgetown University campus. He pays living expenses to the Jesuit order but the rest of his $42,500 annual salary goes toward expenses for special services in his Boston congressional district.

Chip champ

BEAVER, Okla. (UPI) — Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma is the 1973 cowchip throwing champion in the politician's class. He threw a flat, rounded chip of cow manure 101 feet to win the event.

'Treason, bribery . . .'

Impeachment references are few

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only brief references to impeachment are made in the Constitution. The actual procedure for impeaching a President is left to congressional rules and the lone precedent of Andrew Johnson.

The sole power of impeachment—in effect, the investigating and returning of an indictment—is placed by the Constitution in the House.

The Senate is given the sole power to try all impeachments. It sits as a court under oath and with the Supreme Court chief justice presiding.

Conviction requires a two-thirds majority vote by the Senate.

The Constitution specifices that the President, vice president and all civil officers of the government shall be removed from office on impeachment for and conviction of "treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

It also says punishment on conviction cannot extend beyond removal from office and a ban against holding further office. However, the person still is subject to prosecution in the courts.

Still another section says the President may grant reprieves and pardons for federal offenses "except in cases of impeachment." This means that if a President is removed from office and succeeded by the vice president, the vice president can not grant him a pardon.

The final portion of this section of the Constitution provides that all crimes "except in cases of impeachment" shall be tried by jury.

Andrew Johnson, the 17th President and successor to Abraham Lincoln, was impeached by the House in 1868. However, the Senate failed to muster the necessary two-thirds vote for conviction. Over the years, 12 government officials and judges have been impeached by the House and four have been convicted by the Senate.

House procedure allows a member to rise at any time and demand a vote on impeachment of the President. If the motion is seconded, the House must suspend all other business until a vote is taken.

This was last tried in 1930 against President Herbert Hoover, but only 11 members voted for impeachment.

A more common route is through a probe by a standing or special committee of the House. The committee collects evidence in much the same manner as a grand jury, and any articles returned would be similar to a grand jury indictment.

Service charge for repair visit not out of line

My husband called a local firm to repair our refrigerator. The personable repairman gave us an estimate of $135 which involved replacing the automatic defrost timer and auxiliary heater and replacing a hose which he said was probably causing water to leak on the floor.

He advised us to think of buying a new refrigerator. We told him we would give him a call.

A few days later he phoned and asked what our decision was. He told us there was a service charge of $12.50 but if we bought a refrigerator from him there would be no service charge.

Since we thought we didn't have anything to lose, we asked my father if he would try to fix the refrigerator as he had recently taken refrigeration courses in college. My father checked the refrigerator for leaks and then filled it with freon for a total cost of $3, not including labor. The refrigerator has been working perfectly now for three months.

In view of the circumstances, do you feel the repair firm is entitled to the $12.50 service charge? —Mrs. J. P., Pomona.

The repair firm representative sent us a detailed account of his encounter with your "frost-free" refrigerator.

He said he found the defrost timer was not turning the defrost heater on automatically. He turned the timer on manually, the heater came on, and in a short time, water started running down on the floor on the side of the refrigerator he reported.

Talking later to the factory service man for this area, he stated, he was told there wasn't any way that the refrigerator would ever give good service.

If you are using the refrigerator, the repair firm representative claims, you have a musty odor down in the fresh food compartment, you have to defrost every three or four days and when you do, you have water running down on the floor.

Action Line considers the real issue to be whether you should pay a service charge when you summon a repairman to your house.

We selected at random three firms offering appliance repair service. One charges $8.35 without specifying any time involved, another charges $13.50 for the first 15 minutes and the third charges $12.50 for the first 15 minutes.

If your refrigerator is still working satisfactorily, we advise you to pay the $12.50 and be thankful for a knowledgeable father.

Hearing set on $23 million school budget with 94-cent cut in taxes

POMONA — Pomona school board will hold a public hearing tonight at 7:30 on a $23 million 1973-74 budget which would allow a 94-cent tax cut, a 10.75 per cent salary increase for teachers and busing funds for Diamond Bar students.

Following the hearing, the board will take action on the administration's recommendation that it be adopted.

The meeting, which the public is invited to attend, will be held in the first-floor board room of the District Education Center at 800 S. Garey Ave.

Funds derived through Senate Bill 90 and its trailer bill, Assembly Bill 1267, along with an increase in district assessed evaluation, permit the 94-cent tax cut.

This would drop the 1973-74 tax rate per $100 of assessed valuation to $5.2259, compared to $6.1635 last year.

The budget which is proposed for adoption shows income for 1973-74 of $23,064,385 with expenditures totaling $22,595,370 and the remainder shown in reserves.

It is some $4 million greater than the $19,680,297 budget adopted for 1972-73.

It includes $13 million for certificated salaries, compared to $11.4 million last year, and $3.5 million for classified salaries, up from $2.6 million last year.

Administrators, at the last board meeting, were instructed by the board to include funds in the final budget to provide the busing service to Diamond Bar students.

The resolution, changing policy to make the transportation possible, will be given a first reading Aug. 14, and a second reading Aug. 28, after which the board will vote on the matter. If it is not approved, the money will revert to the general fund.

The budget also includes in its proposed tax rate a 10-cent community service tax—eliminated by Senate Bill 90 and reinstated by Assembly Bill 1267. These funds are to be used to provide noon supervisors on school grounds, support community use of school facilities during after-school hours, and for community recreation.

Claremont lawyer's suit against GM alive again

CLAREMONT — The state Court of Appeals has reversed the recent dismissal in Los Angeles Superior Court of a Claremont attorney's class action law suit against General Motors.

The suit, filed in 1969 by Stephen I. Zetterberg and Lawrence George (the latter now teaching Florida), involved alleged defects in three-piece disc wheels sold as optional equipment on 1960-65 Chevrolet and GMC three-quarter ton trucks. Zetterberg and George sued in behalf of persons owning trucks equipped with those wheels manufactured for GM by Kelsey-Hayes Corporation Inc.

The complaint requested that GM recall and pay for replacement of the wheels. GM later agreed to replace the wheels on trucks equipped with campers or other special bodies.

Meanwhile, the federal highway administrator notified GM that there was a defect on the wheels and GM filed suit in an attempt to invalidate the highway administrator's finding. The U.S. government countered by suing to assess a $400,000 fine against GM. That legal battle is continuing in federal court.

Locally, after other legal moves, GM requested the Los Angeles court to refuse to maintain the Zetterberg-George suit as a class action and Judge John L. Cole dismissed the case when the plaintiffs refused to change the complaint by listing individual charges against GM instead of the broader class action.

Zetterberg appealed Cole's dismissal and the case was heard in the Second Appellate District Court. The three-judge panel, in a unanimous decision, ruled that the Los Angeles court erred in finding the case could not be maintained as a class action and returned it to court for further proceedings.

Defense motions will be heard in murder case

POMONA — Donald Lee Phillips, 23-year-old Pomona man charged with murder in a shooting here June 2, is scheduled for appearance Oct. 5 in Pomona Superior Rourt for a ruling on various pretrial defense motions.

Phillips was arrested on a murder charge in the death of Elmo Hartwell Newton Jr., also 23, who was shot in the head outside an apartment building at 311 Abbott St. Pomona Superior Court Judge Glenn M. Pfau ordered that Phillips remain in jail in lieu of bail.

Police reported that Newton forced his way into the apartment of his ex-wife, Mrs. Barbara Newton, 22, carrying a gun. They said he fought with Phillips, whom he found there, and that Phillips got the gun, a .38-caliber revolver, away from him. They said Phillips chased Newton from the apartment and that after the two men ran down the stairs from Mrs. Newton's second-floor apartment, Newton was shot in the head.

The defendant pleaded innocent to the murder charge when he was arraigned in Superior Court July 1.

The younger Garcia said he plans to work for the improvement of the barrio after he receives his law degree.

Garcia graduated from Cal Poly last June with a bachelor of arts degree in behavioral science. He earlier received an associate of arts degree in sociology from Mt. San Antonio College.

The presentations were made by J. E. Grauman, vice president.

The local plant, formerly Wayne Manufacturing Co., is now a division of FMC Corp.

Warn began his career as a heavy equipment mechanic when the company was located in Los Angeles. Involved in the development of the first model street sweeper, Warn moved to Pomona when the Pomona plant was purchased.

Warn has worked as a field service representative out of the company's Pomona and Newark offices and has conducted dealer training schools coast to coast.

He recently won the annual award presented by the California Association of Rehabilitation Facilities for his service.

LA VERNE — Recipients of letters of commendation from the La Verne City Beautiful Committee in June included Fernandico Vega, Thurl Myer, Delmar Stanley, Don Sullivan, Lester Gardner, Mrs. Hildegard Zentarra, Hugh Mechesney Jr., Robert Garciduenas, Larry Crawford, Jack Brooks, Mrs. Kenneth Swank, Paul Shamblin, Lowell Brubaker, Florentino Planta, Howard Ulm, Walter Pears and Geoffrey White.

The charge is $11 per child.

Assemblyman Montoya and council to meet

POMONA — The City Council will meet Friday with Assemblyman Joseph Montoya, D-50th Dist., to discuss matters of mutual concern.

The special meeting, at the Castaway restaurant, will start at noon.

To be discussed is pending state legislation giving public employes the right to strike, the practice of the state mandating certain city programs without providing the funds to pay for them, and a Rapid Transit District master plan on corridors.

Public is confused

Who is the head man at Pomona City Hall?

POMONA — Citizens unfamiliar with the inner workings of city government would have a hard time figuring out who's really running things at City Hall.

The picture will get more confusing next week when the City Council's appointment of Patrick Sampson as interim acting city administrator goes into effect.

Sampson is actually Pomona's full-time city attorney.

He will assume the title as City Hall's major domo while the temporary acting city administrator, Larry Thomas, is on vacation.

Thomas is really Pomona's city clerk and has been since 1955.

Sampson, quipped Councilman Charles W. Bader, will sort of become an acting, acting city administrator for awhile.

Thomas became acting city administrator July 1 following the resignation from the post of Ora E. Lampman. He will serve until a replacement is selected by the council.

But while Thomas has had the final word on administrative matters, the bulk of the paperwork normally handled by the city administrator has been the responsibility of Asst. City Administrator Joseph Korpsak.

The council did lessen the confusion somewhat by changing the title of City Manager Fred Sharp, who actually was head of the city's redevelopment program, to executive director of redevelopment.

Camera club session slated

POMONA — Mrs. Elbert Mead, a member of the Pomona Valley Camera Club, will present the program at a club meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at 300 Pomona Mall West.

"Photography: Picture Windows on the World" will be the title of her presentation. She will illustrate with black and white prints.

Mrs. Mead is a member of the Wind and Sun Council of Camera Clubs, the Photographic Society of America and is a professional member of the National Writers Club.

She and her husband have traveled widely throughout the United States and Canada photographing nature.

The meeting is open to the public. Admission is free.

EDITORIAL

Opinion

Precedents jolt Nixon 'privilege'

If the concept of separation of powers is to be a workable one, it has to be on the basis of equality among the three branches of the federal government.

If Congress may not interfere with the legitimate functioning of the executive, neither can a president interfere with that of the legislative branch. Nor can either one tread upon the constitutional prerogatives of the judiciary, and vice-versa.

On this basis, there may be at least two recent precedents that cast serious doubt on the legality of President Nixon's refusal to turn over to the Watergate committee tapes of presidential conversations that the committee believes could assist its investigation.

On the same day in June, 1972, the Supreme Court ruled in two cases AGAINST congressional separation-of-powers claims that are strikingly similar to the argument now being put forward on behalf of the presidency by Mr. Nixon, says Nathan Lewin, a Washington attorney and former deputy assistant attorney general.

The first, he recounts in the New Republic, concerned Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska. In this case, the Justice Department was investigating the circumstances of Gravel's midnight reading of the Pentagon Papers and their subsequent publication by the Beacon Press, a Massachusetts publisher.

The question put to the court was whether the senator's assistant could be subpoened by a federal grand jury and compelled to testify about publication of the papers. Justice Byron White, speaking for himself and the four Nixon court appointees, went beyond the issue presented by the government and ruled that even the senator himself could be called by a grand jury and asked about his sources of information if they were "irrelevant to investigating possible third-party crime" and where the questions "do not require testimony about or impunge a legislative act."

The other ruling concerned former Senator Daniel Brewster of Maryland and was written by Chief Justice Warren Berger. It involved the criminal prosecution of Brewster for having received a bribe to influence his action on postal rate legislation.

"Taking a bribe," said Justice Berger, "is, obviously, no part of the legislative process or function." The Constitution, he ruled, "does not prohibit inquity into activities which are casually or incidentally related to legislative affairs but not a part of the legislative process itself."

This is precisely what the entire Watergate affair involves, claimed Lewin. By shielding his records and tapes, the president is not securing against a prying Congress the internal workings of legitimate executive functions; he is cloaking "third-party crimes" and conduct that are "executive functions" only in the sense that they were performed in the White House.

"The robbery on the White House lawn does not become an executive function merely because it occurs at 600 Pennsylvania Avenue," says Lewin, "nor do unconstitutional invasion of privacy, obstructions of justice, perjury and other forms of misfeasance come within even the broadest definitions of legitimate executive powers."

Hearsay holiday

A great many people have expressed concern over the Watergate investigation's widespread display of hearsay evidence; evidence that is intended to bring infamy to other persons without benefit of formal legal processes.

One concerned is syndicated liberal columnist John Roche. Because his attitude toward "the holiday of hearsay evidence sponsored by the Ervin Committee" seems to coincide with that of conservative critics, he has, he writes wryly, been accused of selling out his liberalism. Not so.

Roche says he has always "opposed congressional investigations without a legislative purpose, that is, fishing expeditions." He is on record as having strongly objected to such probes as "the road shows run by the House Committee on Un-American Activites," the McCarthy hearings, the Kefauver crime investigation "and other similar safaris intended to hold people in infamy, not put them in jail."

A House or Senate investigating Committee, he points out, "is no substitute for a grand jury." And for the uninitiated he applies the argument the Watergate case. "The difference between the Ervin Committee and the federal grand jury is not that Mr. John Dean III could not have presented his six-hour statement to the jury. Grand juries listen to all sorts of hear-say, but they do so in secret, not before an audience estimated at over 50 million."

Whereever one's sympathies or convictions may lie, that is what makes many uneasy over the Watergate probe now going on.

Making it clear

There's no getting away from Watergate, even in the most unrelated matters.

In a recent issue of a magazine of book reviews, for instance, the reviewer of a book on biblican history felt compelled to put the phrase "at this point in time" in quotation marks.

And a Pontiac, Mich., company has informed its customers that "effective with his release date, the above listed telephone number will be 'inoperative'."

A new bombshell: the Calley tapes

WASHINGTON — While the nation awaits the Supreme Court showdown over the White House tapes, we have listened to some secret tapes which may present President Nixon with another excruciating dilemma.

These tapes contain Lt. William Calley's lengthy, agonizing psychiatric interviews after he was accused of mass murder at My Lai.

Some psychiatrists have concluded from the interviews that he probably was "legally insane" when he led his company on the shooting spree. Other psychiatrists, while agreeing he had personality problems, found "no evidence of mental disease, defect or derangement."

President Nixon has promised personally to review the Calley case. His final decision will have tremendous emotional impact. People around the world believe Calley was a monster who should be severely punished. But others feel he was a madman whose irrational behavior should not forever stain America's fighting men.

Calley looked upon himself as quite normal, except for the "irrational behavior happening." As he recounted the incident to psychiatrists, "I had all the troops in a truck ,and there was no warm feeling for the Vietnamese people among the troops and me. I had nothing but disgust. I had just, I won't say highly hostile feelings, to the point where I wanted to wantonly shoot anybody or beat anybody up or anything like that. But I had no respect for them. . .

"The truck came up to the village, at which time I went into the store to get some candles. And there was a bottle of Seagram's Seven there, of which I picked up and walked out—just wanton theft. Of which Mama San ran out—well not the Mama San, she was a young girl—ran out. . . I told the guard, the truck driver to go on. . .

"I just thought that was an extremely irrational behavior. It seems to me I did pay for the candles . . . I came back and I gave the booze to my troops. And I said, 'Joe, check it out for glass.' I don't think I'd personally drink it. I had no desire in drinking the booze because I was afraid of it because it was on the market.

"They didn't drink it (either) . . . The Mps and I gave it back to the girl. It was a matter of why I actually did that, for which I had no excuse."

Anger at the war

Calley went on to describe his frustration over the difficulty of identifying the enemy in Vietnam. He confessed grief over the loss of men, anger at the war and constant fear.

He tried to explain his feelings: "I think the moral issues of the war—the question of when is a war right, when is a war good, when is killing right, when is it wrong and actually when is, what are we fighting—we shouldn't be there.

"Are we fighting the Reds, or a tribe of people, or a bunch of human beings because they're in that situation? Or are we fighting an ideological philosophy that has been conjured in the minds of human beings?"

"What is your feeling about why we are fighting in Vietnam?" Calley was asked.

What is communism?

"Well," he replied, "everybody knows we're there to stop communism. What is communism? Today, actually communism is not an animate object. It's a philosophy in the minds of men. So how can you go into an armed conflict and say we're going to save these people from (communism). You've got armed combat troops in there to do a job, troops that were designed to fight a hostile enemy . . . We're not going to change your way of thinking. We're going to take your position and then endanger your way of life."

At My Lai, Calley felt he was merely carrying out orders to shoot everyone remaining in the area because they had been identified as the enemy. He was "hyper" or "psyched up," but he felt he was in full control of his faculties.

Afterward, he was stunned over the murder charges brought against him. "I was pulled into the Adjutant, no, I mean the Attorney General's office," said Calley. "And he said we've got a, we're conducting an investigation about the My Lai problem.

"And I said great. And I was happy. Not because it had entered my mind that I had done anything wrong. I thought somebody finally was going to come and ask me my advice on the war. And I had built up so much stuff inside me . . .

Murder charge

"But then in the next breath, he told me 'at which time you will probably be charged with murder. Do you want an attorney?' And I said, 'Gee, I thought you wanted to know something about a combat operation. What do you mean you're going to charge me with murder?' He said, 'Well, we're carrying on an investigation . . . There was something wrong there'."

"What is it," a psychiatrist asked Calley, "that you have actually been charged with as far as you know today?"

"One hundred and two cases of premeditated murder," he replied.

"And against whom?"

"Oriental people of mixed ages and races."

The accusation, he said, "suddenly presented me at this stage in my life with a cross few men have to bear in life. Now, people don't talk about the My Lai massacre, they call it the Calley massacre. All of a sudden, I have now become the personification of evil and horror, and everywhere I go, I must face these attitudes of people . . . It is difficult and hard to understand why it should have happened to me, and I singled out."

Nixon poised for counterattack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sorely tired of being hammered daily on the Watergate affair, the Nixon White House is poised for a counterattack.

According to officials in a position to know, it will be launched in full a week or 10 days after the President's two former highlevel aides, John D. Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman, complete their testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee.

The President was said to be fearful that his prestige and credibility were being so eroded by the Watergate affair and all this has come to symbolize that his ability to govern is in jeopardy.

According to these sources, he is being urged to escalate the conflict from a legal to a political or ideological battle in which it will be charged that Nixon's enemies are seizing on the issue not to punish wrongdoers for past excesses and prevent future ones, but to destroy him and the policies he stands for, the policies which more than 60 per cent of the electorate voted for last November.

If Nixon follows the advice of some of his aides, the counteroffensive will attack the motives of the Senate Investigating Committee, the special Watergate prosecutor and the news media.

One of the chief targets will be the office of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, whose past associations with the Kennedys make him vulnerable to charges of political partisanship.

Some White House officials have made no secret that they would like to see Cox resign. There was the fond hope among some aides close to the President that Cox would step down in protest at Nixon's decision not to furnish him access to tapes of Presidential conversations.

Instead, Cox held a news conference at which he challenged the legal basis for Nixon's decision and announced he was filing legal proceedings to obtain them.

The President was infuriated by news stories saying Cox was investigating the financial transaction by which Nixon acquired his California estate. And he was little mollified by a statement from Cox's office denying that this was the case.

Cox has already built a sizable bureaucracy — some 33 lawyers and 29 support personnel at last count —and so far has failed to return any indictments in the area he was assigned to investigate.

Several of his lawyers worked in the Justice Department during the Kennedy Administration and already publications favorable to the President are accusing him of ranging far afield from his mandate, neglecting his legitimate function in order to dig up political dirt.

Another feature of the coming counteroffensive was said to be an attack on the news media for displaying a double standard in condemning the theft of documents from the Democratic National Committee but awarding journalistic prizes for publication of stolen Pentagon documents.

The idea the President would like to leave in everybody's mind is that while he is not without fault in the Watergate affair, the scandal cannot cause the abandoning of the New Revolution he has launched.

Herbert G. Klein, an old and valued Nixon associate who recently resigned as Director of Communications for the Nixon administration, is quietly calling on some of the contacts he made with editors and opinion-makers during his White House years to push this line.

Gossip for today

You find them everywhere — the something for nothing guys who are firmly convinced that the world owes them a living. But by-and-large you'll find that most of them are operating in the world of politics. And the latest politician to advocate that something for nothing philosophy is none other than our Secretary of State, Edmund Brown Jr., who possibly is already considering running for higher office at some future date.—Otherwise, I ask myself, why would he be suggesting that political candidates be given FREE TV time for their campaigns?

INSIDE REPORT

Percy running ahead of Kennedy

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—The recent Harris poll showing astonishing strength for Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois against Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, universally derided by politicians and fellow pollsters, is convincingly confirmed by our own interviewing in a Nixon New Majority blue-collar neighborhood.

Liberal Republican Percy not only beat Kennedy but ran better than both Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and former Gov. John Connally of Texas in presidential matchings we conducted during a Jersey City political tour last week.

Equally surprising was the awareness of Percy. A Midwesterner closely connected to big business and the liberal elite, Percy was as well known in Jersey City as Rockefeller, Connally and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. Only Agnew did better against Kennedy than Percy, but only marginally.

The results of our interviews (with national pollster Oliver Quayle) among 92 voters, mainly ethnic Democrats who voted Nixon last year:

Agnew 37 voters, Kennedy 34 voters, not sure 21. Percy 36, Kennedy 34, not sure 22. Kennedy 36, Connally 33, not sure 23. Kennedy 39, Rockefeller 29, not sure 24.

These findings back the widely doubted report of July 16 by pollster Louis Harris that Percy was running ahead of Kennedy nationally by 46 per cent to 44 per cent (the balance undecided).

The explanation for Percy's sudden presidential popularity is murky, but its existence should be a loud signal to his party: Chuck Percy must be taken very seriously as a 1976 presidential prospect.

Democratic gag

The Democratic National Committee on orders of Chairman Robert Strauss secretly imposed a gag rule forbidding its staffers from talking to any reporters—outdoing even the restrictive Haldeman-Ehrlichman White House in trying to close doors.

The gag was ordained last Tuesday by Mary Lou Burg, deputy national chairman, in a confidential memorandum to staffers. Paying lip service to an "entirely open" policy with the press, Miss Burg imposed unprecedented restrictions on reporters.

Miss Burg, noting the appointment of Vince Clephas as the National Committee's press secretary, ordered that "all press inquires should be directed to him and him alone." The memo continued:

"He (Clephas) in turn will confer with the chairman and his staff, the finance director and his staff, and will reply to these inquiries. There is absolutely no need for other staff individuals to respond directly to these press calls. If the press contacts you, courteously refer them to Vince. He will decide on the proper response. And if a more detailed reply is necessary he will assign the person to make the reply."

Miss Burg, while refusing to show us the memo, told us the gag rule is merely intended to keep Clephas informed of what other staffers tell the press.

In truth, Miss Burg's gag rule was directed by Chairman Strauss (who has always been entirely open with the press) in spontaneous reaction to a young employe in the committee's finance division discussing with us a $10,000 contribution by the milk lobby. Miss Burg, a Wisconsin Democratic leader, let it be known she wanted no more underlings talking to the press. Strauss, vacationing in California, did not see her memo.

Investigating the investigators

Sen. Sam Ervin, though first dismissing charges out of hand that his chief investigator conducted political dirty tricks, is not — contrary to rumors being spread by Republicans — blocking an investigation of the claims.

At issue are affidavits, obtained by private investigators hired by Republican National Chairman George Bush, alleging political espionage against the Republicans in the 1960 presidential campaign. They name as chief spy Carmine Bellino, chief investigator of Ervin's Watergate Committee.

Before he unveiled them last week, Bush privately showed the affidavits to Ervin and Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, the committee's Republican vice chairman, a week earlier. Ervin was stunned. He had known Carmine Bellino for 20 years, he told Bush, and he could not even consider these ridiculous charges.

Bush left the meeting with the impression Ervin would do nothing, leading to GOP innuendos that the chairman had his own cover-up.

However, Ervin soon calmed down. As the Watergate hearings progressed on national television, a whispered conference between Ervin and Baker agreed the affidavits could not be ignored.

Consequently, Ervin and Baker showed Bellino copies of Bush's affidavits. Bellino vigorously denied the charges. Ervin then suggested Bellino obtain his own affidavits to rebut Bush's. What the committee does next depends on Bellino's rebuttal.

Community band project is launched in Ontario

ONTARIO — One way a community can keep "in tune" is by having its own band.

The first step toward forming a community symphonic or marching band will be taken here Monday. Musicians are invited to the Salvation Army building at 7 p.m.

Fred Chamberlain of Ontario and Bob Parton of Upland are the organizers. Chamberlain, associated with Salvation Army bands for several years, is presently director of the Ontario Salvation Army Band.

Parton was a musician in the Air Force band for several years and has been most recently associated with Salvation Army bands in Southern California.

"We are hoping to form a band for area parades and to give concerts in Ontario and surrounding areas," said Chamberlain.

The community band will not be restricted to religious music, he emphasized. "The Salvation Army here is providing us facilities for rehearsals."

The band idea stemmed from Chamberlain's son playing in the Ontario High School band. "I went to the school's year-end concert, then began thinking that many of these students would put down their musical instruments after graduation, never to play again."

The community band, he added, will have no maximum nor minimum age limits. Rather, it will seek to include all age groups.

"We want to get this off the ground Monday night and see how much interest we can draw," said Chamberlain. "If we can get 10 to 15 people for the first meeting, that will be good."

The program may start with only a symphonic band then develop into a symphonic orchestra, he added.

Such a musical group has the support of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

"Ontario has needed such a band for a long time," siad Berger Nielsen, executive vice president. "A lot of people have talked to one, but have never done anything to form one."

Nielsen said a band could be a "definite asset" to the city. It could be used at various civic functions.

He also envisioned the band taking part in both the annual California 500 parade plus pre-race festivities at the Ontario Motor Speedway.

The chamber, he noted, may assist the new group in raising funds for uniforms and musical instruments.

The car has won the Grand Prix at Cal Poly for the past three years for its sponsors, the Poly Staff Council. Preliminaries for the Festival Derby will be held at the Poly campus with finals on Euclid Avenue in Ontario Sept. 1.

Final budget review for O-M school district due

ONTARIO — Public hearing on the Ontario-Montclair School District's final budget for 1973-74 will be Thursday during the board of trustees' monthly meeting.

The session will begin at 4 p.m.

The final budget allows for a .996 cent reduction from the current tax total of $3.7933 per $100 assessed valuation. The figure may undergo a slight alteration once a utility tax rate is announced later this week.

Increases in total revenue and total expenditures will also be reflected in the budget. In the publication budget, which was approved by the board July 12, total income was estimated at $15.3 million. Due to various adjustments, this total has increased by $227,667.

However, the hike in expenditures is almost $350,000 setting costs for the district at $14.7 million. The rise in expenditures includes pay hikes adopted in July for top-level administrators, and the additional .43 per cent wage hike for certificated and classified employes resulting from passage of AB 1267.

S.B. mentally ill patients to be housed at Camarillo

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) — Approximately 280 mentally ill patients from this country will be transferred from Patton State Hospital to the Camarillo facility on an interim basis through action of the County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors accepted senior administrative analyst Robert E. Russell's suggestion that any lease agreement with the state on the Patton facilities be ignored, and that the county order the director of mental health to immediately initiate efforts to investigate and develop alternate local community resources for the care and treatment of "sub-acute" patients.

Transfer of the patients to Camarillo will begin today, with the Sheriff's department delegated to handle the moving. Transfer of the patients in marked and barred sheriff's vehicles came in for heated discussion, with mental health director David Whitbread insisting it would be degrading to most of the patients who were classified as "sub-acute" and due for short terms of treatment, from three to eight weeks. Long-term patients, of course, would be moved with proper precautions taken.

More than 200 of the patients are court wards under the jurisdiction of public guardian Bill Hill, who told the board that time was of the essence, inasmuch as the state had directed the transfer to take place no later than Aug. 31.

Supervisor Dennis Hansberger stated that the 50-bed leased facility at Patton as proposed by Whitbread was too much of a responsibility. "We should develop local hospital resources," he said.

Supervisor Daniel D. Mikesell, after listening to the three alternatives offered by Russell for consideration by the board, determined that the move to Camarillo was the best for the time being and that resources should be developed in the county for the care of the mentally ill.

A lease agreement was rejected and also the suggestion that the board take no action and allow the State to provide care and treatment of these patients at Camarillo for the foreseeable future, noted as infeasible because of the State's announced intention to get out the business.

Ag director's wife grumbles

SACRAMENTO (UPI — California's "first lady" of agriculture is among those who think food costs too much, according to her husband, state Food and Agriculture Director C.B. Christensen.

"She complains a little bit, once in a while, when she thinks prices are jumping too fast,' says Christensen, who recently predicted groceries could jump another 15 per cent in cost.

"But she is a good trooper. She understands food is still a pretty small part of all that people spend."

Adds Christensen: "One of the things we use a lot of is hamburger."

Erma Bombeck

A 19-year-old authoress, Joyce Maynard (in her new book, "Looking Back") reflected that during her lifetime she had logged 5,000 hours in front of the television set.

This neither surprised nor impressed me. Sometimes I feel the action on that little tube is monitoring my heartbeat and that when Dick Van Dyke goes off for good, that will be the end of my life.

If there is anything that is shocking it is the way housewives have generally come to accept commercials that depict them in the home.

There was a time when we questioned large hairy arms coming out of our washers, men in white raincoats who descended from the air with leakproof sandwich bags, or Morey Amsterdam running around your stomach with a bucket of antacid and a mop.

Shock has turned to apathy and resignation. It is like the ol Thurber cartoon of the man and his wife in bed with a s balanced on the headboard and the man is saying, "Okay, there's a seal on the bed. So what!"

I've never pretended to be a stable person. That is why lean heavily on the strength of others. A group of us v watching the tube intermittently the other day between attempt at playing cards.

"Is that the silliest thing you've ever seen?" I giggle "Imagine, a man walking through your wall and offering clean them."

"It could happen," said Vera defensively.

"Whatya mean it could happen?"

"Well, maybe not through the wall, but I've seen some weirdos at my door before."

"Next thing you know you'll begin to believe that a little biscuit hops out of the tube and changes into a little three-inch person who gigles when you punch him in the stomach."

"Well, just because you've never seen one doesn't mean it couldn't happen."

"What's the matter with all of you?" I asked, throwing down my cards. "I suppose you're going to defend the commercial where the man is piloting a boat through your toilet tank and telling you about a new bowl cleaner!"

No one said anything for a full minute. Then Marilyn asked, "How big is the boat?"

Vera interrupted, "Just because we can't see a Marina in there . . ."

If school doesn't start pretty soon, we'll all be in a home.

Presidential candidate?

Governor of Kansas to run for Senate

ROBERT B. DOCKING

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gov. Robert B. Docking of Kansas, already tabbed by Old Pro James A. Farley as a possible Democratic candidate for president in 1976, gives every indication he will run for the U.S. Senate next year.

The 47-year-old four-term Democratic governor of a traditionally Republicn state indicated he was leaning strongly toward running against Sen. Robert J. Dole, the GOP incumbent who has an impressive political record in Kansas. Docking would like to have "some input" in the federal government.

His remarks came during an interview here with United Press International. He said that if he should defeat Dole, he would not consider himself a possible presidential candidate.

However, Farley, who masterminded Franklin D. Roosevelt's first two presidential victories, noted in an interview shortly after Docking won his fourth term in a Republican state last year that "he must be given consideration" as a possible presidential nominee.

Farley said there were likely candidates from a number of senators or governors. Docking's was the first and only name he mentioned.

Docking said he believed Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller would be a strong candidate for the Republican nomination in 1976, along with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. The leading Democratic possibilities in his view were Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Massachusetts, and Henry Jackson, Washington.

He ruled out as a candidate John B. Connally, former governor of Texas and former Secretary of the treasury under President Nixon.

"I know John very well personally, but I doubt very much that he could receive the Democrat nomination, and I don't think it's really expected that he would receive the Republican nomination," Docking said.

Docking said he had not made a firm decision whether to run for a fifth term, run for the Senate, or go back to small town banking.

Asked "What would you like to do?" he replied:

"Well, no firm decision has been made, but I feel very strongly that much of the problems we have in Kansas are problems that cannot be solved at the state level, that they have to do with inflation, and confidence in government at the national level.

Oil firm acts so leak won't happen again

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Atlantic Richfield Co. of Los Angeles says it is taking measures to "prevent reoccurence" of a leak of 115,000 gallons of highly radioactive material from one of its storage tanks in Washington.

The firm's response came after the Atomic Energy Commission said the two-month seepage of liquid radioactive waste "could have been limited" if Atlantic Richfield had detected the leak earlier.

The leak began April 20 at the AEC's giant Hanford Reservation facility in southeastern Washington. In a report issued Monday, the AEC said it was not notified of the leak until June 8. It was the largest in a series of seepages of radioactive material at the Hanford plant in the past 15 years.

The AEC report admitted to making "an inadequate review of the performance" of the contractor, Atlantic Richfield Hanford Co. a subsidiary of the Los Angeles parent firm.

The Atlantic Richfield spokesman said the company has taken "appropriate steps to prevent reoccurrence of such an incident." The firm also said "disciplinary action has been taken where warranted," but refused to elaborate on specific disciplinary measures.

The AEC report said the leak was probably caused by "corrosion of the 20-year-old carbon steel tank by waste solutions." The AEC said there is little danger of the material seeping into groundwater and migrating to the nearby Columbia River.

If the leak had been detected earlier, according to the report, the loss of material could have been limited "to between 26,700 and 37,600 gallons." It suggested improvements in leak detection devices and "a comprehensive review of the contractor organization" in the future.

Sluicing down the Watergate

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

The Greatest Show on Earth is not, of course, the circus, but the Watergate Hearings, subtitled "The Price is Right."

Watergate has its share of clowns, and some of the witnesses are expert tight-rope walkers, but the show will never replace Monday night football.

The examining and cross-examining (and some of it is VERY cross) has been going on longer than Skylab. If the testimony was piled in a stack, the astronauts could step off onto the top of it.

For all of its entertaining aspects, the Watergate interrogation can only properly be evaluated by a drama critic, since the cameras and klieg lights have brought this great political drama under national scrutiny. (Did I say that?)

Star of the Capitol Hill Opera Company is, of course, white-thatched, jowly Sen. Sam J. Ervin, the Scattergood Baines of the troupe. In a taut, luminous performance, Ervin projects a well-rounded characterization charged with humor and insight. His is a notable performance.

Appearing briefly but impressively in Act I, was the principal heavy, ex-Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, who offered a dynamic, Iago-like portrayal for the national audience. Suave and evasive, Mitchell at all times had complete control of his role and of the English language, most of which he used.

Sturdy support is offered to the two old pros by the young, romantic lead, Sen. Howard Baker, a sensitive and perceptive performer who illuminates his impersonation with a vital resonance. This is a man to watch.

H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman essay the minor villains with indifferent success. Ehrlichman tends to overact and to ham up an essentially intellectual role, while Haldeman's halting performance lends little credibility to his part. If the show is ever to make it on Broadway, Ervin is going to have to muster his players of more conviction.

Overall, the production values of the long-running soaper are excellent. The hearing room is convincingly authentic, the staging not imaginative but adequate, the lighting and sound projection faultless. The show needs a little more concerned vivacity from the extras in the background — tie adjustments, nose pickings, furtive looks — to hold the interest of the viewers, but the supporting cast generally shows an admirable professionalism.

In sum, I think the Watergate hearings have the potential to make it on the Great White Way after a few of the more glaring problems are ironed out in out-of-town openings in Philadelphia and Boston. A musical score by Lerner and Loewe ("You Left Me Standing at the Watergate") would undoubtedly boost the box office, but as raw drama, the show holds its own with "I Spy" and "Let's Make a Deal."

Chronicler writes

Watergate would have cost votes, but not election

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Theodore H. White, chronicler of presidential campaigns since 1960, believes Watergate cost Richard Nixon three or four million votes and a possible alltime record landslide in 1972.

White, author of "The Making of the President —1972," says he does not believe that full disclosure of the scandal last summer would have given the election to George McGovern or any other Democrat, but probably would have reduced Nixon's plurality substantially.

The book, fourth in White's series that began with the Kennedy-Nixon campaign 13 years ago, was not completed until late in the spring of 1973. It notes the indictments of former Nixon Cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans, but went to press before the Senate Watergate Committee began taking testimony from former Nixon White House and campaign aides.

The book is for release by retailers Aug. 6, but copies have begun appearing in Washington and New York.

White sharply disagrees with those who believe the arrest of Republican campaign aides during a break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate complex June 17, 1972, had no impact on the election results.

Noting that only 55.7 per cent of Americans eligible by age to vote actually cast ballots, White writes:

"In this writer's opinion, it is possible that at least three or four million Americans were so disillusioned by both candidates that they chose not to vote at all. Had it not been for Watergate, it is quite possible that Richard Nixon's margin would have been increased by another three or four million votes —that, indeed, his stunning 61-38 (per cent) victory might have gone as high as 65-35, for a record that might never again be approached in American two-party history. The Watergate affair blew that opportunity.

"Contrariwise —had the full story of the Watergate scandal and its companion fund-raising scandals been thoroughly exposed during the campaign, Nixon's margin would probably have been diminished to that of most ordinary candidates who run in the 55-45 area of choice. But it is doubtful that in 1972, given the moods, emotions and public issues of that year, George McGovern or any other Democrat could have been elected."

White's own judgment of the Watergate affair:

"At best, Richard Nixon, however magnificent his management of American power abroad, is guilty of gross negligence in management of the power of the White House at home."

At worst, White writes, is the "running question" of whether Nixon was guilty of "misprision of justice" —aiding, concealing or failing to recognize a felony.

"Such a mistake in the President of the United States is unforgivable —and he would have to leave. But to indict a President only on hearsay evidence would be equally unforgivable."

Colonial clockmakers often had little training, but produced accurate timepieces. Talented amateurs continue the tradition. Discarded automobile parts have been fashioned into clockworks, and one man recently made a grandfather clock with all the mechanism carved from wood.

Seniors and calories

COLLEGE STATION, Tex (UPI) — Senior Citizens need fewer calories each day than the middle-aged, say Karen Kreipke, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension service.

"This is because of changes in body chemistry, as well as a decrease in activity," she said. "A woman over 55 years of age needs about the same number of calories as a child four to six years old — about 1,700 calories. A man over 55 needs about the same number of calories as a boy of 10 — approximately 2,400.

Assessors will not stop tax aid---solon

SACRAMENTO (UPI — The legislative architect of the state's new tax shift and school finance program today disputed assessor contentions that increased assessments will outstrip homeowner property tax relief.

Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, insisted that the "damper has definitely been closed on the property tax" and forecast that "major rate rollbacks will take place."

Local agencies have until Sept. 1 to set final tax rates.

Various county assessors surveyed by UPI voiced fear that steadily increasing assessments this year will gnaw away and finally consume the additional $1,750 property tax exemption granted homeowners by the eight-month-old law.

They disagreed, however, over how long it would take statewide for the exemption to disappear.

For some homeowners, and no one knows for certain how many, the exemption probably will be eaten up this year —especially for those whose homes hadn't been reassessed for four or five years.

Bagley, who helped negotiate the complex bill through the 1972 legislature, contended that those persons' homes were underassessed during those year and "nothing could nor should be done for them. They are simply going to be paying their fair share which apparently they were not last year."

The new tax shift and school finance program, partially financed by an additional penny - on - the-dollar sales tax hike which now virtually everybody agrees isn't necessary, froze county property tax rates and imposed expenditure restrictions on school districts.

Bagley , who characterized assesors as "crusty," said if assesed value increaed fater than inflation then school rates will be cut to conform revenue to the spending limit.

He predicted that school tax, rates in some high rate-low wealth districts will drop by more than $2 because about $229 million from the $1.1 billion program is earmarked for ta rate rollbacks.

"In the last 10 years tax rates have averaged an annual 12 per cent increase" he said.

Court OKs mansion site 'dig'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Superior Court judge has turned down a suit by Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. to block excavation of an ancient Indian village at the planned site of a new governor's mansion.

Judge Lloyd Phillips Tuesday denied the Brown request for a preliminary injunction halting the archeological dig until an environmental impact report was prepared on it.

Phillips said preparation of such a report would be "premature" because information gathered in the dig could be included in an environmental impact report for the entire mansion project, which is required by law.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's office, which has criticized Brown's suit as an "obvious political ploy to gain publicity," said it was "delighted" with the judge's ruling.

Brown, a contender for the 1974 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, filed the suit July 15 —the same day the excavation was to have started. The Department of Parks and Recreation voluntarily agreed not to dig until the judge gave his permission.

The dig, for which the legislature had appropriated $110,000, would be the first step toward actual construction of the $1.3 million mansion in suburban Carmichael. The site is believed to contain the remains of a 3,000-year-old Maidu Indian village and burial ground.

In his ruling, Phillips agreed with arguments of the Reagan administration, defendants in the suit, that although an impact statement on building the mansion will be filed prior to construction, the archeological dig is intended to provide information for that impact report, and thus the dig itself does not require an impact report.

"No environmental impact report shall be required for the collection of the archeological information, research and resource evaluation activities incidental to the preparation of an environmental impact report for the proposed governor's mansion at the Carmichael site," the judge said.

"The court deems a request for completion of such an environmental impact report ... prior to the archeological work directed by the legislature premature ... "

Phillips said any environmental impact statement on the mansion construction project that does not evaluate the historical significance of the mansion site would be "seriously deficient."

Brown's attorney, during a hearing on the suit July 20, told Phillips the evacation would have a "significant impact" on the environment and "disturbing the site through a dig would adversely affect the (Maidu Indian) heritage."

Although Reagan insists he will not seek a third term and therefore never live in the proposed new mansion, he has assigned it a high priority in the final years of his administration. Construction is expected to begin late this year and be completed early in 1975.

The 11-acre mansion site bordering on the scenic American River about 10 miles from the state Capitol was deeded to the state by a group of Reagan supporters who failed in 1967 to raise enough funds to build a new mansion.

Controversy erupts over mansion suit, funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., says Controller Houston I. Flournoy was trying to "curry Ronald Reagan's favor" and rescue his "floundering campaign for governor" by suggesting that Brown misused public funds.

Flournoy, keeper of the state's checkbook, charged Tuesday that Brown had no legal authority to spend taxpayer funds in pressing a court suit to block construction of a new governor's mansion on an ancient Indian burial ground.

Brown's suit was tossed out of court later Tuesday by Superior Judge Lloyd Phillips.

The Flournoy-Brown exchange marked the first major confrontation between the two in the 1974 gubernatorial campaign. Both are unannounced candidates for their party's nomination. Flournoy is a Republican and Brown is a Democrat.

One obvious political spinoff was that it gave the liberal-leaning Flournoy an opportunity to score points among more conservative Republicans by taking a verbal poke at the acknowledged front-runner for the Democratic nomination.

Brown said Flournoy was "motivated by his zeal for personal publicity in his floundering campaign for governor.

"Mr. Flournoy, like the other Republican candidates, is desperately trying to curry Ronald Reagan's favor by joining the governor's fight to build an extravagant new governor's mansion, complete with a sauna and wine cellar in a suburb far from the state capitol."

He added that Flournoy "is floundering in the polls."

Flournoy said he could find no legal justification for Brown —either as secretary of state or as secretary of the California Heritage Preservation Commission—to spend public funds on the suit.

Brown had asked that a $110,000 archaeological dig and further planning of the $1.3 million mansion be delayed until an environmental impact study of the dig was completed. Indians contend a Maidu village and cemetery once existed on the 11-acre site which sits atop an isolated American River bluff.

Flournoy said two civil service employes of Brown were attorneys in the case and unless the secretary of state could prove the expenditures were justified he would refuse to pay the workers' salaries.

Brown answered that only one attorney had worked on the case and this was during a weekend on his own time.

"The only expenses incurred in bringing the law suit were for some xeroxing and minimal amount of secretarial time," Brown said.

Asked if he would be as interested in the case if Brown were not a Democratic gubernatorial contender, Flournoy smiled and answered: "I would always be interested in any unauthorized expenditure of public money because that's the controller's responsibility."

The controller noted he previously objected to spending $30,000 in state funds for Reagan's tax initiative task force and the governor's office withdrew its request for the money.

"It's time we stopped fooling around with the mansion and get on with it because it's been a political football ever since I came to Sacramento 12 years ago," Flournoy said.

Dynamite discovered at Industry plant

INDUSTRY — Nine sticks of dynamite were found lying atop a timing device at Inter-American Art Products here Monday afternoon.

The dynamite and timer were found by an employe, Margaret La Benskae, while she was gathering supplies in the basement of the firm at 165 Bielek Lane. The items were in a large cardboard box among the other supplies, Mrs. La Benskae told sheriff's deputies.

A spokesman for Inter-American Art Products said tha the box has been among other cardboard cartons for months and no one knows its origin. The dynamite and timer were in a small cardboard box inside a larger one.

Inter-American Art Products manufactures velvet-backed wall plaques.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Handle with kid gloves today the one with whom you're most closely associated. It is important to keep this relationship in balance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful today that you don't overdo physically. Pace your work. Take proper rest periods.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will expect too much from one you favor today. This will make it hard for her to meet your expectations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Domestic frustrations will beset you early in the day. Later you'll get a handle on things and bring them under control.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone will offend your good taste today. It will be difficult for you to forgive them as promptly as you should.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Matters relating to personal finances will take some adept juggling in order to meet your material responsibilities today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you will have to be on guard where your reputation is concerned. Adhere strictly to your highest ideals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You tend to be pessimistic and withrawn today. Come out of your shell or you won't have much to look forward to.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone whom you're willing to stand up for despite the opinions of others may not be all that great.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will try overly hard today to satisfy your self-interests. It's a shame because it will bug your friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There's a time to be persistent and there's a time to let go of something that won't work. It's time to let go.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful you don't let another lead you into a situation that you'll have a problem getting out of later.

August 2

You will be given some extra responsibilities this coming year. They'll later turn out to be blessings in disguise. The promise lies in meeting challenges.

Here's mirror distribution

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When declarer and dummy have the same number of cards in each suit it is called a mirror distribution.

Declarers who continually find themselves looking at one of those mirror distributions are apt to call it by some far less mild name because in general, mi rror distributions don't produce as many tricks as the declarer wants them to.

Opening lead—♥8

North tried to get to seven after South doubled the three-heart opening bid and then showed a spade suit. He located all the aces but when South failed to show a king, North settled for six.

A first glance at the North-South hands makes the contract look hopeless. On account of the mirror distribution it appears that South must lose one trick each in hearts and diamonds.

A little extra thought should show South a way to overcome this. He wins the heart lead and plays out two rounds of trumps. East follows to both. Then he runs off all three clubs. East follows to two of them.

It is reasonable to mark East with seven hearts for his preempt, which only leaves him with two diamonds. Therefore South cashes the ace and king of diamonds and proceeds to throw East in with a heart.

East has to lead a heart. South ruffs in one hand; discards a losing diamond from the other and, as a magician might say, "It was all done with mirrors."

Burping cows a source of smog?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Suggesting that environmentalists are going overboard in their attempt to purify their environment at the expense of technological advances, Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, today issued this warning to farmers and dairymen.

He told them to keep a close watch for federal Environmental Protection Agency inspectors carrying emission control devices.

"According to the 'EPA Log,'" Ashbrook said, "the agency's official publication, 'burping cows must rank as the number one source of air pollution in the United States ... the nation's cows burp 50 million tons of hydrocarbons into the air each year.'"

Butz urges Nixon to veto new farm bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has said he would recommend to President Nixon that he veto a farm bill unless Senate-House conferees scaled down provisions for grain, cotton and dairy supports.

Butz' statement came at a news briefing before the conferees met in a new effort to finish a compromise draft of the four-year farm, food stamp and Food For Peace bill. It dashed congressional hopes the administration would accept compromise support terms tentatively approved by the conferees.

Butz said he would recommend approval of the bill if conferees agreed to allow support target prices for grains and cotton to rise during only one of the four years covered by the measure and if they drop a section which would permanently increase the floor under dairy supports.

The bill includes fixed support target prices for grains and cotton in 1974. The conferees agreed to keep the targets fixed at the 1974 rate through the end of 1975, thus allowing escalation only in 1976-77.

Butz said he would accept the plan holding targets fixed in 1974-75, allowing them to rise in 1976, but then holding them unchanged again at the 1976 rate in the final year of the bill, 1977.

Pups determine early which one dominates

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Ho and Hum are gradually becoming more active and, in fact, lately are fighting quite a bit with each other. This, I suppose, has something to do with their determining which one is going to be boss. We can't tell yet though Hum is quite a bit chubbier than Ho. Does that constitute as big an advantage in pups as it would in kids?—J.C.

Dear J.C.: Undoubtedly these two are sorting out their dominant—submissive roles now to determine if one will be dominant or if they will continue as a combative pair or if they will simply become equals. Generally speaking, it is true that dominancy is usually achieved by the animal with the weight advantage.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Please follow this. Parsley, my Persian's, grandmother, Ginger was chased by a dog when she was carring Paprika, Parsley's mother. Ginger was terribly shaken up by the episode even though she didn't lose her kittens. It took her weeks to get over it. Paprika was quite a nervous cat and now Parsley is somewhat nervous herself. We wondered if Parsley's bad nerves could have anything to do with the fact her mother was nervous because her mother was nervous because of the dog? Do you follow me?—S.C.

Dear S.C.: I'm trying. What you are asking, I think, is if it is possible to have long-term effects over successive generations from an environmental episode, right? It is possible. Environmental influences may be "transmitted" over several successive generations. While many other factors, hereditary and environmental, play a part, it is perfectly possible Parsley is perturbed more often than she would be if her grandmother hadn't encountered that dog.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Hoping against hope that my goldfish would spawn in my outdoor pool, we started looking for eggs. We checked the roots of the water hyacinth and, sure enough, there the eggs were. There were several snails on the eggs, too. We know they weren't snail eggs, we have seen those before. Now what we are wondering is, are the snails cleaning these eggs, or eating them?—P.O.

Dear P.O.: Eating. You should either transfer the egg-carrying plants to a substitute pool until they hatch or, preferably, leave the eggs (and plants) where they are and search out and remove all of the snails. Unfortunately, the eggs could all have been consumed long before your snail snatching process is completed.

The doctor comments

Overworking heart any way is not good

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — How come overworking the heart by tension or chronic high blood pressure is bad, yet overworking the heart by exercise is good?

Dear Reader — Your question is not very well phrased, since "overworking" the heart by any means isn't good for it. This includes overworking the heart by exercise. A sensible exercise program that gradually improves the functional capacity of the heart is useful. The same applies to proper exercise programs that improve the overall level of physical fitness.

The type of work induced by the heart from physical activity is quite different from the type of work caused by high blood pressure. High blood pressure results from constriction of the innumerable small arteries throughout the body. As a result, the heart has to work harder to pump a small amount of blood. With physical exercise, the arteries actually dilate and the heart works, harder because it's pumping a lot more blood. This increases the size and capacity of the heart just as breathing exercises can improve the size and capacity of the lungs. In turn, this improves the pumping capacity of the heart, which is a healthy reaction. This is not achieved by simple, persistent high blood pressure.

Exercise has many important functions. It can improve the volume capacity of the heart, the circulation to the heart muscle, and it is a calorie burner. When done properly and consistently it helps to prevent obesity. There are other more subtle biochemical changes asociated with a good regular exercise program. None of these important benefits are achieved by high blood pressure or tension.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the difference between scarlet fever and scarlatina? Are these two terms used interchangably? My 5-year-old daughter has had scarlet fever twice, although I have read that a second attack is very rare.

Dear Reader — Scarlet fever is a strep throat with a rash. The toxic reaction from the strep infection causes the rash. Years ago the cause of scarlet fever was not properly understood and its association with strep throat wasn't appreciated. A strep throat is contagious whether or not one has an associated rash. Scarlatina is a strep infection with a less obvious rash.

Young children are often susceptible to strep infections. With streptococcal infections their immunity develops and they are less susceptible.

With the development of antobiotics to treat strep infections, the great concern that used to exist about scarlet fever as a contagious disease is a thing of the past.

Since scarlet fever is a streptococcal infection, it can have later complications, including the possibility of rheumatic fever or rheumatic heart disease. Antibiotic treatment is usually very effective and useful in preventing these problems. Strep throat, with or without a rash, should be treated with antibiotics. Not all sore throats, however, are strep throats. Some of them are viral infections which are not benefited by antibiotic therapy.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of The Progress-Bulletin P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on balanced diet, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Balanced Diet" booklet.

State cases, expenses for welfare drop

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California welfare caseload declined by 89,369 during the first six months of 1973 to 1.94 million, state health and welfare secretary Earl Brian announced today.

The cost of the state's welfare program also decreased by nearly $38 million during the fiscal year ending June 30, Brian reported.

The California caseload on Jan. 1 was 2,030,455, he said, compared with the June 30 figure of 1,941,096. It marked the first time the caseload had dipped below the 2 million mark since 1970.

Brian said the reduction in the welfare rolls this year displayed the success of the 1971 Welfare Reform Act and "the special efforts we are making to help welfare recipients become self-supporting."

"While we have been helped tremendously by the rising employment rate—which is growing at just over three per cent annually—our job placement statistics for welfare recipients show a 49 per cent increase," Brian said.

Caterpillar case on Lords' agenda

LONDON (UPI) — The House of Lords is to consider the case of the hawkmoth caterpillar found in a can of peas bought by Mrs. Winifred Voss at her local supermarket in Dorchester.

Smedley Ltd. was fined $62 last year and the local appeals court dismissed its appeal. On monday, the high court gave the company leave to appeal to the House of Lords that it had taken all reasonable care to avoid such incidents.

Please talk with the manager of your local Betsy Ross Ice Cream & Coffee Shoppe for details. The Party Plan was designed so you, too, can enjoy your own party.

The Claremont Coffee Shoppe was visited this week by fifteen orthopedically handicapped children from the Danbury School. They were under the supervision of MRS. GOODWIN and MRS. LIEBICH. The children, some of whom had never eaten in a public restaurant, had a ball with their flag-bedecked sundaes.

Our newest Betsy Ross in Glendora, on Grand just south of Alosta, has now been tried and tested. Come by and meet the congenial manager, JOHN BARSODI.

There's nothing fishy about our fish special on Tuesday at $1.69. Drop in and try it! Or join the gang for the 49c Hot Fudge Sundae on Wednesday.

EPA drafting control ideas

Trucks get first call in noise pollution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the government's first formal move against noise pollution, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) proposed regulations Tuesday to cut down noise from trucks and said it would soon propose similar controls to cut down noise around airports.

The truck regulation, which would affect most vehicles over 10,000 pounds in weight, would set levels for noise, require certain mufflers and outlaw certain types of noisy tires. The truck proposal, put forward under the Noise Control Act of 1972, will take final effect on October 1, 1974.

The Agency estimated the cost would be from $50 to $200 for each truck, with a total cost to the industry of somewhere between $10 million and $30 million.

David D. Dominick, an assistant EPA administrator, said the actions mark "the first time that the federal government has taken explicit, direct action against noise pollution." The agency also released a study of aircraft and airport noise which concluded that 16 million Americans are affected. The study contends the problem will continue into the mid-1980s unless the Federal Aviation Administration considers more aggressive

Dominick estimated that the proposed regulation for trucks would affect about 190,000 diesel engine vehicles. Dr. Alvin Meyers, director of the EPA's office of noise abatement said the impact of the truck regulations "will tend to pull the truck noise into the ongoing interstate highway noise" thereby eliminating the noises that are heard as trucks change gears or accelerate.

In addition to its other actions the EPA released a document which reports on criteria for noise as it affects the public health and welfare. Among other things the study claims that exposure to high levels of noise is potentially detrimental not only to health but also to the way people do their jobs.

The EPA said it would utilize criteria in that study to propose noise regulations for other areas of the environment.

World has robot room

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) —Robots still aren't a part of everyday life, but scientists who are looking ahead have developed a way to control the cybernetic beings with a blink of the eye.

The Stanford Research Insitute claims it's developed an eye-tracking system that can make robots perform tasks based on eye movements. No knobs to turn or buttons to press. Just stand a safe distance away, gaze at the point where you want the robot to go and it's on its way to do your bidding.

Woman Achievers

Receive awards at luncheon

Praised for sharing their time and talents in many hours and years of community volunteer work, four Pomona Valley women were honored at a luncheon Monday at Orlando's Restaurant hosted by the Progress-Bulletin.

More than 60 people attended the event recognizing the contributions of Mrs. Harold Edick of Pomona; Mrs. William Kelber of Ontario; and Mrs. Sanford Newton and Mrs. Richard Todd, both of Pomona, Progress-Bulletin Woman Achievers for 1973.

Joseph A. Gendron, editor of the Progress-Bulletin, served as chairman of the meeting and the woman achievers were introduced by the newspaper's women's editor, Mrs. Mary Remillard who outlined the women's accomplishments in various activities. The newspaper's general manager, Bob Bush, presented the award winners with engraved silver Revere bowls commemorating the event.

The luncheon has been held each year since 1966 in conjunction with the publication of the Pomona Valley Women's special section. This year's 13th annual special, published July 24, also honored the woman achievers.

During the past eight years 33 women have been recognized as woman achievers. Five previous winners of the award in attendance at Monday's luncheon were Mrs. Clifton Allen, Mrs. Gladys Donlavy, Mrs. Richard Hyman, Mrs. William Stern and Mrs. Marvin Abrams.

Also introduced during the afternoon were two of the four judges for the awards contest, Robert Liedler, manager of Buffums', and Leonard Ryan, manager of the Montclair Plaza Broadway store. Judges not able to attend were Bob Lewis, Pomona Chamber of Commerce vice president, and Keith Mulrooney, Claremont City Manager.

Among the activities of Mrs. Marie Edick, one of this year's award recipients, are the Pomona Valley Community Hospital Auxiliary, Foothill Guild of the Crippled Children's Society, Visting Nurse Association and Pilgrim Congregational Church.

A community volunteer for more than 25 years, Mrs. Rose Kelber's achievements are many. Included in her activites are Recording for the Blind and the Pomona Valley Transcribers Guild, both of which she founded, Stella Kelber Chapter of B'nai B'rith Women, Ontario-Montclair School District board of trustees and the San Bernardino County School Boards Association.

PTA, Girl Scouts and United Way are the three organizations which have received the major benefit from the volunteer work of Mrs. Pat Newton. She has been involved in the community for 17 years.

Achieving on a singular and individual basis, Mrs. Jean Todd has devoted her time to Pomona Teen Post development and the Attic Reading Center in her home which aids pupils of all ages in communication skills. Mrs. Todd was not able to attend the luncheon but was represented by a former award-winner, Mrs. Hyman, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Grace Todd.

Ask Dr. Brothers

About infidelity

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

Dear Dr. Brothers: I've just discovered that my husband is cheating on me and he knows that I know, even though we haven't discussed it. We've been married seven years and I thought our marriage was very happy, at least, as happy as a marriage is supposed to be, with four active children. Because my own mother died when I was very young, I've tried to give my children all the mothering that I never got and I spend a great deal of time with them. I love each one of them in a special way and I wouldn't want to do anything that would hurt them. On the other hand I can't see living with a man who's making a fool of me by going out with other women behind my back.

I've been very close to his mother and I discussed this matter with her expecting her to deny it and defend her son. Instead, she informed me that she was aware of what he was doing and that she put up with this kind of behavior from his father all her life. She seems to think this is normal behavior and a woman just has to accept it. I'm very confused about what my action should be at this time. —B.P

Dear G.P.: It seems to me that the first thing you should do is discuss this with your husband to try to determine what this means to him and what his attitudes are, generally, about infidelity.

Sex patterns are often established early in childhood, and even though you may be hurt or angry, it is best to approach your husband calmly. Yelling, becoming hysterical, or blaming everyone, including yourself, will not settle anything, and it may prevent you from learning things that might help toward a solution.

In certain cultures, men are raised with the feeling that they are not really being masculine unless they have numerous extramarital relations. This is looked upon as a kind of divine right of being born male, and a man who has doubts or fears about his own potency may try to make conquests to prove to himself that he is virile.

Dr. Frank Caprio, psychiatrist and marital counselor, has observed that certain men have a habit of multiple relationships; either instilled by early parental influence and environment, or resulting from fears and feelings of inadequacy and insecurity.

Whatever the cause, if your husband has had many extramarital relations, then this will not be easy to change. If his father had a pattern of the same behavior then he may feel this is the way all men are expected to behave. All children learn from observing their parents and, naturally, the male child identifies with his father and usually wants to be like him.

It is important to find out if your husband "cheats" habitually or if this is a one-time thing. It is also important to discover how seriously he is involved in this particular relationship—if it is a relationship.

Sometimes a wife is responsible for her husband's wandering. Possibly you are so interested in your children's welfare that you've neglected yourself and your husband. It is possible that he feels pushed out and emotionally replaced by his own children.

It often helps the children and the husband and wife, if the wife makes an effort to separate some part of herself from her family. If your children are young it might even be advisable to take one or two nights off each week, get someone reliable to come in to care for your children, so that you and your husband may get to know each other again.

Whatever you do, do not act in haste or out of false pride.

Landscape architects

Girls entering field

Like several other professions, the field of landscape architecture is opening its doors to an increasing number of women.

At its recent national convention in Michigan, the American Society of Landscape Architects passed a resolution encouraging women in the field, according to a delegate, Mrs. Janet Gillman of Honolulu, Hawaii.

The niece of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Worness of Pomona, Mrs. Gillman is visiting in the Southland before returning home. She says that while only four per cent of the landscape architects are women, 10 per cent of those who qualify as Fellows of the American Society of Landscape Architects are women.

Mrs. Gillman is employed as a landscape architect by C. Brewer and Company in Hawaii. She is working with land planning for the large Hawaiian sugar company whose holding includes 63 miles of land. Much of the area is not suitable for the growth of sugar, she reports, so land planning includes the development of diversified agriculture, pasture land and a large comprehensive resort area.

Her work stresses broad-scale land planning, including the analysis of soil and climate conditions, topographic studies and the preservation of existing flora.

A 1964 graduate of the University of Illinois with a degree in architecture, Mrs. Gillman spent a year in London working for a noted woman landscape architect.

This stimulated her interest in the field so she returned to the United States and obtained her master's degree in landscape architecture at Harvard University.

After completing college, two years ago and finds the work stimulating and a challange. Hawaii, she reports, was the first state to stress statewide landscape planning.

As a career for women the field offers excellent opportunities. It is not overly crowded and about one half of the jobs are with the government and pay well, Mrs. Gillman reports.

Both in the universities and in the profession, she has experienced no discrimination because of being a woman, she says.

JANET GILLMAN

Janet married Jack Gillman, a teacher, and the couple spent the next three years on Panape Island in Micronesia as members of the Peace Corps.

"I was the first architect to work on community projects there, so the natives just assumed that architects were women," says Mrs. Gillman in reporting on her acceptance as a supervisor of various island improvements.

She began her present job

Voortman-Harmsen vows are exchanged

Miss Shirley Harmsen and Art Voorman were united in marriage in an evening ceremony read by the Rev. Louis Dykstra in the First Christian Reformed Church of Chino.

The daughter of the John Harmsens of Chino and the son of the Anthony Voortmans of Artesia exchanged vows in a double-ring service.

A floor-length gown of chiffon and chantilly lace was worn by the bride. It was accented with seed pearls and a detachable train. Her veil was finger-tip length. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Leanne Harmsen was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Voortman and Mrs. Anna Voortman.

Darrell Voortman was best man. Ushers Don Voortman, Ron Harmsen, Tom Harmsen and Fred Wassenaar.

A reception at the church honored the newlyweds.

Grace Baptist Church setting for nuptials

Miss Linda Joy Corbett and Steven Allen Blankenship were married at the Grace Baptist Church in Glendora with the Rev. Ron Cline as officiant.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Corbett of Glendora was given in marriage by her father. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blankenship of Claremont.

The bride selected a Grecian gown of white georgette featuring a shirred bodice and raised waist encircled with pearls. Her elbow-length bouffant veil was held by a bandeau of fresh spring flowers.

The former Miss Corbett carried a semi-cascade bouquet of multicolored spring flowers, including roses and stephanotis.

Miss Merrie Lynn Corbett, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Peggy Dillingham and Miss Nancy Youngquist were bridesmaids.

The groom's brother, Gary Lee Blankenship, was best man. Ushers were Scott Corbett, Mike Norman, Gene Benson and Mike Robb.

Approximately 200 guests attended the reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

After a honeymoon at Solvang, Mr. and Mrs. Blankenship will reside at Azusa Pacific College where both are seniors. Mr. Blankenship is minister of youth at the Hacienda Heights Nazarene Church.

Let's Ask The Cook

DEAR NAN:

So many times guests say' "My this is good! I'd like to have the recipe." I tell them, "Not mine it's Nan's." Here is a little suggestion you may not know. Many recipes call for thin-sliced water chestnuts, so I put one in the egg slicer, press down, get the nicest, most even slices ever. It's fast, too.

Velma E. Schnele,
Raytown, Mo.

Now why didn't I think of that? I make a dish that calls for frozen green beans, sliced water chestnuts and black olives, diced pimiento and cream of mushroom soup all mixed together, placed in a greased casserole, topped with grated cheese or buttered crumbs, then popped into the oven until cheese melts or crumbs bake golden.

PRISCILLA DAVIS

Soprano, Army band at Starlite

MONTCLAIR — Soprano Priscilla Davis of Pomona will be intermission soloist at a concert by the 72nd U.S. Army Band at the Starlite Patio Theater, Montclair civic center, at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

This is one of the Starlite summer series offered free by the Montclair recreation department.

Miss Davis, accompanied by Julie Rodgers, will sing "Plaisir d'amour" by Martini, Schubert's "Serenade" and "It's a Grand Night for Singing."

Jerry Reed, Raiders to play at Knott's

BUENA PARK — The Raiders, featuring Paul Revere and Mark Lindsay, and country music star Jerry Reed will perform this month at the John Wayne Theater of Knott's Berry Farm.

Country music's Instrumentalist of the Year for 1970, Grammy Award-winner Reed will be on stage Aug. 12-17.

The Raiders take over for a five-night stand Aug. 18-22.

Led by Paul Revere and Mark Lindsay, the Raiders have been on top in rock music for over ten years. Fifteen consecutive hit singles and five gold albums attest to the group's popularity.

Featured on the ABC series "Where The Action Is" in 1956-66, The Raiders were voted by many magazines to be the top group in the country at that time.

The Raiders have a long list of hits including "Indian Reservation," "Steppin' Out," "Let Me," "Hungry and "Good Thing."

Reed, songwriter, guitarist, producer and performer has long been popular with country music buffs. His latest hits have begun to cross the lines from the country charts to the pop charts.

His latest hit single, "Lord, Mr. Ford," number two on Billboard's Hot Country Singles List, is now played on Top 40 and rock music stations.

His hit list includes "Amos Moses," "When You're Hot You're Hot" and "Georgia Sunshine."

A regular on CBS's Glen Campbell Show, Reed is known around Nashville as the "Guitar Man" after a song he wrote that was made popular by Elvis Presley.

Showtimes are 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays and 8 and 10:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

Afternoon entertainment in the Theater includes the Allen Family each Monday and the Hear and Now Tuesdays through Sundays. Afternoon showtimes are 1 and 3 p.m.

Rod Culpepper and the Boothill Express perform nightly, Saturday through Thursday, in the Wagon Camp at 7, 9 and 11.

Store telephone finally debugged

TORRANCE, Calif. (UPI) — You can't get Sen. Sam Ervin, H.R. Haldeman or John Dean by calling the Akron store any more.

For the past several weeks, callers who were put on "hold" by the Akron's operator found themselves listening to the Senate Watergate hearings. The store's telephone line was somehow picking up the transmission from a radio station.

The telephone company had the line debugged Monday.

Hartford schedules new musical

HOLLYWOOD —"$600 and a Mule," described as "an exciting new musical experience," will have its world premiere at the Huntington Hartford Theater Aug. 21, with low cost previews Aug. 17-19.

Produced by Michael Moriarty with Abbott Productions, Inc., with the Greek Theater Association, the new musical stars Double Exposure, a name that encompasses the cast of actors, dancers and singers. Like its successful predecessor "Dont Bother Me, I Cant Cope," which had a record breaking 35-week run at the Hartford, it features an all-black cast, several of whom were members of "Cope."

Book and lyrics are by Lester Wilson who also directed and choreographed the show. Music is by Wilson and Arthur Smalls, Jr. Sets are by Terry Gates, costumes by Andrea Lilly.

The show will mark Moriarty's local debut as a producer. Normally a concert promoter, he is at 25, one of the older people in the youthful company.

Slow process

It takes about seven years before a rubber tree plant produces the raw material used in making natural rubber. The tree's breeding cycle, from cross-pollination to production, takes 25 years.

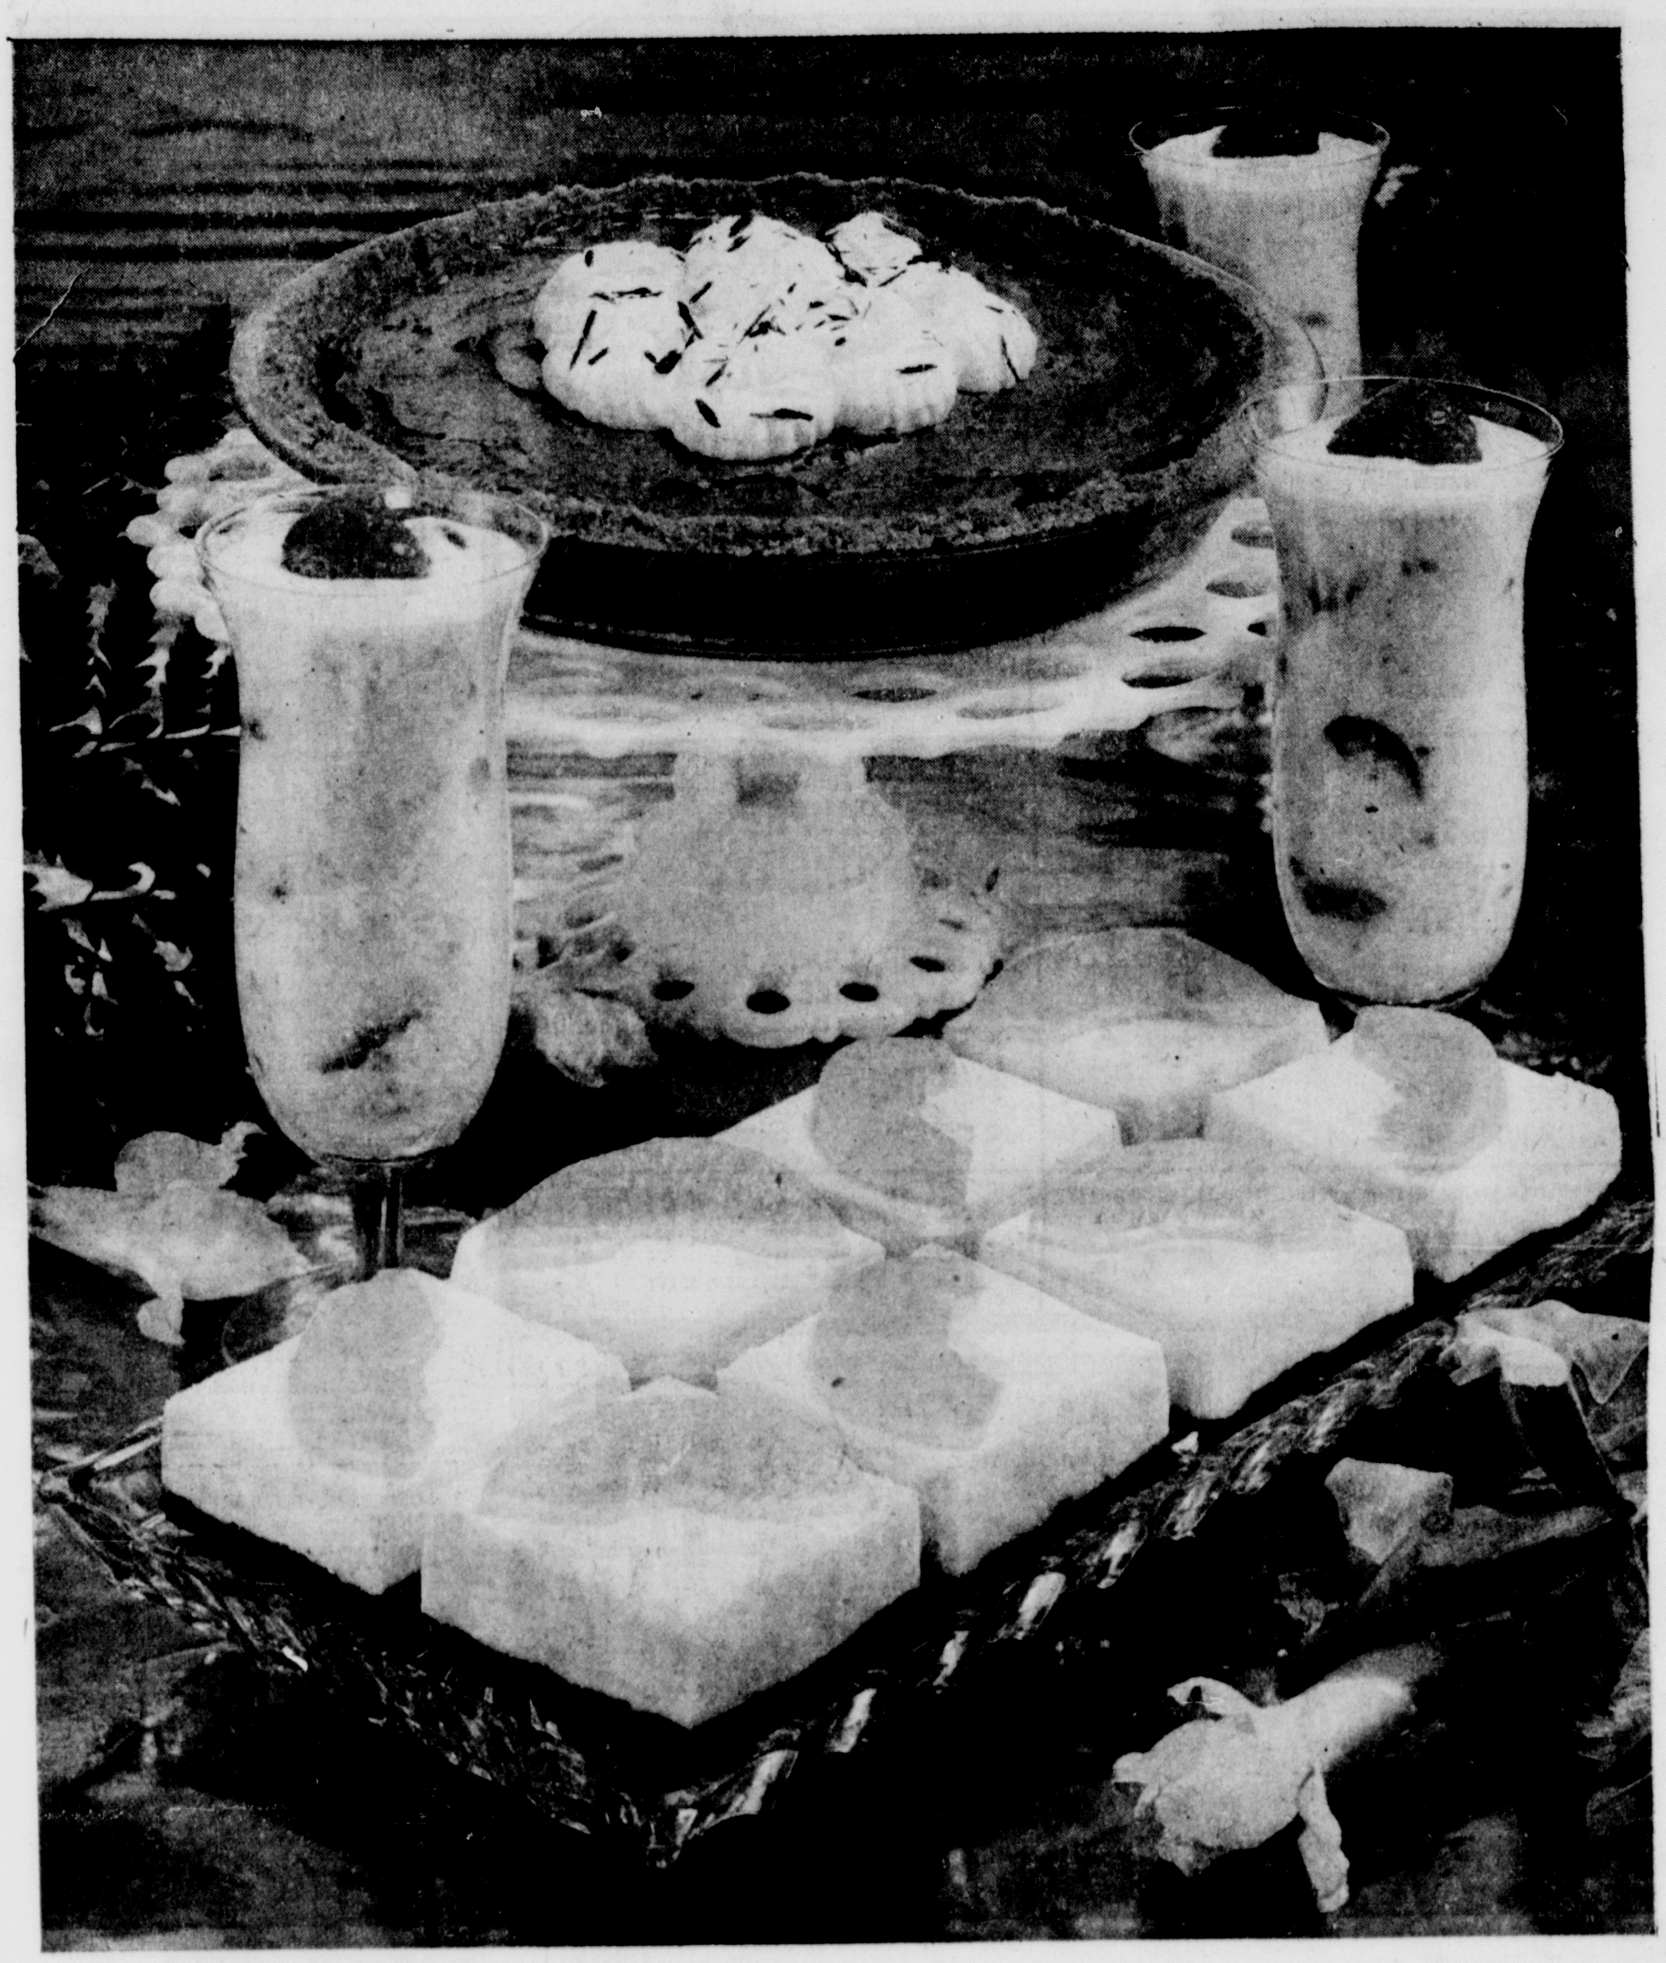
Cool Summer Desserts

Elegance with ease...



Whatever the season, desserts add the crowning touch to any meal. Now that summer is here put away your recipes for hearty fruit pies and cakes and try some of these light summery favorites. Yes, warm-weather desserts have an entirely different look, with rich fluffy fillings and cool fruity flavors.

The secret of these fancy-looking desserts lies in Royal Instant Pudding and Gelatin mixes which make their preparation too simple to believe! No cooking, no baking and look at the results—elegant desserts you'll be proud to serve to your most honored guests. In addition, all these tempting sweets are stored in the refrigerator, so they're ready to serve anytime—cool and satisfying.

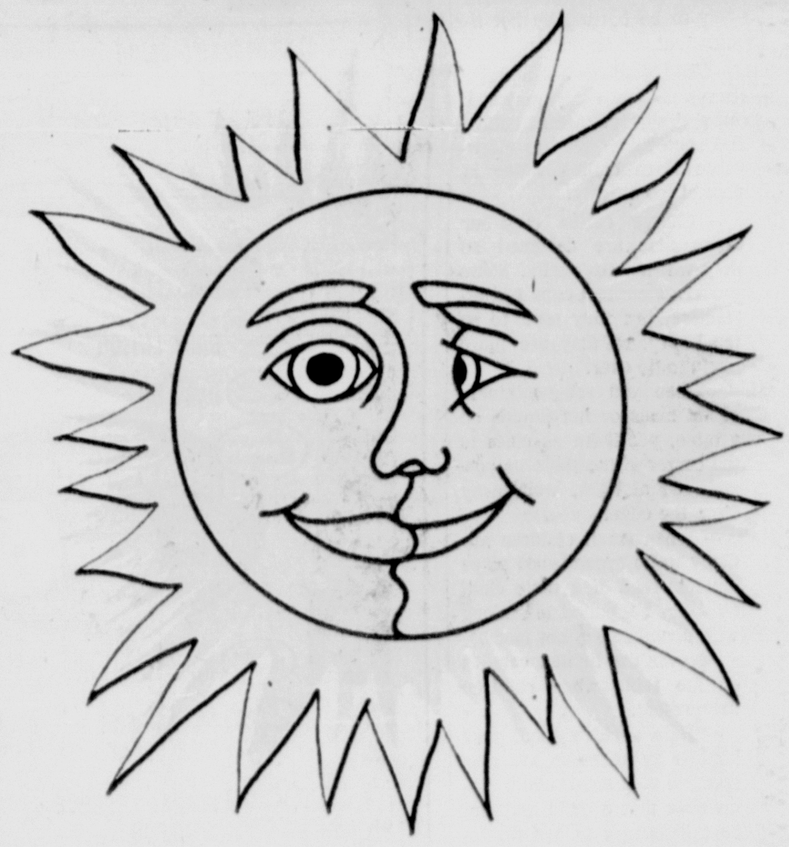
Royal's exclusive flavors (Mocha Nut, Pistachio and Peach) makes each of these desserts deliciously unique.

Mocha Nut Bavarian Pie is made by simply folding sweetened whipped cream into the pudding and turning it into a graham cracker (or other cookie crumb) crust. Topped with more whipped cream and chocolate it is quite a sight, and the taste is divine!

Peach gelatin and vanilla ice cream make a smooth delicate filling for Royal Peach Dessert Squares. The chocolate crumb crust is a tasty contrast for this light flavorful dessert.

Everyone loves parfaits, and these pale green pistachio treats are no exception! Pistachio Pudding blends with fresh strawberries for a great flavor duo.

Spark your summer meals with these elegant, but easy summer desserts. And, plan to keep plenty of pudding and gelatin mixes on hand for more quick and creative desserts throughout the season.



Mocha Nut Bavarian Pie

- 1½ cups heavy cream
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup cold milk
- 1 package Royal Instant Mocha Nut Pudding
- 1 (9-inch) crumb crust
- Shaved chocolate

Whip heavy cream with sugar until stiff.

Pour cold milk into small deep mixing bowl. Add Royal Instant Mocha Nut Pudding and using egg beater or mixer, slowly beat until thickened. Fold in ⅔ whipped cream. Turn into crumb crust. Top with remaining whipped cream. Chill at least 1 hour before serving.

Garnish with shaved chocolate. Makes one 9-inch pie.

Royal Peach Dessert Squares

- 1½ cups chocolate wafer crumbs
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/3 cup melted Blue Bonnet Margarine
- 1 package (3-ounce) Royal Peach Gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream
- Peach slices

Combine wafer crumbs and sugar. Add melted Blue Bonnet Margarine; mix well. Press onto bottom of an 8-inch square pan. Chill for 15 minutes.

Dissolve Royal Peach Gelatin in boiling water. Stir in vanilla ice cream. Stir until completely melted. Pour into prepared pan. Chill until firm.

To serve, cut into 9 squares and garnish with peach slices. Makes 9 servings.

Pistachio Parfaits

- 1 cup sliced fresh strawberries
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup cold milk
- 1 package Royal Instant Pistachio Pudding
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened
- 7 small whole strawberries

Combine strawberries and sugar. Let stand 5 minutes.

Pour milk into small deep mixing bowl. Add Royal Instant Pistachio Pudding. Beat at low speed of electric mixer until well blended, about 1 minute. Add ice cream and beat at low speed until blended, about 1 minute. Stir in strawberries. Spoon into parfait glasses. Chill until set. Garnish each with a strawberry. Makes 7 servings.

Keep kitchen safe for the children

NEW YORK (UPI) — The sights and sounds and smells of food preparation make the kitchen the most fascinating room in the entire house for young children.

But the kitchen also can be the most dangerous room for toddlers —especially if there are electric cords that can be put into the mouth, open outlets wihin reach, or appliances that can be pulled down from cabinet, counter or table tops.

A child who can reach the top of a range also may be able to spill a pan of boiling water or scalding-hot grease over his body.

Below counter-top level, hazards often include toxic household chemicals and hot water pipes under the sink, cabinet drawers full of knives and an oven hot enough to broil meats.

The busy homemakers can't keep their eyes on a curious child every second, but here are some safety suggestions from the Coffee Information Institute:

—Cover or conceal any electric outlets below countertop level. Don't allow electric cords to hang below the counter or table top.

—Do not store sharp instruments, such as knives or dangerous chemicals where small children can reach them.

—Never allow the handles of pots or pans to extend over the edge of a kitchen range; keep them turned toward the rear or the side of the stove.

—When you buy a kitchen range, make sure the heating units and controls are beyond the reach of small children.

—Keep children away from kitchen areas that may be especially hazardous during meal preparation; a child playing on the floor beside a kitchen range is much more likely to be burned by hot liquids that are spilled.

—When pouring hot liquids, always pour away from yourself and slowly. Instant coffee and soup mixes tend to effervesce when boiling water is poured too quickly.

— Choose coffee cups or mugs that are designed so they will not tip easily. Some modern stemmed cups are attractive, but they tend to be top heavy, so they are more likely to tip over.

—When you set containers of hot foods or hot liquids on a table, put them as close to the center of the table as possible—or at least, well away from the edge.

— When small children are likely to be around, use place mats instead of a table cloth that can be pulled off, along with containers of hot foods.

—Never use lighted candles on the table when children are present.

— Help accident-proof your kitchen by adopting the perspective of a small child. Remember that a child may not be tall enough to see that a pot on the stove or a bowl on the table contains hot food.

If a child is allowed to play with pots and pans, he may think of the food containers on the kitchen range as his toys. If he sips fluids occasionally from an adult's cup, he may assume that the cup on the table is for his use.

—Resist the temptation to hold a child in your arms while you drink any hot beverage. A frisky child can knock the cup out of your hand in a fraction of a second. Put the youngster in his playpen, high-chair, or some other safe place during your coffee break.

—Finally, be sure you know what to do if an accident occurs in the kitchen despite all precautions. For example, in case of burns apply ice or cold water to the burn area. Keep your doctor's telephone number posted nearby so you can contact him quickly about any serious accident.

—Most accidents are predictable and preventable. Make yourself a committee of one to keep the kitchen a happy room rather than a hazardous room.

Choosing chicken

When buying chicken for frying, roasting, braising, or stewing, allow about half a pound ready-to-cook weight for each serving. For broiling, allow ¼ to ½ bird per serving.

Short ribs rate high economically

With meat going astronomicall, finding a few cuts still relatively inexpensive is a great help. Among them, short ribs rate four stars.

While short ribs are full of flavor and meaty, this is not a tender cut. You must cook them well, to tenderize.

Two new recipes using short ribs come your way now. For the first, you bake the ribs in the oven, then finish them on the outdoor grill. They get juicy savor from basting with a piquant sauce, combining prepared yellow mustard, tomato juice and molasses.

The second dish, Chili Grilled Short Ribs, is equally delicious and even easier. The ribs are wrapped in foil along with their sauce and cooked that way over the grill. So you don't even need to tenderize the short ribs by precooking. An envelope of chili-o seasoning mix makes this sauce lively.

Serve the short ribs with cole slaw and buttered French bread. For the beverage, give the grownups iced tea and the small-fry lemonade, with strawberry ice cream as dessert for all.

GRILLED SHORT RIBS

3 to 4 pounds beef short ribs
¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
¼ cup tomato juice
2 tablespoons molasses

Arrange short ribs in shallow baking pan; cover with foil. Bake at 400 degrees for 1 hour. Stir together mustard, tomato juice and molasses; brush over baked short ribs. Grill over hot coals for 20 to 30 minutes until tender, turning frequently and brushing with mustard mixture. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CHILI GRILLED SHORT RIBS

1 envelope (1¾ oz.) chili-o mix
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup oil
1 green pepper, chopped
3 to 4 pounds beef short ribs
1 tomato, sliced

Stir together contents of chili-o mix envelope, vinegar, oil, and chopped pepper. Place ribs on large piece of heavy duty aluminum foil; spoon chili-o mixture over ribs and top with sliced tomato. Wrap securely, leaving room in foil for steam to form. Grill over hot coals, turning frequently until tender, 1 to 2 hours. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Apple-Carrot Bake full of vitamins

Apples are another fresh fruit coming into season. This is a versatile fruit which even the most finicky of eaters enjoy. An Apple-Carrot Bake also includes prunes and the conbination is rife with tasty vitamins and minerals everyone needs in a balanced diet.

APPLE - CARROT BAKE

1 pound carrots
½ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup prunes, plumped
4 Washington apples, pared cored and cut in quarters
1-3rd cup corn syrup
¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
2 tablespoon butter

Pare and cut carrots into 1-inch chunks. Place in saucepan with water and salt. Bring to boil; cook until just tender, about 20 minutes. Drain, reserving liquid. Combine with corn syrup, orange juice and orange peel. Arrange carrots, apple quarters and prunes in baking dish. Pour over orange sauce. Dot with butter. Bake at 350 degrees 45 minutes or until apples are tender. Baste fruit occasionally. Makes 6 servings. Serve with poultry or pork.

Garnish your green salads

Julienne strips of lunch meat turn an ordinary tossed green salad into main dish fare. Easy, economical and delicious!

Heart hints

Fish is an excellent nutritional resource

Any cook who has had the experience of looking a ten-pound mackerel in the eye and wondering what to do with it will appreciate the following suggestions from the Los Angeles County Heart Association on fish cookery.

Although this may be an unfamiliar area of food preparation, it is well worth the extra effort. Fish is an excellent nutritional resource, being high in protein, moderate in calories and usually low in fat, most of which is unsaturated.

Most varieties of fish are very low in fat with the exception of salmon, mackerel, butterfish and trout, which are somewhat higher, though not a matter of concern for anyone who is not on a strictly reduced fat or calorie intake.

For those who enjoy cooking out of doors at this season here is a tasty collection of recipes for fish grilled over charcoal.

BARBECUED CALIFORNIA SEA BASS

2 pounds sea bass or other lean fish steaks, fresh or frozen
½ cup margarine, melted, or oil
1-3rd cup lemon juice
1-3rd cup cognac
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1 large clove garlic, crushed
½ cup seasame seeds

Thaw frozen steaks. Place steaks in a single layer in a shallow baking pan. Combine remaining ingredients except sesame seeds. Pour sauce over fish and let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting. Place fish in well-greased, hinged-wire grill. Baste with sauce; sprinkle generously with sesame seeds. Cook on a barbecue grill about 4 inches above moderately hot coals for eight minutes. Turn steaks. Baste and sprinkle with sesame seeds. Continue cooking for 7 to 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve any remaining sauce with fish. Serves 6.

TANGY HALIBUT STEAKS

2 pounds halibut steaks or other fish steaks, fresh or frozen
½ cup catsup
¼ cup melted margarine or oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons liquid smoke
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon powdered mustard
½ teaspoon grated onion
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
3 drops liquid hot pepper sauce

Thaw frozen steaks. Cut into serving-size portions and place in a single layer in a shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients. Pour sauce over fish and let stand for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting. Place fish in well-greased, hinged wire grills. Cook about 4 inches from moderately hot coals for 8 minutes. Baste with sauce. Turn and cook for 7 to 10 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serves 6.

GOURMET SALMON STEAKS

2 pounds salmon steaks or other fish steaks, fresh or frozen
1 cup dry vermouth
¾ cup melted margarine, or oil
1-3rd cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons chopped chives
2 teaspoons salt
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
¼ teaspoon marjoram
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme
⅛ teaspoon sage
⅛ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce

Thaw frozen steaks. Cut into serving-size portions and place in a single layer in a shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients. Pour sauce over fish and let stand for 4 hours, turning occasionally. Remove fish, reserving sauce for basting. Place fish in well-greased, hinged wire grills. Cook about 4 inches from moderately hot coals for 8 minutes. Baste with sauce. Turn and cook for 7 to 10 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serves 6.

YELLOW PERCH KABOBS

2 pounds yellow perch fillets or other fish fillets, fresh or frozen
1-3rd cup French dressing
3 large, firm tomatoes
1-3rd cup melted margarine, or oil
1 can (1 pound) whole potatoes, drained
1½ teaspoons salt
Dash pepper

Thaw frozen fillets. Skin fillets and cut into strips approximately 1 inch wide by 4 inches long. Place fish in a shallow baking dish. Pour dressing over fish and let stand for 30 minutes. Wash tomatoes. Remove stem ends and cut into sixths. Remove fish, reserving dressing for basting. Roll fillets and place on skewers alternately with tomatoes and potatoes until skewers are filled.

Place kabobs in well-greased, hinged-wire grills. Add salt, pepper, and remaining dressing to margarine; mix thoroughly. Baste kabobs with seasoned margarine. Cook about 4 inches from moderately hot coals for 4 to 6 minutes. Baste with sauce. Turn and cook for 4 to 6 minutes longer or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serves 6.

Although mackerel is not the most popular variety of fish an avid sportsman may bring one home. Here is a recipe for stuffed fish that can be used for mackerel or any fish of unknown origin.

BAKED STUFFED FISH

1 dressed fish (3 pounds), fresh or frozen
2 tablespoons melted margarine, or oil
Pepper
Salt
Bread stuffing

Thaw frozen fish. Clean, wash, and dry fish. Sprinkle inside with salt and pepper. Place fish on a well-greased bake and serve platter, 18 by 13 inches. Stuff fish loosely. Brush fish with margarine. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 45 to 60 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 6 servings.

BREAD STUFFING

½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup margarine, melted
1 quart dry bread cubes
1 egg, beaten
½ teaspoon sage
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon thyme
Dash pepper

Cook celery and onion in margarine until tender. Combine all ingredients and mix well. Makes 3 cups stuffing.

Recipe for the sandwich lover

Add this to your sandwich repertoire. Combine 2-3rds cup mashed liver sausage, ½ cup chopped stuffed olives and 1-3rd cup salad dressing. Spread this mixture on 6 slices of toast. Top each with a thin slice of American cheese, a slice of tomato and a strip of bacon. Broil until the bacon is crisp and the cheese is melted.

Bread is indeed the staff of life

Many Americans are eating less bread and rolls. Yet, nutritionists warn that bread is an essential part of any good diet. At the Symposium on Bread and Nutrition sponsored by the American Baking Assn., the subject was discussed with a somewhat scientific approach.

"A tomato sandwich with only a very small amount of butter is ideal," says Dr. Olaf Michelson, professor of Human Nutrition and Foods at Michigan State University. "Bread," he says, "is not so fattening as it often has been maligned to be."

"The explanation lies in what people put on top of the slice of bread which itself contains only 60 calories. An ordinary pat of butter adds 100 calories. Now, if you place a slice of cheese on the buttered slice, the calorie count goes up by 115. Your cheese sandwich now packs a hefty 275 calories. Remember only 60 of these calories come from bread. However, many people still think most of the calories come from the bread" Dr. Michelson observes.

To remain in good health and to carry on normal activities you need a number of nutrients — including a source of energy amino acids, vitamins, and minerals. Bread provides a significant amount of each. The starch in bread becomes an ideal source of energy since the starch is slowly broken down into glucose.

"Another nutritionally important way that bread contributes to our health involves roughage," the Michigan nutritionist who also participated in the 1969 White House Conference of Food, Nutrition and Health says. At Michigan State he did an evaluation of bread as a source of protein for normal college men. "It now appears that roughage of bread in our diet may reduce the incidence of colonic cancer, the second leading cause of cancer mortality in the United States."

Another defender of bread as a vital food at the symposium was Dr. Philip L. White, secretary of the Council on Foods and Nutrition of the American Medical Assn., who said, "Not all of the misunderstandings about bread have a nutritional overtone.

What has happened to the image of bread is occurring also with other food staples. Bread is one food that always has enjoyed a special significance. Historical references to bread as the staff of life and the implications of breaking bread with family and friends illustrate this special status. However as life styles change food and bread have been assuming different and, I feel, less significant roles in social interaction.

"The decay in the role of food as an expression of love and warm interpersonal relations may be behind some of the attacks leveled against bread. When society changes we tug defensively at the threads of change without ever realizing that the whole fabric is different. So it may be with food faddism in general and with bread in particular," he says.

A variety of ethnic cookbooks available

NEW YORK (UPI) — Soup for breakfast and chicken with lentils and pineapple are among the interesting and often economical ideas in recently published cookbooks about foreign and ethnic cookery.

The soup is suggested by Elizabeth Alston in "The Best of Natural Cooking Around the World" (McKay). It is miso, a spicy bean concoction that's a breakfast staple in Japan. Miss Alston, a former Cordon Bleu Cooking School instructor, has many other inventive and frequently inexpensive suggestions for good, healthful eating without faddism. For instance:

Cheese pancakes for breakfast, cabbage salad with light, low-calorie yogurt dressing, turkey with mild curry sauce and tuna mousse.

Miss Alston's book is good even for beginners, because her shopping, storage and cooking directions are particularly clear.

Some of the world's most unusual ethnic dishes evolved in the Caribbean, where fish, seafood, pork and chicken are widely used because the tropical islands have neither the climate nor the terrain for cattle ranching. In "The Complete Book of Caribbean Cooking" (Evans), Elisabeth Lambert Ortiz shows how the Indians, Africans, Europeans and Asians have blended their diverse cuisines harmoniously in the nearly five centuries since Columbus first made landfall in the islands.

Included are fish, seafood and meat stews, pot roasts, chicken cooked with various fruits and rum, rice and bean combinations, fruit breads, desserts and many soups that make a one-dish meal.

"Geoffrey Holder's Caribbean Cookbook" (Viking) is as captivating as is its multi-talented author but more admirable for his writing and illustrations than as a practical kitchen guide. Many of his 77 recipes, especially for salt cod, chicken or fresh fish, are economical, but there is no glossary and no source list for unfamiliar and not readily obtainable ingredients. Holder is best known here as a singer, dancer, and actor.

In "An Invitation to Indian Cooking" by Madhur Jaffrey (Knopf), recipes appear more complicated than they actually are because the ingredient lists are long. The author uses individual spices instead of commercial curry powder.

An initial investment in seasonings is required but the basic ingredients of many dishes are lower-priced items such as ground beef, lamb shoulders and shanks, stewing beef and chicken. Almost all the spices and herbs are sold in supermarkets.

Admirers of Pennsylvania Dutch cooking will find familiar fare in "Food That Really Schmecks" by Edna Staebler (McGraw-Hill Ryerson). The author, a Canadian, grew up in a Mennonite community where plain cooking is the rule: simple chicken and meat dishes with potatoes and fresh vegetables and delectable sweets and sours — preserves and pickles.

For admirers of Chinese cuisine, there are three new publications, each quite different from the others.

"Eighty Precious Chinese Recipes" by May Wong Trent (Macmillan) is almost as good as a live cooking demonstration for teaching techniques. Line drawings accompany each recipe and most are simple to prepare, although some special ingredients will have to be ordered by anyone not living near a Chinese community. The book contains 10 chicken recipes and several with ground beef.

Many recipes in "The Step-by-Step Chinese Cookbook" by Georges Spunt (Crowell) cover two to three pages of fine print. Others are followed by several pages of variations that are hard to understand. The most useful feature of this big book is a 6-page buying guide that tells how many servings or cup measurements are obtained from a pound of various ingredients.

"Peking Cooking" by Kenneth H. C. Lo (Pantheon) is fun to read but I wouldn't try to cook from it. Terminology and measurements are retained from the original British publication and there's no list of mail order sources for special ingredients. The complexity of true Chinese cooking can best be realized from Lo's list of 15 different cooking methods — including scorched-frying. In most other parts of the world, scorched food is an embarrassing mistake!

Cool and easy summer snacks

A warm summer night is an invitation to party on the patio. Scoop out a watermelon for your punchbowl, then set out a cold cut tray for easy pickup treats. Serve frank nips, too. Cut ½ pound skinless franks into 10 slices each. Marinate them in french dressing with a drop of hot pepper sauce added. Serve the nips on picks.

This after-tennis menu will net raves for the cook

Love is a many-splendored thing—unless, of course, you happen to be playing tennis. For, if you are participating in this sport, which promises to become the new American pastime, "love" is a term which means that you have zero points.

The prospect of having zero points, however, does not deter millions of American men, women and children from donning their whites—or a reasonable facsimile—and taking to the courts, racquet in hand. In fact, tennis courts now dot the landscape with nearly the same frequency as gasoline stations and hamburger stands.

Most net enthusiasts agree on several things. Tennis is tremendous exercise, provides a great sense of exhilaration and builds a huge appetite.

This summer, plan a tennis outing—complete with picnic lunch to be served after the last set.

First thing off the courts, before the feast begins, try cooling pre-dinner wine drinks—aptly named Vino Volleys. This delicious blend of lime, blackberry wine and lemon-flavored soda is sure to score points with players and spectators alike.

An easy-to-tote main dish is Serve 'Em Up Meat Pastries, which are delicious heated up over a charcoal grill on the spot or pre-warmed at home and kept in an insulated carrier. The crisp pastry crust envelopes a wine-spiced meat mixture.

The perfect side dish to complement this is 30-Love Salad—crisp vegetables marinated in a light wine dressing and served in lettuce cups. Carry the salad to the picnic site in a plastic bag, dressing and all. Just before eating, drain off excess dressing and serve right from the bag.

Fresh fruit and dessert cheeses, such as Brie or Camembert, will complete this meal with a flair. Be sure to bring along an extra bottle of blackberry wine to enjoy with the cheese and fruit.

This summer, serve up a special apres-tennis meal to your friends and family. Just the thought of all that good food waiting should improve their game.

And, to make your tennis outing just perfect, we offer one small bit of advice: Don't jump over the net—even if you win.

VINO VOLLEYS

½ cup (4 ounces) blackberry wine
Fresh limes
Lemon-flavored soda
Ice

In each tall glass place 4 ounces wine. Squeeze a lime wedge into each. Fill with ice and pour over lemon-flavored soda. Mix and serve.

This may also be prepared in quantity in a vacuum bottle. Add the soda just before serving.

SERVE 'EM UP PASTRIES

Pastry

2 cups flour
2-3rds cup margarine or shortening
¼ cup cold water

Filling

1 pound lean ground beef
½ cup finely chopped onions
¼ pound finely chopped fresh mushrooms
½ cup blackberry wine
½ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon basil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 egg yolk
Egg wash (1 egg yolk plus 2 tablespoons water)

MAKE PASTRY: In medium mixing bowl, place flour. Add margarine or shortening and cut in with pastry blender until mixture resembles cornmeal. Add water, and mix until dough is formed (if too crumbly, add more water). Chill. Divide dough in half and roll each half out on floured pastry cloth. Cut into 6-inch squares.

PREPARE FILLING: In skillet, brown ground beef with onions and mushrooms. Add wine, oregano, basil, salt and pepper. Cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in egg yolk. Place about ½ cup of mixture on each of 6 pastry squares. Fold over pastry square to form a triangle. Seal edges with tines of fork. Place on a baking sheet. Pierce top of dough with fork in several places. Brush each triangle with egg wash. Bake in a 425 degree oven for about 20 minutes or until well-browned and pastry flakes easily.

TO CARRY TO PICNIC: Wrap pastries individually in aluminum foil. Heat in low oven, then pack in an insulated carrier.

30-LOVE SALAD

1 cup sliced radishes
1 cup raw cauliflowerettes
½ cup thinly sliced celery
½ cup thinly sliced carrots
½ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup minced green onion (with tops)

Dressing

1 cup vegetable oil
¼ cup pink catawba wine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 teaspoon seasoned pepper
½ teaspoon oregano
Lettuce cups
Radish roses
Parsley

Place raw vegetables in a shallow pan. In a jar, place oil, wine, lemon juice, salt, pepper, oregano. Cover and shake well. Pour over vegetables. Cover with plastic, wrap and refrigerate.

TO CARRY TO PICNIC: Place vegetables and dressing in a large plastic bag. Seal end with a twist-tie. Before serving, open bag and drain off excess dressing. Spoon into lettuce cups and garnish with cherry tomatoes and parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Piano tuner turned on by topless shows

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 35-year-old piano tuner announced he is organizing a drive to gather signatures for a ballot petition to make topless and bottomless entertainment legal in San Francisco.

"I don't like to see censorship of any kind except for national security," said David Carlstroem, who also announced his candidacy for the city's board of supervisors.

However, Carlstroem said he doesn't like the nudity featured in North Beach night clubs. "I don't waste my time going there," he said.

Tennessee jobs

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Unemployment in Tennessee has averaged more than 1 per cent below the national average of about 5 per cent during the past year.

It's the spread, not the bread, dieters must dread

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you think bread is fattening be surprised. It's one-third water.

The water content was cited by Dr. Olaf Mickelsen, president of the American Institute of Nutrition. He was in New York for a symposium on bread and nutrition.

The meeting, sponsored by the American Bakers Association (ABA), undated food editors and writers on new developments in nutrition. But the panelists spent most of their time correcting misconceptions about the staff of life and rebutting faddists' claims that commercial enriched white bread is devitalized, artificial and so starchy that it's fattening.

In answer to the latter, Dr. Mickelsen said:

"People load bread with a tremendous number of calories and then blame the bread."

He said a slice of enriched white bread contains only about 60 calories. A pat of butter doubles the calorie count and butter plus a slice of cheese such as cheddar can increase the total to 275 calories or more.

Mickelsen, professor of the Human Nutrition and Foods and the Biochemistry and Human Development Departments at Michigan State University, described a study he conducted there to evaluate bread as a source of protein for active young men in good health.

Twelve students spent 50 days on a diet in which bread made up 90 to 95 per cent of their protein intake. Each ate eight slices per meal, or 1½ loaves of bread a day.

Mickelsen said the young men not only emerged from the study healthy, but most of the 12 stubjects also still like bread after eating so much of it for nearly two months.

"We didn't set up our study to prove that man could live by bread alone, but our results indicated that he can," Mickelsen added.

Another panelist, Philip L. White, director of the American Medical Association's (AMA) Department of Foods and Nutrition, answered critics who claim flour enrichment doesn't restore nutrients lost in milling.

"It was never meant to," said White. "Enrichment was designed to help correct nutrient deficiencies common 30 years ago."

He said bleaching flour is not designed to destroy nutrients, as some persons have claimed, but to age flour and make it look whiter. He said the whitening is presumably in response to consumer demands and that aging improves flour's baking quality. Chemical bleaching now replaces the older, costlier method of storing and turning flour in warehouses for long periods of speed oxidation.

White said unbleached flour that has been aged is slightly golden in color but it doesn't differ significantly from bleached flour in nutritional quality.

"There are only minor (nutritional) differences between whole wheat and enriched white bread," he said, contrary to faddists' claims. He added that consumer demand determines how much whole grain bread is baked, compared with the enriched white variety.

Ordinary bakers white bread contains only about 3.5 per cent fat, much of which is polyunsaturated because it comes from wheat oils, said White. It's also a low-cholesterol product unless the baker uses a few eggs and a lot of milk, both of which would also increase the calorie count.

Too many persons can't be concerned about the calories in bread. The ABA said per capita consumption of commercial bread and bread type rolls rose from 80.1 pounds per year in 1967 to 84.3 pounds per year in 1971, the most recent date for which figures are available.

Money-saving tips

Here are two money-saving tips on using stale bread. Make melba toast or dried bread crumbs. Place slices in a single layer on a cookie sheet in a 250-degree oven until dry and lightly browned. For crumbs, break into chunks and whirl in blender a few slices at a time. Or place chunks in a plastic bag and or a soft drink bottle. Store tightly covered to prevent softening in humid weather.

Good salads come in pears

When the size you are and the size you'd like to be just don't coincide, and you decide the time has come to do something about your caloric intake, you may have a family problem. Every member of that group may not need to take off pounds, and carrots and celery stalks just won't strike them as the most exciting meal in town.

There are ways, however, of putting together relatively low-calorie entrees so skillfully that no one will know what you're doing, and everyone will praise you for your gourmet touch. Place a lot of importance on attractive groupings of ingredients. Salads come instantly to mind as one-dish meals that can be attractive and delicious, too. Fresh Bartlett pears, now sitting in green and gold splendor in your neighborhood produce section, make a marvelous start for a salad.

Depend on fresh pears to help you through those diet "crisis" periods when you just have to have something sweet. A medium pear, taken chilled from the refrigerator and eaten right of hand, has only 95 calories. It's the perfect neat, sweet treat—but be sure you keep a good supply on hand, even nondieters can't resist nibbling cold, juicy pears on a warm summer day.

For additional recipes and serving suggestions for this and other summer fruits, send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to "The Fruits of Summer," P.O. Box 4640, Sacramento, CA 95825. You'll receive a 48-page cookbooklet with luscious color illustrations of more than 100 ways to serve California fruits.

He almost had it made

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — The way the police old it, Irineu Manuel Cequinato did almost everything right in planning one big narcotics caper.

Using the confusion of carnival season in Rio de Janeiro to divert attention, police said, Cequinato planned to drive to Paraguay, buy all the marijuana he could find at bargain prices and then sell high at home to carnival celebrants.

He bought a big new car for the trip, police said, purchased $70,000 worth of marijuana and successfully made it back across the border into Brazil. Then, a policeman stopped his car for a routine check— Cequinato had forgotten to put license plates on the car.

FROZEN BAVARIAN

Convenience foods --easy elegance

Elegant desserts are fun to serve, especially when their preparation is deceivingly simple. Convenience foods, such as pudding and gelatin mixes, are a great aid in preparing these elaborate looking desserts in no time.

Frozen Maple-Nut Bavarian is a spectacular dessert that's sure to be applauded by family and friends. A bavarian is basically an egg custard made with gelatin (to hold its shape) and whipped cream (for richness and a light fluffy texture).

Bavarians lend themselves to a great variety of flavors and are often set in fancy molds for dramatic results. This particular bavarian is frozen rather than refrigerated, and the resulting cool, maple, flavor is sheer delight.

In spite of its fancy appearance, this lovely dessert made with instant pudding is quite simple to prepare. No need for gelatin; the pudding sets this dessert, and heating maple syrup is the only cooking involved. The caramel-nut flavor blends with the syrup for a rich maple-nut taste.

The prepared bavarian may be poured into an 8-cup mold or 16 custard cups for individual desserts. Unmold before your guests arrive and place on a serving plate in the freezer. Garnish with whipped cream and nuts just before serving.

FROZEN MAPLE-NUT BAVARIAN

- 4 eggs
- 2-3rds cup hot maple-flavored syrup
- 4 cups cold milk
- 2 packages instant caramel nut pudding
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped and sweetened with 2 tablespoons sugar
- ½ cup chopped English walnuts

Beat eggs slightly. Slowly add hot maple syrup to eggs, stirring constantly.

Measure milk into large mixing bowl. Add instant caramel nut pudding and using egg beaters or mixer, slowly beat two minutes. Stir egg mixture into pudding. Fold in plain whipped cream. Place in freezer for 1½ hours, or until very thick; then whip until creamy. Pour into an 8-cup mold or 16 custard cups. Freeze until firm.

At serving time, unmold desserts. Garnish with sweetened whipped cream and chopped English walnuts. Makes 6 servings.

Candidate boosts nude entertainment

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 35-year-old piano tuner announced Monday he is organizing a drive to gather signatures for a ballot petition to make topless and bottomless entertainment legal in San Francisco.

"I don't like to see censorship of any kind except for national security," said David Carlstroem, who also announced his candidacy for the city's Board of Supervisors.

However, Carlstroem said he doesn't like the nudity featured in North Beach night clubs. "I don't waste my time going there," he said.

Refreshing is word for this salad

Local fruits and vegetables are in more plentiful supply during summer months. Buying them at this time does save money. As a refreshing summer dish, combine thinly sliced cucumbers and green grapes in a sweetly tart marinade. Salads always are welcome on hot days and this combination will please the serious dieter who may use a sugar substitute to eliminate those sweet calories if desired.

DANISH SLICED CUCUMBER WITH GREEN GRAPES

- 2 8-inch cucumbers, pared and thinly sliced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 6 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 6 tablespoons water
- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup halved and seeded green grapes (fresh or canned)
- Dried dill weed
- Salt and black pepper

Sprinkle cucumber slices with salt in small mixing bowl. Allow to stand 15 minutes. Stir together briefly and allow to stand another 15 minutes. Turn cucumbers into strainer to drain off liquid. Combine vinegar, water and sugar in same bowl. Stir until sugar dissolves. Add cucumbers and grapes in layers, sprinkling each layer with a dash of dill weed. Salt and pepper to taste. Cover tightly and chill well. If desired, serve on lettuce cups. Top with dollop of sour cream if desired. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

New food programs encourage good eating habits

NEW YORK (UPI — Two small midwestern colleges and two parochial schools in Louisiana have found ways to cut student complaints about food and, at the same time, encourage good eating habits.

MacMurray College, a small liberal arts school in Jacksonville, Ill., introduced open cafeteria service to its 1,000 students. A continuous service schedule launched last fall provides food without interruption between 7 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. weekdays and during two serving periods on weekends.

St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn., has an even more varied program for its 2,750 undergraduates. It includes vegetarian menus, a special diet program for overweight students and staff members and so-called health foods such as soy bean and soy products, whole wheat and spinach noodles and granola breakfast cereal.

The cafeteria, coffee shop and self-supporting public dining room also serve baked goods prepared at the college and meat cut daily by college butchers.

The MacMurray, St. Olaf and Baton Rouge Diocese programs were described in the School Food Service Journal, a trade publication. It said the Minnesota school added granola, a high protein dry cereal, when a survey showed 60 per cent of the college's breakfast eaters wanted it.

St. Olaf's diet program was launched after food service director Mike Simione joined a weight-loss program that had no connection with the college. Twenty-five students and staff members were accepted in the college's own diet regime. It provides three meals a day tailored to individuals with a weight problem.

Each dieter is removed from the program when he reaches his goal, and no one is allowed to join it without first consulting with his or her doctor.

At MacMurray, the open cafeteria system provides a wider food selection for students and better food merchandising.

With peak periods and crowded conditions eliminated, the staff has more time to produce smaller and more attractive quantities of different foods.

Students are allowed to eat as often as they wish during the day. There are no restructions on second helpings, except for steaks at Sunday dinner.

During the week, breakfast is available between 7 - 10:30 a.m., lunch, between 10:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. and dinner, 4:30 - 6:30 p.m.

The dining hall changes encourage good eating habits because students no longer have to miss meals if they oversleep or have class schedule conficts.

Food waste decreased because sandwiches and grilling orders are prepared individually. An extensive salad bar and a bigger choice of entrees was added without sizeable increases in expenses.

It' a case of more for less. For service director Jerry Gold said his projected budget for the year indicated a substantial reduction in food and labor costs as a result of the expanded service.

In the Louisiana capital, the St. Gerard-Redemptorist Schools use the elementary school cafeteria to serve every grade from kindergarten through senior high school. The route to the building used to take junior and senior high students past a concession stand that served malts, french fries and other teen-aged favorites.

The concession stand was closed after the cafeteria added snack type meals to its menu.

French fries sometimes are available and sandwiches are similar to main dishes on the hot lunch line. They include hamburgers, sloppy joes, fishburgers, church wagon steak burgers and ham poorboys—known in other areas of the United States as heros, grinders or submarines.

Even malts are served at a small charge after lunch has been eaten.

To make the hot lunch as appealing as the sandwich line, doughnuts, cinnamon rolls or a favorite dessert are featured with the regular menu. Both menus are posted in advance and rotated 30-minute lunch periods are used to prevent long lines.

NEW WAYS WITH TOMATOES

Nectarines add zip to bean salad

Fresh nectarines are perfect for eating out-of-hand or sliced over a favorite cereal. Nectarines also blend well with other foods in recipes and their sweet-tart flavor and lovely color make refreshing eating during hot weather. Nectarines are at their peak through September and should be enjoyed while at their juicy best. As a definite change of pace combine them in a Nectarine Bean Salad. Serve with cold cuts, cheese and a fresh homemade bread.

NECTARINE BEAN SALAD

- 1 (27-ounce) can red kidney beans
- ½ cup green pepper rings
- ½ cup onion rings
- ½ cup bottled Italian or French dressing
- 3 fresh nectarines
- 1 quart western iceberg lettuce, Shredded or torn

Drain beans well. Combine with green pepper, onion and dressing. Cover and chill several hours. Halve and slice nectarines. Arrange layers of bean mixture, nectarines and lettuce in serving bowl. Drizzle on any dressing remaining from bean mixture marinade. Serve with additional dressing, if desired Makes 6 servings.

Love apple stars in summer salads

Fresh tomatoes are available all year round, but now the greatest supplies are arriving on the produce market. This is the time to savor the goodness of beefsteak tomatoes which are large, red and slightly elliptical in shape by enjoying them raw in salads or just sliced and dressed in the golden flavor of Spanish olive oil.

The red cherry variety is perhaps better known as the "Love Apple". It is cherry-size and is bright red. Its excellence is shown when it is eaten raw, or in pickles and preserves. San Morzano is the intense red, plum-shape variety that is so popular eaten raw, or used to make tomato pastes and purees.

Tomatoes are best in flavor if they are allowed to ripen on the vine. When shipped long distances, they must be picked green and so are less juicy and flavorful when fully ripened. When purchasing fresh tomatoes, look for ones that are a good color for their variety, firm, rounded and free from blemishes. If they are not to be used immediately include a few that are a little underripe. In general, tomatoes should be heavy in weight for their size.

Whatever variety tomato you select, its flavor will be enhanced by the golden fragrance of olive oil from Spain. Why not serve a pyramid of tomato slices which have been sprinkled with salt and fresh tarragon, and lavishly coated with a dressing of golden olive oil? Try this tomato idea as a salad or as an appetizing first course.

For a new twist to this easy salad idea, try serving fresh tomatoes with various other seasonings or topped with mayonnaise easily made with the convenient goodness of Spanish olive oil. It is most important to remember that olive oil points up the tomato flavor regardless of the manner in which you choose to serve them.

MAYONNAISE-TOMATOES

- 2 egg yolks or 1 whole egg
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons vinegar, wine vinegar or lemon juice
- 1 cup Spanish olive oil
- Tomato slices
- Diced cucumber

In electric blender container, combine egg yolks, mustard, salt, vinegar and ¼ cup of the oil. Cover; turn to high speed. Add remaining oil in a steady stream. Blend well. Chill, covered in refrigerator until ready to use. Makes 1-½ cups. To serve, top fresh tomato slices with diced cucumber and a spoonful of the dressing.

TOMATO PYRAMID

Sprinkle fresh tomato slices with salt and fresh tarragon, or any one of the following:

- One envelope of dry salad dressing mix,
- One envelope of dry spaghetti sauce seasoning mix,
- a sprinkling of curry power and salt, or freshly-ground black pepper.

Cover completely with Spanish olive oil. Refrigerate for an hour or two. Drain and stack in a pyramid. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

STUFFED TOMATOES

Marinate cooked mixed vegetables in any one of the seasoning and oil mixtures suggested in the Tomato Pyramid recipe. Drain and spoon into hollowed-out tomatoes.

TOMATO "SANDWICHES"

Spoon cottage cheese between two slices of tomatoes (marinated as in Tomato Pyramid recipe). Serve with pickles and potato chips.

THESE NEW ORE-IDA ONION RINGS TASTE AS GOOD AS THEY LOOK.

Look. Ore-Ida onion rings are formed into perfect circles. And they stay that way. Don't fall apart in the package. Or on your plate.

Taste. Ore-Ida onion rings are made with fresh chopped onions. They give you more sweet onion, more true onion flavor. That's because they have a thinner coating of batter that clings, through oven baking, to a golden, french fried crispness.

Ore-Ida onion rings. Try a bag or box. 10¢ says they taste as good as they look.

New book has advice for cutting food bill in half

(UPI) — Step right up and learn how to cut your grocery bill without resorting to only water and hard bread three times a day. Even in Phase 4.

The invitation sounds like a circus sideshow come-on, I know. But Delight Dixon Omohundro, of Georgetown, Conn., says women are smart enough to win what she calls "the grocery game."

Mrs. Omohundro, mother of three young sons and wife of the man who invented the hairdryer with a bonnet, says pooh-pooh to the consumer advocate advice to "shop harder."

You can shop harder all day and do higher math figuring out your advantages or disadvantages on 8,000 different prices you'll encounter in the typical grocery store—and still not make the best food buys, says Mrs. Omohundro. You need the advice she has jelled.

She's put it all in a guide that challenges shoppers to exercise power as consumers and beat inflation while playing "the grocery game."

Mrs. Omohundro has it all down between the covers of a new book, "How to Win the Grocery Game: A Proven Strategy for Beating Inflation" (Drake).

In an interview, she said the figures are based on phase 2 controls. At that, a family of four could be fed well on $100 a month. Then came phase 3 and the food bill went up to $120. With phase 4, Mrs. Omohundro says the $100 price tag from last January goes to $140 to $150.

Two important lessons, she says, are to pay for food and not the processing or packaging; to cook with the least amount of waste and the most nourishment.

If you follow her strategems, Mrs. Omohundro figures you can cut a $60 grocery bill nearly in half each week. That's like having a $30 increase in take-home pay. The author says it can be done—especially if you have been far from a careful shopper.

She advocates shopping just once a week and frets over money wasted when working couples or working singles go food shopping every day.

"Never spend more than one-half an hour in a store," the cost-conscious shopper and nutrition-conscious cook said.

"Studies have shown that after a half hour in a store blinking slows down and the pupils change—slightly trancelike. I get groggy. When you're in a trance or groggy you buy on impulse, you buy wrong and you waste money."

The Georgetown matron suggests 45 minutes planning before you shop and also, shop more than one store. Her planning starts with tearing all the food ads out of the paper.

Then make a chart, with the store names at top and the food items listed down the left side. Draw lines down and across. Put in all the specials at the various stores. Shop the specials but only within your plan for the week's meals.

Avoid convenience foods. You'll spend more than you would from scratch except in the case of instant mashed potatoes, frozen orange juice, some chocolate cake mix, ice cream and bread.

Mrs. Omohundro is a marketing expert, one of the few female ones. Before retiring to motherhood she worked with large marketing organizations in the nation. Winner of numerous awards, she was the first woman graduate of the American Management Association's course in marketing.

She believes the women of America can win the grocery game. The problems with food —high prices and spotty supplies—would not be so great, as she put it, "If we had more women in Washington."

"I recommend that we send more women to Washington," she said. "Men can handle the big international problems but women should handle the family budget."

Her basic game plan:

—Buy lower-price foods exclusively. The less tender cuts of meat, the less popular types, special purchases the store has made, things the store wants to get rid of. On fruit, "I've made an unwritten law that I won't pay more than five cents apiece for fresh fruit. This is a handy rule of thumb. You'll find yourself buying shorter bananas and smaller apples.

"The search for lower-priced food extends to all manner of canned goods and staples. Rule No. 1 should be a frame of mind, a shopping way of life. In his book, 'How to Be a Millionaire,' J. Paul Getty singles out thrift as a secret of success. Your supermarket is as good a place as any to start."

— Eliminate unnecessary items. Don't buy things you don't need. The more attention you give to buying essentials, the more immune you're going to be to the frivolities.

—Know what things cost or should cost. A general target price for canned goods: a penny an ounce is a good buy. A bargain. As the price edges up from that there's less bargain.

—Buy it when it's there. Soon you will know how to recognize a genuine bargain. When you see an incredible price, buy. If you've been following the ads and know that good roasting chickens run around 49 cents a pound, and you find some for 29 cents, buy.

—Do it yourself. Bologna pre-sliced has figured in the price around $9 an hour for the expense of slicing and packaging. Buy the whole piece. Same with chickens. Takes about five minutes to cut one up. Also make stews, home made soup, pies and cakes, cookies, spaghetti sauce. The savings are enormous. You can make a huge pot of spaghetti sauce at one-fourth the cost of store-bought sauce.

—Substitute ingredients. Instead of cream, for example, use evaporated milk.

—Plan your menus and live with them.

Mrs. Omohundro also recommends what she calls weekly DOLODOL, the automatic economy menu guide. This is to cut your food bill in half. The letters mean as follows:

—Double meal meat; One-meal meat; Leftover meat; One-meal meat; Double-meal meat; One-meal meat; Leftover meat.

A double-meal meat is one that is enough for two meals plus lunch sandwiches. A one-meal meat is just what it sounds like. Leftovers?

2 executives accused in fraud case

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two executives of CBS' Records Division have been accused by the company of plotting to obtain more than $300,000 in fraudulent expense reimbursements.

A suit filed by the Columbia Broadcasting System Inc. in Manhattan Supreme Court charged David Wynshaw, a director of special marketing projects, and Anthony Rubino, director of marketing administration, with conspiring since 1970 to submit false and misleading invoices.

Wynshaw, of New York, and Rubino, of Wyckoff, N.J., allegedly used the funds obtained for their own benefit and that of unnamed co-conspirators.

Time lag hurts Dodgers

LOCAL - NATIONAL
Sports

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. — Time lag caught up with the Dodgers Tuesday night. Or maybe it was a case of the Dodgers not catching up with the time lag.

Playing the Houston Astros in the Astrodome at 5:30 p.m. California time, Dodger bodies were ready, but Dodgers minds weren't geared to play for another 2½ hours.

As a result, an eight-inning rally that saw a lead-off single and out, and three more hits back-to-back netted only one run.

So instead of a 3-3 tie or possibly a 4-3 lead, the score was 3-2, Houston, and that was the way the game ended even though the losers out-hit the winners 9-4.

Dave Lopes was both the hero and the goat.

Lopes hit his second home run in two days and fourth in the season. He added a single in four at bats to raise his average .293.

But it was the single that proved his and the Dodgers' undoing.

Lopes singled Russell to second. Manny Mota lined a sharp hit to right-center which Cesar Cedeno flagged on one hop and fired toward the plate.

Meanwhile, coach Tommy Lasorda had held Russell up at third. But Lopes hadn't seen this and apparently thought Russell had scored on the play.

Lopes never slowed at second, but rounded the base and raced to third, only to find Russell standing there when he arrived.

Seeing Lopes was also heading for third, Roberts cut the throw off and fired to Doug Rader who tagged both runners. Russell had original possession of the base so Lopes was declared out.

So instead of the bases loaded with one out, there were two outs with runners at first and third. The embarrassment became more acute when Willie Davis slapped a long single scoring Russell and sending Mota around to third. But Joe Ferguson ended the winning by grounding out.

Ferguson nearly wore goat's horns himself in the Houston half of the inning. Tom Agee singled to open the inning and was forced at second by Roger Metzger.

With Cedeno at bat, reliever Jim Brewer cut loose with a wild pitch that bounced to the back stop. Ferguson started to jog after the ball and Metzger, seeing this, raced around second and broke for third.

Ferguson retrieved the ball, fired to Ron Cey and barely nipped the Houston shortstop.

It was a bad night all around.

"I didn't see Russell until I got to third," admitted the crestfallen Lopes. "You can't print what I was thinking. I guess I was a little too aggressive."

Lasorda, who managed Lopes in the minor leagues took it almost as hard.

"I feel bad because it happened to him," he sympathized. "I can imagine how he feels. It was a very unusual thing for him. Davey is an exceptional baserunner and he rarely ever makes a mistake."

Manager Walter Alston took the philosphical view in explaining the play. "I guess it's the price you have to pay sometimes when you're going with youngsters," he said.

"I think Russell had to hold up somewhat," he continued, "to see if Cedeno was going to catch the ball. If there had been two outs, Russell would have been running and Tommy (Lasorda) would have tried to score him. But with one out you have to respect Cedeno's arm and Lasorda held him (Russell) up. It's up to Lopes to look over to third to see what has happened."

The Dodger pitcher, John (10-6), deserved a better fate. In seven innings he had been charged with three runs on allowing just three hits. The runs scored on just two of the hits.

The Astros scored once in the second—on a double, sacrifice, and an error by Russell. The run would have scored anyway. Russell's error merely allowed the batter to reach base, when he should have been retired.

The other pair or runs came in the sixth on one hit. A walk, Cedeno's double, an infield out advancing Cedeno to third, and Rader's sacrifice fly accounted for two runs.

As John commented, "It's a shame to waste those games when you have good stuff. But you win some when you don't have it."

Lasorda summed it up best. "It was just one of those games, gentlemen."

Tonight Al Downing (8-5) tries to even the series against James Rodney Richard (2-0).

DODGER NOTES: The Dodgers are now 3-5 against the Astros this season, 0-3 in the Astrodome and 3-2 in Dodger Stadium. . . .

Roberts is 6-1 at the Astrodome and 3-7 on the road this year. He is 3-6 against Western Division opponents and 8-2 against the Eastern Division. His earned average in the 'Dome is under two per game.

Michael Weaver fights Foreman

There will be an interesting sparring match in the ring at the San Diego Sports Arena Friday night.

For one fighter, it is an opportunity to keep in top shape for his defense of his world heavyweight championship. For the other, it's a great chance to gain experience and publicity.

Pomona's Michael Weaver will be fighting an exhibition with heavyweight champion George Foreman at San Diego Friday.

Foreman is getting ready for his title fight against Joe Roman of Puerto Rico in Japan on Sept. 1. It is his first bout since winning the crown against Joe Frazier.

Meanwhile, Weaver, a 22-year-old Ganesha High product, is preparing for a fight on the Muhammad Ali-Ken Norton card at The Forum on Sept. 10. His opponent hasn't been determined yet but forum promoter Don Fraser thinks it will be Donnie Nelson of Phoenix, Ariz.

"I like the chance to box Foreman," Weaver said. "It's a great opportunity for me. In the past, I have sparred with both Ali and Norton."

Weaver expects the sparring match to last four rounds with both boxers using 16-ounce gloves in an effort to eliminate any cuts.

Boxing is Weaver's main thing with his goal being the heavyweight championship.

Two hours a day

Single, Weaver makes his income by selling vacuum cleaners. He also spends two hours each evening working out at the Sacred Heart Athletic Club's gymnasium behind the Pomona Unified School District's offices on Garey Avenue.

Weaver admits the only sport he participated in while attending Ganesha was track. He didn't become interested in boxing until joining the Marine Corps.

"I got into a fight with a guy on the boxing team," Weaver said. "The coach heard about it and asked me to join the team. I've been interested in boxing ever since."

After winning the All-Marine Corps heavyweight crown in 1971, he also won two Golden Gloves titles before turning pro. His current record after defeaing Billy Ryan last February is 7-2.

Obviously, a good showing at The Forum will be a big boost to Weaver's career.

Who knows, Weaver and Foreman may meet again some day with a heavyweight title on the line.

Sorry to hear about the fate of Pat Rogers, the University of New Mexico linebacker.

Rogers, a former All-CIF star at Damien High who went to New Mexico after playing for Walt Ambord at Pomona College and John Strycula at Citrus, has to give up football because of a congenital spine problem which was aggravated by playing football last season.

As a junior at New Mexico, Rogers was in on 111 tackles.

Pat recently underwent surgery on his back but doctors have told him he can't play football again. He is currently using a cane to walk but will be back to normal soon.

Young Clyde handles Angels

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

ANAHEIM — Young David Clyde, the pride of Texas, must feel like he is still facing high school teams the way he handles the California Angels.

The 18-year-old lefthander defeated the Angels for the second time in a week Tuesday night. Two of his three major league victories have been over the Californians.

Only the Halos did better this time. Last week in Texas, Clyde helped blank the Halos, 8-0. Tuesday night, he allowed one run in his seven innings of work as the Rangers enjoyed a 4-2 victory.

Clyde, who was pitching for Westchester High in Houston this spring, lived up to all his notcies. He was able to change his speeds effectively against the Angels and showed great poise both on the mound and in his post-game interviews.

"I was lucky tonight," he said with much modesty. "Everything the Angels hit went right at somebody. I still need a lot of work on my breaking pitches."

As usual, Clyde credited everybody for his remarkable success.

"God has to give you the fastball," he said. "I also owe a lot to my father, who would work with me every day after coming home from work. That's something in these times when parents don't have a lot of time to work with their kids."

Clyde, who works only seven innings a game as the Rangers want to protect his arm from overuse, allowed the Angels only four hits and two walks while striking out five batters.

The Angels had two opportunities of getting to Clyde but the youngster pitched out of both jams.

Ken Berry opened the sixth inning with a single and pinch-hitter Billy Grabarkewitz followed with a bloop double to put two runners in scoring position with no outs.

Pinch-hitter Winston Llenas hit a long sacrifice fly to left to score Berry with the Angels' first run off of Clyde in 12 innings. But both Sandy Alomar and Al Gallagher flied out to end the threat.

Veteran Frank Robinson drilled a double off of Clyde to open the seventh inning but stayled at second base as the Texan struck out Bob Oliver, got Richie Scheinblum on a fly and struck out Lee Stanton.

The Angels didn't fare much better against the Ranger relievers. The Halos loaded the bases against Bill Gogolowski in the eighth inning but were turned away empty handed when Gallagher bounced into a double play.

Oliver belted his 14th home run of the season in the ninth off Gogolewski and Scheinblum followed with a single but Bull Durham came out of the bullpen for the final outs.

Meanwhile, Texas was enjoying batting practice against Angel starter Clyde Wright, who was drilled for 10 hits in the six innings of work in losing his 15th game of the season.

Alex Johnson collected two hits and Jim Fregosi added another as the ex-Angels enjoyed their return to Anaheim.

The revived Rangers, going great behind Clyde and Jim 'No-Hit' Bibby, have taken four in a row from the struggling Angels.

In first place as late as June 27, the Angels lost 19 of 29 games in July to sink 8½ games behind co-leaders Oakland and Kansas City in the American League West.

ANGEL NOTES — Ex-Cincinnati star Jim Merritt (4-5) will pitch for the Rangers tonight against Rudy May (6-9) . . .

Thursday's game starts at 6 p.m. because of Texas travel arrangements. In the twinight affair, Sonny Siebert (6-7) will pitch for the Texans against either Nolan Ryan or Bill Singer . . .

The Angels will hold a tryout camp at Anaheim Stadium on Aug. 10-11 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. with players, ages 16-21, invited to attend . . .

Robinson's double enabled him to pass Lou Gehrig for the 28th spot on all-time hit list with 2,722.

OMS to test new rules

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Now it's Ontario Motor Speedway's turn to test the new United States Auto Club rules.

With the fourth running of the California 500 at the OMS facility only a month away, USAC officials are promising high speeds and a more competitive race this year than ever before.

At least Rolla Vollstedt thinks so.

Vollstedt, the car owners' elected representative on the United States Auto Club's Board of Directors, was the featured speaker at the second annual California 500 press luncheon held by Bryant Air Conditioning Company Tuesday at the Sheraton-West.

In briefly explaining the new rules which USAC put into effect after the tragic accidents at this year's Indianapolis 500 and the new racing format for this year's Cal 500, Vollstedt said, "The reduced fuel loads will increase the safety factor but will put a tremendous responsibility on the pit crews.

"All the crews will have to calculate carefully when to bring in their cars and drivers, then refuel the cars at least twice as many times than before in 500-mile races," added the owner of the Bryant Heating and Cooling Special driven by Tom Bigelow. "Add all the pit stops to the more evenly matched cars and you will come up with a better race with more action and greater interest for the spectator."

On the new racing format which includes two 100-mile qualifying races, Vollstedt submitted, "I think we will have a couple of exciting 100-mile sprint races."

But the Portland lumber broker didn't focus a lot of his discussion on the Ontario race — he spent most of the time going into what changes might be made next year.

Vollstdt said that important specification changes have been proposed for next year's cars at a technical meeting held earlier this month at Indianapolis.

"The most radical recommendation concerns engine specifications and performance," he said. "We would like to restrict the horsepower so that naturally aspirated engines can compete with turbo-charged engines. To increase further the safety factor, we are recommending more changes affecting fuel capacity and the location of fuel tanks in the cars. And, we have some additional ideas about wing dimensions."

There were some criticisms about the USAC's changes in the rules right after the Indy 500. It seems that a lot of the static came from those who thought USAC wasn't doing anything about reducing the speed of the cars.

But Vollstedt explained that by reducing the fuel capacity per car the mechanics would have to tune down horsepower in order to get as much mileage as possible out of the 40-gallon tank.

But still the car owner pointed out that one of the recommendations for next year would be to reduce the supercharged engines from 1,000 horsepower to 600 horsepower.

"By restricting the horsepower it'll naturally slow the cars down," he said. "But it will also make the stock block a competitive engine again as opposed to the turbocharged engine."

Along with the turning down the engines, the recommendation competition committee has proposed changesin the body structure of the championship car — changing it to resemble the cars which race in Formula One competition.

Also the committee is recommending that the starting speed for the championship races be moved up.

"We'd like to get all the super speedways like Indianapolis, Ontario and Pocono to provide a minimum starting speed of 100 miles an hour instead of the present 80 MPH," Vollstedt explained. "That way the cars would be starting in a top gear instead of second gear. It would also avoid the juggling which occurred at Indy."

The Indianapolis race has been known for past several years for its shaky starts, but not all of the blame went to USAC.

It's predicted that the 200 mile-per-hour barrier will again be broken this year at Ontario during the time trials.

Saturday, August 25 will see time trial qualifying with each car having three opportunities to turn in two laps on the clock. The fastest two-lap average will stand as the qualifying speed.

The pole position and the other two front row spots for the Cal 500 will be "locked in" by Saturday's time trials. Additional time trial qualifying will be held Sunday morning, August 26 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The starting order of the 33-car field will be determined by the "Twin 100" qualifying races on Sunday, August 26. Odd numbered qualifiers from the time trial sessions will square off in one heat while the even numbered qualifiers will meet in the other with $50,000 in prize money, championship points, and starting berths in the California 500 at stake.

The 500-mile race is scheduled for Sunday, September 2.

Keough makes way for Allen

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Ganesha High and Mt. San Antonio College star Joe Keough was sent to the Iowa Oaks of the American Association Tuesday by the Chicago White Sox to make room for Dick Allen, the American League's Most Valuble Player last year.

Allen was sidelined June 28 with a hairline fracture of a small leg bone. He has been running, riding a bicycle and swinging a bat in a conditioning program to get back in the lineup.

Aaron moving towards Ruth

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hank Aaron is back moving toward the Babe.

Aaron, who hit his 700th homer July 21, got his 701st Tuesday night in the first game of a doubleheader against the Cincinnati Reds.

Aaron now has 28 homers this season in the Braves' 110 games this season.

The Braves are home tonight against the Cincinnati Reds.

'The Bear' tries to make it with the Broncos

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — O. J. Simpson ran across the television screen one afternoon when Charles Hinton was still a schoolboy in East Orange, N.J.

It left a lasting impression on Hinton, an All-Everything running back in East Orange High. He set his mind that he would one day play for Southern California.

O.J. was gone by the time Hinton first made an appearance at USC, by way of Arizona Western JC, a community college near Yuma with a reputation as a pipeline to major college football.

Hinton related the story, and the trauma of the switch he made from offensive back to defensive back, as he relaxed in his room at Cerritos Hall at Cal Poly University Tuesday afternoon.

Hinton, one of 11 free agents signed by the Denver Broncos, will fight for one of six defensive secondary berths in the next few weeks of summer training.

He learned a little something of what it's going to be like in the pros at the College All-Star game last weekend in Chicago. He was one of four Bronco All-Stars.

"It was a good experience," he pointed out. "It gave me more confidence to play with the pros. Nothing surprised me about Miami. I had built them up as superman in my mind.

"Yes, I was disappointed in not being drafted," said the former Trojan cornerback. "But nothing has ever come easy. I've always had to prove myself. But I think that's helped me. I play best under pressure—pressure breaks pipes, you know. You have to rise to the occasion."

Hinton, dubbed "Sugar Bear" by a teammate who thought he looked like one, is a contradiction in humility and confidence with a bit of candidness thrown in on top of it.

At 5-foot-10 and 190 pounds he resembles another former Trojan, Heisman Trophy winner Mike Garrett.

"They started calling me that for awhile," he said. "But it never stuck. 'Sugar Bear' just seemed to fit. I was 'Charlie' in high school, but just about everybody called me 'Bear' now."

Hinton was on of five Trojan running backs when he started his junior year in the fall in 1971.

Except for punt and kickoff returns, including a 68-yarder in an upset victory over Notre Dame at South Bend, Hinton spent most of the time, in his words, "riding the pine."

"I was one of the minute men. And boy I sure didn't like that," he added chuckling.

The Trojan coaching staff, however, elected to switch him to the defensive secondary following a disappointing 6-4-1 season.

"I almost quit," Hinton admits. "I wanted to carry ball. The ball is the game. Once you have the ball you have the game — you have the game right there—all eyes are on you.

"It was a traumatic experience. They turned me every way but loose as a running back, the entire game is going forward. As a cornerback, the entire game is running backwards.

Hinton attributes his eventual successful transition to the unfamiliar position to sound lessons in the fundamentals of the game taught to him at East Orange High. "I never forgot how to hit, how to tackle, the fundamentals," he pointed out.

"So in the summer before the fall of his senior year, Sugar Bear practiced what came hardest: running backwards.

"I ran backwards constantly. I ran until I could hardly run forward."

And, alas, it paid off. Sugar Bear started all 12 of Southern California's games at cornerback, as the Trojans swept to a perfect season, a National Championship and a Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State on New Years Day.

In 12 games, Hinton was burned only once, when a Stanford receiver got behind him for a TD pass. Over the season he intercepted four, however, and led the club with seven blocked passes.

Sugar Bear will have to make another transtition with the Broncos. On the advice of Trojan head coach John McKay, John Ralston and the Denver staff will take a look at Hinton at safety, a switch he's looking forward to.

"I've always wanted play safety," he said. When you're in the middle you're better able to see the ball and watch the play develop. Besides, you have to be a better athlete to play the corner."

BRONCO NOTES: The agreed Tuesday to lift the suspension on starting offensive guard Larron Jackson, and said the three-year veteran obtained from Houston in 1971 would rejoin the team at Cal Poly sometime today. . . contract negotiations will continue said a Bronco spokesman in a wire story.

Jackson said he was "certain that a fair and equitable contract will be eventually worked out. We have no problems which cannot be resolved."

The Broncos practiced today at 9:30 and 3:30 and will hit the field at the same time Friday. . . Ralston will give the team an afternoon off Saturday after a 9:45 a.m. workout. . . the team will report again Sunday at 6 pm.

Tonight's game

Optimist (American) vs. Rod & Gun (Northwest), Montvue Park, 5:30 p.m.

Park Ave. advances to the championship bracket against the Angels from Northwest League Monday.

Park Ave. struck first in the fourth inning with back-to-back singles by Ron Peek and Bill Eldrige.

Greg Stevens walked to load the bases, and Lee McCollum, the pitcher, walked Troy Thomas to score Peek from third. Larry Maleskey hit a 1-2 pitch down the right field line for a double to drive in Eldridge and Stevens to make the score 4-0.

Park Ave. came back in the fifth to score two more runs when relief pitcher Jeff Osborn walked the first batter, then Adkins hit a lon fly to left field for a two-run homer to make the score 6-0.

Clark Brothers' biggest opportunity was in the first inning with one out. Bernard Hurd got on when the third baseman made an error, but Osborn hit into a fielders' choice for the second out. McCollum singled to center to put men at first and second, but Chester Spirlin hit back to the pitcher for the third out.

Eldridge, the pitcher for Park Ave., allowed just four hits, while striking out eight Clark Brothers batters for the win.

Clark Brothers advances to the consolation bracket to face Mautz Flooring, who lost to Angels Monday evening. The two teams play next Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. at Montvue Park.

Northwest loop elects officers

POMONA — Members of the Pomona Northwest Little League will hold a general meeting to elect officers for 1974 at 6:30 p.m. Friday at the Little League field at Kennedy Park located near Marshall Junior High.

The public is welcome. Additional information is available by telephoning 595-6568.

Sports news in brief

FORMER LA VERNE COLLEGE third baseman Dave Cripe collected five hits for San Jose Tuesday night in a 7-6 loss to Bakersfield in California League contest at San Jose. Cripe was the starting third baseman on the 1972 La Verne College team that won the NAIA national baseball title.

THE OAKLAND A's picked up three veteran major leaguers for the stretch run in the American League West. Outfielder Vic Davalillo and Jesus Alou and infielder Mike Andrews were purchased from Pittsburgh, and Houston respectively, while Andrews formerly of the Chicago White Sox was signed as a free agent. The addition of Jesus to the Oakland roster makes three Alou brothers who have played for Bay Area teams — either Oakland or the San Francisco Giants.

THREE YEARS TWO contracts and one court case later, Julius Erving finally becomes a New York Net today in a desperation move by the American Basketball Association to prevent yet another of its superstars from jumping leagues. The 23-year old Erving, the ABA's leading scorer with a 31.9 average last season, was "secretly" traded by the Virginia Squires to the Nets Tuesday in exchange for another more lesser-known forward, George Carter, plus the usual 'other considerations."

Gems play Oxnard

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

BURBANK — Pomona Post 30 will call on either southpaw Keith Hartley, or righthanders Larry Pekarcik or Mark Lambert Thursday in the opening round game of the Area 6 American Legion Baseball Tournament.

The Gems, sponsored by Larry Wellins Jewelers, travel to Northwest Park in Burbank for a 4 p.m. encounter with Oxnard. The second game of the doubleheader, starting at 7 p.m., will be between Sylmar and Pacific Palisades.

Post 30, riding the crest of a nine-game winning streak including three straight to cop the District 18 crown, sports a 32-10 overall slate.

If Hartley gets the nod, he'll be trying to improve upon a 6-1 record and an impressive 1.26 earned run average. The red head hurled 4 1-3 innings in the District 18 Playoffs allowing five runs and four hits while striking out four.

Pekarcik posted a 1-1 mark after coming to the Gems from the Pomona Connie Mack Kings and pitched effectively sporting a 2.04 ERA. Larry hurled three innings allowing one run and three hits while striking out five in helping the team to the district title.

Lambert did not appear in the playoffs but won six of eight decisions during the regular season while posting a 2.32 ERA.

Either Bill Wilkinson or Jeff Corkill will handle the catching chores with Greg Ballard at first, Eddie Carmean at second, Conde Rael at third, and Wil Lewallen handling the shortstop duties.

The outfield will consist of Roger Slayton in right, Keith Thomas in center, and either Corkill or Bobby Chaulk in left.

Wilkinson swatted his first homer of the year in Thursday's 5-2 playoff win over West Covina. Ballard picked up one of the pitching wins, clubbed a home run and batted .615. Slayton collected 10 hits in 15 wins at bats for a .667 mark to lead all performers, besides blasting a roundtripper.

Lewallen will be ready to resume shortstop duties after suffering a bone bruise on his elbow from being hit by a pitch Saturday.

Norton chooses sparring mate

GILMAN HOT SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Light heavyweight Eddie Jones of Los Angeles will join Ken Norton's training camp here Friday as the ex-Marine's chief sparring partner.

Norton, 28, is preparing for his Sept. 10 rematch with former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali at the Forum in Inglewood, Calif.

The San Diego-based Norton scored a 12-round split decision over Ali at San Diego March 31. Ali suffered a broken jaw in the fight.

Eddie Futch, Norton's trainer, said he wanted to use Jones because of his quickness.

Montclair Central Little League will host the Section 7 tournament at John F. Kennedy Park starting tonight with four teams hoping to advance beyond the third step towards th World Series.

Diamond Bar (District 20) plays Riverside La Sierra (District 24) tonight while Chino National (District 23) battles Colton Terrace (District 21). The two winners meet Friday with the survivor returning to Kennedy Park Saturday for the Section championship after the winner from a similar four-team tournament at Cypress.

All games here begin at 7 p.m.

The Section championship advances to the state tournament next week at Santa Clara. The next goals are the Western Regionals at San Bernardino and the World Series in Williamsport.

Both Diamond Bar and Chino National won four consecutive games to win District championships.

Diamond Bar beat Pomona American, 3-0; Claremont American, 10-3; San Dimas, 12-0; and Pomona National, 8-2. In a series of close games, Chino National defeated Upland Foothill, 8-7; Upland American, 7-5; Upland National, 8-7; and Ontario Eastern, 4-2.

Manager Buzz Nunn of Diamond Bar has his pitching sensation Kevin Gross, ready for action tonight.

Gross has been sensational in the tournament, pitching a perfect game against Pomona American and coming within one out of a no-hitter versus San Dimas, settling for a one-hitter.

Diamond Bar showed great balance in winning the District championship. Six different players hit home runs in the four victories with Joel Nunn and Vincent Hall belting grand slams.

Chino National, coached by former Cal Poly quarterback Jack Surina, has been winning the close games with Jerry Ramirez' bat leading the way.

Ramirez has hit home runs in every game in the tournament as Chino National has hit 11 round trippers all together in displaying his muscle.

Surina will probably start his brother, John, on the mound Thursday. The young Surina won two games in the District playoffs while Gary Niekirk picked up the other two victories.

Montclair conducts swim meet

MONTCLAIR — The Montclair Swim Team will host the Mt. Baldy League finals at the Montclair High pool Saturday with swimmers from the host club, Pomona, Claremont, Upland and Alta Loma entered.

The meet starts at 8:30 a.m. with the public invited.

Alice Hall of Montclair won the 11-12 age group high point trophy last week at the Inland Empire Conference Championships at Cajon High in San Bernardino. She placed first in the 50-yard breaststroke, the 100-yard freestyle and the 200-yard freestyle, setting an Inland Empire record in the latter event with a time of 2:16.7.

Other first place winners for Montclair were Barbara Schuld in the 15-17 50-yard butterfly, Mike Harbottle in the 15-17 100-yard breaststroke and Jim Woods in the 15-17 200-yard freestyle.

Earning second place ribbons were Earl Wellyer in the 11-12 50-yard butterfly and 100-yard freestyle, Schuld in the 15-17 100-yard freestyle, Michelle Thompson in the 15-17 100-yard freestyle and Christine Johanson in the 15-17 50-yard butterfly.

Rentzel hopes to return for Dallas game

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said Tuesday that he hopes Lance Rentzel will be back in uniform for the Los Angeles Rams' Friday night exhibition game against the Dallas Cowboys.

Rentzel has been suspended indefinitely by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle but Garvey said the NFLPA will file a suit in federal district court in Los Angeles on Wednesday or Thursday to challenge the suspension.

Citing "some similarities" with the Jane Blaylock golfing case Garvey said in his Washington office that the NFLPA will ask for an immediate injunction overturning Rozelle's suspension so Rentzel can return to the Rams right now.

Los Angeles is scheduled to play the Dallas Cowboys Friday night in the first exhibition game for both teams.

In the Jane Blaylock case, the golfer was suspended last year by the Ladies Professional Golf Association for "unethical conduct." The LPGA had claimed Miss Blaylock was guilty of cheating.

In U.S. District Court in Atlanta, Miss Blaylock gained an injunction against the LPGA which permitted her to continue on her tour. Last month (June 22), Judge Charles A. Moye, Jr. ruled that the LPGA's action was a "naked restraint of trade" and that the suspension was "tantamount to total exclusion from the market of professional golf."

Judge Moye also ruled that Miss Blaylock could collect the winnings she earned during the year of suspension, which ended on May 31, 1973. She had been able to play during that year because of the injunction. The LPGA is appealing that ruling.

Garvey said that the NFLPA had been in contact with Miss Blaylock's attorneys. "There are some similarities in the cases although she was suspended by an association while Rentzel was suspended by a commissioner," he said.

Garvey said the Minneapolis law firm of Lindquist and Vennum, which is the NFLPA's counsel, would file the suit in Los Angeles with Ed Glennon handling the case. "It'll be filed either Wednesday or Thursday, depending on when all the legal papers are drawn up," he said.

Rentzel was suspended by Rozelle for "conduct detrimental to pro football." He was arrested on Jan. 11 for possession of marijuana. He pleaded guilty but is appealing the case. Previously, he had been arrested and pleaded guilty in both Minneapolis and Dallas to charges of indecent exposure.

But Rentzel, contacted in Los Angeles, said he feels "very confident" he will be exonerated on the marijuana charge on appeal. Rentzel claims he pleaded guilty so he could play football this year while the case was being heard on appeal.

McGuire signs Knicks' pact

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Marquette backcourt ace Allie McGuire, hoping to continue following in his father's footsteps, Tuesday signed a professional contract with the New York Knickerbockers of the National Basketball Association.

McGuire, who played for his father, Al, at Marquette for three years and holds that school's career assist record (322(, was the Knicks' No. 3 draft choice this past year. The elder McGuire played guard for the Knicks for three seasons in the early 1950's.

Billy Martin enjoys last laugh on Milwaukee fans

By United Press International

Billy Martin is having the last laugh on the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Brewers were planning to have some fun with Martin tonight prior to their game with the Detroit Tigers by holding "Chinese Aviation Night," sort of mock tribute to the Tigers' manager for his derogatory statement earlier this season about the Brewers' pennant chances.

"If the Milwaukee Brewers are a pennant contender, then I'm a Chinese aviator," was what Martin said early in the season. Well, the fans were being asked to dress up as Chinese aviators tonight and Martin is supposed to participate in the pre-game ceremonies.

But the joke isn't really going to be on Martin after all. The Tigers saw to that Tuesday night by sweeping a doubleheader from the Brewers 6-5 and 9-4. The twin loss dropped the Brewers 7 ½ games behind the American League East Division leading New York Yankees, who defeated Boston 5-4, and Martin may prove to be right before the season is over.

In other AL games, Baltimore topped Cleveland 5-1, Texas beat California 4-2, Oakland nipped Minnesota 4-3 in 11 innings and Kansas City edged Chicago 2-1.

Cincinnati took two from Atlanta 9-5 and 13-11, Pittsburgh defeated New York 4-1, Houston edged Los Angeles 3-2 San Francisco topped San Diego 5-1, St. Louis defeated Montreal 10-5 and after losing the opener 4-3 in National League games.

The Tigers' doubleheader sweep stretched their winning streak to seven games and moved them to within two games of first place in the AL East. Bill Freehan's single in the seventh inning capped a three-run rally that gave Detroit its victory in the opener and home runs by Gates Brown, Dick McAuliffe and Jim Northrup proved decisive in the nightcap.

Woody Fryman worked the first seven innings of the nightcap to post his first victory since April 26. He had lost seven in a row after winning his first two decisions. George Scott homered for the Brewers in the opener while John Briggs connected for them in the nightcap. Dave May's 24-game hitting streak came to an end in the second game.

Bobby Murcer's two-run single capped a three-run ninth inning rally as the Yankees came from behind to defeat the Red Sox. Felipe Alou started the ninth inning uprising with a homer and singles by Gene Michael, Matty Alou and Roy White preceed Murcer's hit. Murcer also singled home an earlier run. Tommy Harper and Carlton Fisk homered for the Red Sox.

Jim Palmer tossed a three-hitter as Baltimore remained one game behind the Yankees with a victory over the Indians. Palmer, boosting his record to 13-6, notched his fifth straight victory. Earl Williams supported him with a homer while Charlie Spikes homered for the Indians.

Rookie David Clyde pitched a four-hitter for seven innings in sparking the Rangers to their ninth triumph in 11 games. Clyde, only 18, gave up one run and was relieved by Bill Gogolewski after throwing his allotted number of 100 pitches. Bob Oliver had a homer for the Angels.

Ray Fosse's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning enabled the A's to defeat the Twins and brought Ken Holtzman his 16th victory. Deron Johnson opened the 11th with a double and pinch-runner John Odom moved to third when Jerry Terrell dropped a throw on a force play. Odom scored on Fosse's fly ball.

Rich Reichardt, playing in Chicago for the first time since he left the White Sox to become a free agent, doubled in two first inning runs to give Kansas City its victory. Paul Splittorff, with ninth inning relief help, registered his 14th triumph. Dick Allen out since June 28 when he suffered a broken bone in his left leg returned to the lineup for the White Sox and collected three singles in four at-bats.

Can a team score 16 runs in two games and lose both? The Atlanta Braves can. Their pitching staff was clobbered by Cincinnati twice despite Hank Aaron's 701st homer in the first game and his 400-foot pinch-hit sacrifice fly in the second when he just missed a grand slam. Joe Morgan collected seven hits in the two games including three homers. His third was a two-run blast in the ninth inning of the second game that snapped an 11-11 tie and climaxed a five-run rally. Two-rin homers by Morgan and Tony Perez in the seventh inning of the opener snapped a 3-3 tie.

The Pittsburgh Pirates may be on their way. The three-time defending Eastern Division champions continued to roll as they beat New York on the four-hit pitching of Dock Ellis and Ramon Hernandez. Run-scoring singles by Rennie Stennett and Manny Sanguillen helped beat Jerry Koosman.

St. Louis maintained its lead in the East by routing Montreal as Ted Simmons and Joe Torre cracked three-run homers. Alan Foster went six innings to get the win and Ernie McAnally suffered the loss.

Chicago fell two games back of the Cards by splitting with Philadelphia. Billy Williams drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly to pace Chicago to the opening game victory. But the Cubs lost a chance for a sweep in the second game when winning pitcher Ken Brett helped his own cause with a two-run single. Brett pitched a nine-hitter to beat Milt Pappas.

Juan Marichal pitched an eight-hitter to lead San Francisco over San Diego. Bobby Bonds collected three hits including his 29th homer. Marichal and Bob Gibson of St. Louis are now tied for the lead among active pitchers with 236 career wins.

NFL clubs face heavy schedule

By United Press International

After three weeks of heavy work under the hot sun, National Football League players finally get into live action this weekend.

Following last weekend's two pre-season openers, 11 games are scheduled for this weekend.

The New York Jets are at Houston, the Detroit Lions at Washington and the Dallas Cowboys at Los Angeles to open a long weekend Friday night. On Saturday, Cincinnati is at Miami, Baltimore at Pittsburgh, Buffalo plays Philadelphia at Jacksonville, Fla., the New York Giants are at San Diego, New Orleans at Kansas City and Chicago takes on Green Bay at Milwaukee.

Oakland is at New England on Sunday while on Monday night, San Francisco is at Cleveland.

In news from the training camps Tuesday, defensive tackle Don Croft will be lost to the Buffalo Bills for three months after undergoing knee surgery. Croft started the Bills' final 12 games last season.

Pete Van Valkenburg, a rookie running back who was a high draft choice for New Orleans, returned to the Saints after missing two weeks of practice with a pulled hamstring.

Jerry DePoyster, the kicker claimed by Cleveland just last week, told the Browns he is retiring from football. DePoyster lost his job with Oakland when the Raiders made Ray Guy of Southern Mississippi their No. 1 draft pick.

Wide receiver Isaac Curtis, the Cincinnati Bengals' No. 1 draft pick, pulled a muscle in his first workout with the club. Curtis reported to the Bengals Monday after playing in the College All-Star game last week in Chicago.

MEAT SHORTAGE THREATENS . . . .

Because of shortages resulting from Government - imposed economic controls, you may find some cuts of meat missing from store cases.

During the freeze which was in effect from June 13 to July 18, farmers cut back production or delayed marketing some products because the ceiling price that processors or retailers could pay would not cover the farmers' expenses. Many meat plant operations have been shut down because of supply and cost problems.

The continued freeze on beef prices until September 12, has created a particularly bad short - term supply situation, which is beyond our control. Future supplies are unpredictable at this time.

In the meantime, we will try to bring you as wide a variety at as reasonable a price as possible. Any retail price increases are the direct reflection of the increased cost of raw agricultural products only.

Thank you for your patience and understanding.

Two-state battle in Cal-Neva 150

IRWINDALE — The best of two states will converge on the San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale this Friday evening for the running of the "Cal-Neva 150" sportsman stock car race.

The stars of Nevada NASCAR racing will move into the southland challenging the local drivers on their home ground for the top spots in this all-important race carrying double championship points.

The red-hot action will get underway at 7:30 p.m. on the half-mile asphalt oval with trophy dashes followed by consolation races for non-qualifiers and the "Cal-Neva 150" running in two 75 lap segments.

Heading the list of Nevada based sportsman stock car racing stars set to invade the Irwindale speedway is point leader, Romey Alderman of Las Vegas, driving a 1966 Chevelle.

Alderman is the Craig Road Speedway point leader and is considered a top threat to the winner s circle.

Other Nevada talent includes former champion, Bob Ruppert, driving a 1964 Chevelle and Bob Van Norman, Jim Sanderson and Gus Newman.

Forgetting their personal differences brought by their heated track championship battle, Ivan Baldwin and Bill Spencer will unite against the out-of-state threat along with some 60 other southern California racing stars.

Time trials begin at 6 p.m. on the 4900 Rivergrade Road oval in Irwindale.

The NASCAR stars move to Craig Road Speedway in Las Vegas on Saturday for the final race of the two race series.

What ever happened to Viceroy team?

By DEKE HOULGATE

Some of the smartest people in racing claim that Al Unser is the best all-around driver in the country. Other astute observers say that the Viceroy Special he drives is the best car on the U. S. Auto Club championship circuit.

Unfortunately for Unser and the Vel's Parnelli Jones Racing Team, the 1973 box score for Al and Parnelli isn't all that wonderful.

Al Unser has led four of the six races held so far but won only the 200-miler at Texas World Speedway. His teammate Mario Andretti has won only once race, and the other driver in the PJ stable, Joe Leonard, hasn't even come close. What has gone wrong?

"We just don't know," the youngest Unser brother said frankly. "It's just one of those things. We don't seem to put things together. Like last year, I only finished four or five races.

"We think our cars are better than they were a year ago, but we are still having handling problems. We are trying to work them out, but we can't seem to put a finger on them."

Al wasn't trying to cop out, but he pointedly remarked that Dan Gurnery's Eagle team has had its embarrassing moments in years past. Al believes the Maurice Phillippe-designed Parnellis are going through the same painful process and will eventually emerge as unbeatable race cars.

"I can remember the 1970 Eagle," Al said. "It was no good. The design was junk. People forget all the bad years Dan had after his two good years."

More than one of the Viceroy "super team" competitors have labled Unser and Andretti as the men to beat in championship racing this season. How soon will the potential of the Viceroy cars and drivers be known?

"We won't really know till the end of the year," Al said. "Then we will sit down with the designer and the mechanics and assess the season. We'll either make changes to the cars or build new ones."

Preparing for the California 500 at Ontario Sept. 2 is Unser's big project for the moment, and because of the new USAC rules Al is approaching the race differently than he planned to originally.

"It's a different race this year," he said. "Between speed and pit stops you're going to have to be sharper all day to win. It will be very important to make good, honest, clean pit stops. A guy just has to take better care of his car."

Cutting fuel capacity from 75 to 40 gallons has doubled the number of pit stops required to run 500 miles. That means, of course, that pit crews will have to perform more efficiently, but Al claims it will place a bigger responsibility on the driver as well.

Coming in and out of the pits a driver can burn the clutch, miss a shift and overrev his engine or abuse his gearbox. Each additional stop gives him the opportunity to make one of those mistakes.

Al bitterly assails the new "safety" rules of USAC, put in after Indy's horrors. Cutting fuel capacity, he said, has knocked almost 250 lb. of weight off the cars, making them faster, and shortening the interval between pit stops. This has allowed the use of a softer tire that wears out sooner but also makes the cars faster between stops. He also doesn't like having all the fuel on the left uside of the car — the side he hit when he went into the wall at Pocono at 150 m.p.h.

Al would like USAC to concentrate on making fuel cells stronger. He believes speed is not the culprit and cites the Salt Walther and Swede Savage crashes to bolster his arguments.

"Salt was only doing about 115 when he crashed, and Swede was doing about 165 when he lost it, not 200."

The other day John Bishop and his new sanctioning body, the International Motor Sports Assn., were welcomed to the august Automobile Competition Committee of the United States (ACCUS).

It took a couple of years before Bishop's application was processed, and there were a couple of special charges he had to pay in addition to the $1,000-a-year dues. IMSA paid a non-refundable application fee of $1,000 and an initiation fee of $2,000, both of which he characterized as new house rules.

Bishop jokes wryly about his $4,000 investment in joining the Establishment.

"Our application wasn't wholeheartedly received," he said. "Before us there were no membership standards, so ACCUS named a committee which spent money for a year on high-priced New York lawyers to study the standards. And we still got in."

Why did Bishop, a former member of the committee when he was an SCAA executive, wait so long, try so hard and put out so much money to join?

"I hope we can make a contribution to motor racing in the United States," he said, adding that IMSA hopes to share in the most important benefit of belonging to ACCUS — having its important races listed on the international calendar so that non-members can participate.

Daytona International Speedway would like to invite foreign drivers to a road race it plans late in the year, and now that IMSA has corralled the Sebring 12-hour enduro — once the premiere international race in this country — Bishop would like foreign drivers in that race too.

ACCUS membership also represents grudging acceptance of the success of upstart IMSA, which had the affrontery to go out and sign two important commercial sponsors and build two of the best spectator-oriented road racing series in the U.S. virtually from scratch.

They are companion endurance events, one for small-engine sedans running on street-legal tires called the Goodrich Radial Challenge and the other for exciting Corvettes, Porsches and other touring and grand touring cars. It is called the Camel GT Challenge.

The most recent race held, at Mid-Ohio, drew spectacular crowds. The Goodrich six-hour drew record attendance Saturday of 13,000, and the Camel six-hour attracted 31,000 to the track that is more than 60 miles from the nearest metropolitan area.

IMSA is big in the Southeast and East but has had trouble lining up dates on the West Coast and some other parts of the country. Bishop claims that rival SCCA has pressured its promoters not to book IMSA races, but he isn't worried that he will be unable to schedule events where and when he wants them in the future.

"Sure, we're being blocked," Bishop said. "I believe it's just misguided loyalty. Once the promoters are convinced that ours is a good show, they'll come to us and ask for races.

Southland racing

CORONA — The most exciting type of racing ever witnessed comes to Corona Raceway in the form of quarter oval, powder puff and figure 8's Saturday night.

The action gets under way with the "Women's Libbers" showing the men that they can handle themselves on the tricky oval. Among some of the notable women drivers are Connie Church, Bev Arnold, Diane Skillman, Barbara Llewellyn and the 50 year old great grandmother Mabel Masters.

The men will follow the women on the oval track as the six fatest cars dice for the win in the trophy dash. The heat races will follow the dashes, and the last event on the oval will be the 15 plap main event. Dorsey Steele will be pulling out all stops in his effort to pull out his sixth win of the season. Sure to be on his tail will be super fast Roger Hester, Larry Lord, Dale Perry and Larry Bishoff.

IRWINDALE — Borrowing from big league baseball's book, Irwindale Raceway will present a special T-shirt night this coming Saturday featuring all of drag racing's pro categories and a California Land Speed Record attempt by the nation's newest rocket powered vehicle.

Every fan who purchases a pit pass, usually about 80 per cent according to management, will receive a free Irwindale Raceway T-shirt silkscreened two color both sides. Once in the the pits the new shirt owners will find a massive array of 240 mph Top Fuel dragsters, AA-Funny cars and Pro Stocks.

Over 35 fuelers are expected to quality for a 16 car field, standout entries include PDA Champ James Warren, the sport's quickest shoe-Don Moody, World Series winner Walt Rhoades, Bakersfield March Meet winner Dwight Salisbury and T.B. Samilwood's Memphis based beauty with Les Allen of Bellflower aboard.

IRWINDALE — The claimer stock cars of United States Racing Club will make one of their rare appearances on the half-mile racing oval at San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale this Saturday night at 7:30 p.m.

Racing on the quarter-mile at the speedway each week the speedsters will move out onto the super fast larger track for competition in trophy dashes, consolation races and a 100 lap main event run in two 50 lap segments with a pit stop at the altway mark.

VALENCIA — Eddie Cole of Saugus, who campaigns a rapid imported Penton motorcycle in the 125 cc displacement division for proffessional riders, will be seeking his 28th and 29th straight overall victories on the bound-and-bounce courses during a pair of motocross racing features Friday night and Sunday at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

Considered by many as the top rider of lightweight machinery in the United States, "red-hot Cole has even more at stake than keeping his win streak intact; he's hoping to gain a berth on the American competition team which will be meeting European riders for the first time ever in a 125cc world championship round later this year. And wins Friday and Sunday would definitely enhance his chances of receiving an invitation to participate in the classic that will be held in Ohio.

SAN BERNARDINO — Following a highly successful northern tour of the NASCAR Grand National West late model stock cars will race at the Orange Show Speedway in San Bernardino on Saturday night.

The 1971, '72 and '73 stock cars will run in a trophy dash, heat races and 100 lap championship main event on the light quarter-mile speedway with over $6000 in prize monies on the line.

Of the 500 top banks in deposits in the free enterprise world, 175 were American.

Energy Fund portfolio

By ROGER SPEAR

Q — My husband and I are in our late forties, have substantial savings and are now interested in investing $100 a month in Energy Fund for future growth. Never having invested before and knowing very little about the stock market we would appreciate your opinion of this fund. —T.O.

A — This fund is conservatively managed, investing for long-term appreciation rather than for short swings. A portfolio turnover rate of 50 per cent or under annually is management's goal. The top-10 holdings in Energy's portfolio, which constitute less than 30 per cent of total asset value, include Exxon, Amer. Tel. & Tel., Chicago Bridge & iron and Atlantic Richfield.

Over the last five years, 1968-72, the fund has not been an outstanding performer reflecting the weak market that existed for oil and gas stocks and utilities, which together represent about 30 per cent of the fund's holdings. At this juncture, however, with the energy crisis in the forefront, oils have been a bright spot in a sagging stock market. A monthly investment plan with this fund appears well-suited to your particular aims.

Q — I am retired from Campbell Soup Co. (NYSE) and have some shares of their stock. Do you think it would be wise for me to sell these and buy savings certicates? Would I receive more on my investment? — B.M.

A— Since these shares are yielding around 4 per cent currently, you certainly would earn more on savings certificates which return 5¾ per cent and up. However, there is no possibility of capital appreciation from fixed-income investments such as savings certificates. One alternative suggestion would be to sell half these shares and put the proceeds in certificates.

Campbell earnings for fiscal 1973 are expected to be well ahead of depressed 1972 results. In the first 9 months net gained 42 per cent on a 15 per cent increase in sales, year to year. Although rising commdity costs will exert pressure on profit margins, some increase in selling prices may be allowed in coming months. Also, with dividend controls relaxed, a boost is possible in that rate, which is now well below the maximum allowable payout.

U. S. loans So. Vietnam $50 million

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States granted a development loan of $50 million to South Vietnam today the first assistance to this country for postwar economic reconstruction.

The loan will be used to purchase industrial machinery, spare parts and other manufactured products.

The loan agreement was signed by acting Foreign Minister Nguyen Phu Duc and U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin, who arrived last month to succeed Ambassador Elsworth Bunker.

Martin said the development loan was the first made by the United States to South Vietnam since 1961.

The loan will be repaid over a period of 40 years, including a grace period of 10 years.

Two senators call Nixon cancer program a fraud

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's two-year-old crash program to conquer cancer through intensive research was denounced Tuesday by two leading senators as a "fraud on the American people."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., made public a memorandum written by Dr. Frank J. Rauscher Jr., director of the National Cancer Institute, complaining that administration budget cuts would "seriously limit" his agency's efforts to find a cancer cure.

Rauscher wrote the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) last Nov. 30, while the fiscal 1974 budget was being prepared, to protest in vain a $140 million OMB cut in his institute's request for $640 million.

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate appropriations subcommittee on health, said his panel would "do what should be done to put some of these programs back" into the pending health, education and welfare appropriations bill —including restoring $140 million to the administration's scaled-down $500 million request for cancer research.

The $500 million is $8 million more than Congress appropriated for that purpose last year.

"White House rhetoric about conquering cancer is no more than the rhetoric about other domestic programs —it is a fraud on the American people," the senators said in a joint statement.

"Like so many other promises, this one evaporated just two years later," Magnuson added. "It is clear from a reading of Dr. Rauscher's poignant memo to the OMB that far more than $500 million could be 'effectively used' to combat a disease that has killed millions of Americans."

Mansfield said the memo made clear that "even the fight against our most dread disease, cancer, is suffering in a budget that continues to spend money for unneeded American troops in Europe while gutting crucial programs to help our people at home."

Rauscher said the budget cut would significantly restrict expansion of research into immunologic treatment of cancer, postpone proposed automation of Pap smear tests, prevent development of attempts to contro' cancers caused by four newly discovered viruses, result in a 50 per cent reduction in lung cancer detection and reduce clinical work on breast cancer, the leading cause of cancer deaths among women.

Killers given death in Mont.

FORSYTH, Mont. (UPI) — Two jail escapers were sentenced to death Monday for the Sept. 28, 1972, fatal shooting of a jeweler during a robbery.

Judge Alfred Coates imposed the sentence on Wallace Rhodes Jr., 25, and James Shields, 21, who fled from a jail in Montain Home, Idaho.

Their executions would be the first in the state since 1943.

Rhodes and Shields were convicted July 19 of robbing Donald Kalberg, 48, Hardin, Mont., and taking him to a highway rest area where they shot him to death.

Talmadge admits pal paid for his outing

WASHINGTON UPI) — Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., a member of the Watergate Committee, admits that he went fishing last winter in the Bahamas with a big government contractor who paid for the flight.

Talmadge issued a statement in response to a report on Wednesday in the Washington Star-News that he was flown to the island of Bimini last winter in a plane owned and operated by Rockwell International, third largest contractor for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"Al Rockwell Jr. has an operation in Albany, Ga.," Talmadge said. "He has been a friend of mine for quite a number of years. I've hunted with him in Georgia on several occasions.

"He invited me to join him on a fishing trip and I went."

The Star-News said the flight, at Rockwell's expense, took place Feb. 9, the day after Congress began a week-long Lincoln's Birthday recess.

Rockwell, in response to the news story, issued a statement saying: "It is company policy not to disclose flight schedules of company airplanes or the name of individuals flying on company airplanes."

According to the newspaper, Rockwell arranged flights on its executive jets to and from Bimini "to meet the scheduling requirements of individual members of Congress, and handled all arrangements for the legislators' stay on the island."

Need aid, mayor says

Expanded transit too costly for San Diego

WASHINGTON (UPI) — San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson Tuesday warned that his city and others like it will not be able to meet regulations requiring expanded public transit unless a "massive increase" in federal funding is forthcoming.

Wilson addressed himself to regulations promulgated by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) which requires substituting buses for automobiles as a means of fighting air pollution.

"Our concern is that the EPA regulations —while providing moral authority and an administrative imperative for expanded public transit —do not ... provide the massive increase in financial assistance that will be inescapably required to actually achieve the expansion of public transit service which the regulations mandate," Wilson said in prepared testimony on mass transportation before a House subcommittee.

San Diego, the nation's 11th largest city, is one of 17 urban areas for which the EPA has imposed transportation control plans.

The standards for San Diego would require a 45 per cent reduction in vehicle miles traveled and a 20 per cent reduction in parking areas. Mass transit would be expected to carry the bulk of travel displaced from automobiles. Wilson said an additional 1,250 buses (the city-owned San Diego Transit Corporation has a fleet of 250) and some 2,400 personnel (at a cost of $40 million) would be needed to meet the regulations.

"It is obvious," he said, "that forcing cities to provide significantly expanded transit service, particularly in the peak hours, must escalate the need for operating assistance."

"Local transit systems are faced with overwhelming deficits and the prospect of increased fares and decreased ridership. We cannot continue to bear this burden alone."

The city government is also alarmed, he testified, by the parking restrictions contained in the EPA regulations. He said the proposals to reduce existing public parking and halt new private parking facilities "preclude the City's partly implemented plans to reduce vehicle miles of travel."

"These plans encourage redevelopment of the urban core and discourage continued, disorderly urban sprawl with its attendant transportation problems that have been so characteristic of the Los Angeles area," Wilson told the legislators.

The EPA proposals, he said, "are counter to the city's plans to change this trend."

Wilson, who was representing the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors, was asked what other mayors think the degree of federal participation in mass transit should be, in terms of funding.

He replied that many are "asking for a 100 per cent subsidizing."

Chairman Joseph Minish, D-N.J., suggested that such a commitment might lead to "federal interference."

"Mr. Chairman," said Wilson, "We've had federal interference for years. We'd just live with it."

Fat youth would rather eat alone

Dear Walt: I am about 50 pounds too fat and am trying to do something about it. What is discouraging is that my parents and my brother and sister all can eat gobs of food, and they still stay skinny. Because of this, I told my mother I'd like to eat separately. She is against this because she says it will not be good for family unity. Which do you think is more important, her feeling or my fat? —Jeff

Dear Jeff: Ask Mom if you might either join the family at the midpoint of the meal, or leave the table after finishing your first helping. If this compromise proposal isn't accepted, your family doctor might prescribe an appetite depressant, in addition to a special selection of foods that minimize calories while meeting daily vitamin requirements.

In addition you'll want to be ultara firm with yourself to make sure you indulge in no between-meal snacks. Good fortitude! —Walt

Dear Ele: This boy I know keeps teasing me to let him try on my clothes. We are just about the same size, and I have worn his clothes when we went camping, so I know they'd fit hom. But it doesn't seem right for a boy to wear my underclothing and dresses and things. The way he puts it, he just wants to understand the feelings women get from their clothing. But I don't know. — Elsa

Dear Elsa: In your spot I'd tell the lad I appreciated the time he loaned me his clothes, and state that I hope he hadn't felt "invaded" by having me in his clothes. And then explain, I, however, would defintely feel "invaded" by having a male in my things, so I'd appreciate it if he dropped the subject.

If he pushed further after I'd stated my honest feelings, I'd tell hom "no" was "NO" and that I'd discuss the subject no further. If the subject surfaced after this, I'd turn and walk away from him until he came to respect my feelings more. —Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: In our town there are four times as many bars as churches and the minimum age to drink is 18. Two of my brothers are already halfway to being alcoholics and I have one uncle who's in a sanitarium right now plus another who died from a bad liver from too much alcohol.

Considering this, I don't plan to ever drink at all. But I know from experience that other people push and push to get you to drink even when you don't want to. What can you say that doesn't sound babyish to refuse and make them respect you?—Warren

Dear Warren: Accept the fact that some people will alsways consider a nondrinker juvenile or nonvirile. In their sad heads, it's part of the male mystique that a man be a two-fisted drinker. For these folks "being able to hold your liquor" equtes with coming of age in Samoa, etc.

Don't allow yourself to be drawn into heavy arguments with such folks. Suffice to say, "That's not my taste," or "I'm in training (. . .for yoga, swimming, long-distance running, etc.)." Never get yourself nto a spot where you have to stay someplace where the boozers will bug you an entire evening. Always have alternate transportation to get home.

And if your resolve ever wavers, talk with some of the doctors at our uncle's sanitarium. There's good reason to think that the tendency towards alcoholism may well run in family lines. —Ele and Walt.

Pomona man named 'Drycleaner of Year'

POMONA — Don Parker, owner of Don's Dry Cleaners at 1773 N. Garey Ave., was selected "Drycleaner of the Year" at the 52nd annual convention of the California Fabricare Institute just concluded in San Jose.

Each year the award is presented to the industry member who makes the greatest contribution to advancement of the industry and improved services for consumers.

In the past two years Parker has served as insurance committee chairman for CIF's 1,800 member drycleaners. In that time he has developed insurance coverage for maximum protection of the consumer as well as the industry he represents.

One such protective consumer service provides insurance coverage for earthquake damage to consumer's goods in process of cleaning. This coverage is now included on all CFI sponsored insurance policies.

In his 20-year membership span with CIF, Parker has been active in supporting education programs for members. These programs keep pace with developments of new fibers, fabrics, and processing techniques in the industry.

Wasted energy

If burned in power plants, the 2½ billion tons of waste — garbage, manure, and vegetable refuse — produced every year in the United States would generate more than half of today's national output of electricity.

Mineral finds on ocean floor excite scientists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government scientist reported Thursday the discovery of a rich ocean bottom manganese deposit which has important implications for mineral exploration on exposed portions of ancient sea floors.

Dr. Peter A. Rona, a research geophysicist with the Atlantic Oceanographic and Meteorological Laboratories in Miami, said the two-inch thick metallic mineral layer was found on the sides of a long valley running the length of the submerged mountain range in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.

Unlike other less pure ocean bottom deposits of manganese Rona said the manganese in the new find was a hydrothermal deposit whic means it formed by the process that results when hot liquids carrying dissolved metals circulate through openings in rocks.

Rona said in a telephone interview that copper, zinc, cobalt, nickel and even silver could be forming the same way on the sea bottom. He emphasized, however, that the initial find was not economically exploitable at the present time.

"The importance of this discovery is to discover that a process is concentrating metallic minerals (on the ocean floor) more efficiently than we realized in the past," he said.

The manganese was dredged up by the NOAA research ship Discoverer last year in water 2½ miles deep midway between the coasts of Florida and Africa. The site was located at 26 degrees north, 45 degrees west.

The mid-ocean ridge is a globe encircling submerged mountain range. The central valley where the deposit was found is believed to represent the center of a sea floor spreading process where molten rock rises up from the interior of the earth and forms new sea floor.

Rona said the hydrothermal mineral deposits are probably related to this upwelling of molten rock.

"We think our discovery has implications for such a process being active in other places of the mid-ocean ridge system," Rona said. If such processes are global, he said this would mean that exposed slices of ancient sea floors —in islands or along continents —might contain such mineral deposits.

An example of this, Rona said, would be the rich copper deposits on the island of Cyprus. He said he believes those deposits were formed on a mid-ocean ridge and were later exposed.

"This should encourage more exploration work on exposed portions of the oceanic ridge," he said.

Manganese, a metal used primarily to strengthen steel, has been known for some time to exist in the form of potato sized nodules on the floors of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Several companies hope to dredge up these nodules for commercial use.

Rona said the new deposit is much more pure —containing 40 per cent manganese —than the nodules. Analysis of the new deposit also indicates it forms at a depth of seven inches per million years, compared to less than half an inch per million years for the odules.

Another oceanographic cruise is scheduled for October and November this year
